PREFATORY NOTE.

THE Syndics of the Cambridge University Press have arranged for the issue of a series of Patristic Texts for Theological Students, of which the present volume is the first instalment. Other volumes are in course of preparation.

The series will include not only complete treatises, but also parts of larger works, which will be treated as complete in themselves, and selections of letters and sermons. The present book may be taken as a sample of the size of the volumes.

The object is to give to Theological Students the same kind of assistance in reading Patristic works, which is so abundantly given to students of the Classical authors. Regard will be had to the needs of those who have not many books of reference at hand.

The main part of the work in each case will consist of the actual Text, based on the best editions, with a collation of MSS. where possible, together with a digest of important various readings, and with explanatory notes. Brief Introductions will deal with the place of the work in the history of the Christian Church, and give information with regard to the MSS., editions, and literature of the subject. Copious Indices will follow, of Subjects, of Scripture Texts, and of Words.

The Indices to the present volume have been drawn up by the Rev. W. J. Foxell, M.A., Minor Canon of Canterbury Cathedral.

INTRODUCTION.

I. THE THEOLOGICAL ORATIONS.

THE five Orations here presented contain no exact indication of their date, but there can be no doubt that they were delivered during the time when their author was in charge of the Church of Constantinople. Discourses uttered at Nazianzus or Caesarea would have been more likely to be coloured by special allusions than those uttered in the capital, which assume an universal character. The first of the Orations appears to reflect the busy and varied life of a great city, with its theatres and exhibitions, its markets and its social gatherings. At Constantinople Gregory was more directly called upon than elsewhere to preach dogmatic sermons. The very purpose for which he was summoned to that city was to revive the almost extinct cause of Catholicism there. We may well believe that we have in these Orations the supreme effort of Gregory's public teaching at Constantinople.

Accordingly the date must be in one of the three years 379—381. It was at the end of 378 or early in 379 that Gregory entered Constantinople<sup>1</sup>, and he quitted it during the General Council of 381.

It is possible, however, to come a little closer. The twenty-second and twenty-third Orations were certainly delivered at Constantinople about the middle of the year 379. At the end of the latter of those two Orations, Gregory promises to crush the serpent eggs of heresy by "a stiff and solid argument." There can be little doubt that he regarded his "Theological Orations" as the fulfilment of this promise. And in Oration XLII, in which Gregory took leave of Constantinople and the Council, he speaks of having already carefully dealt with the Scriptural texts around which the current controversies raged;—a description which would well suit the Theological Orations, especially the fourth. Everything therefore points to the correctness of the conclusion that the Five Orations were delivered—and probably published in writing—in the year 380.

The first four are directed against the Eunomian heresy. Eunomius, whom Ullmann describes as "one of the most interesting heretics of the fourth century¹," was a Cappadocian, like Gregory himself². He had been a disciple of Aetius, the real successor of Arius in the leadership of the heresy. Eunomius, who in 360 became Bishop of Cyzicus near Constantinople, infused an altogether new vigour into the Arian party, though at the cost of its disruption. He took up boldly the assertion of Arius, which prudence had allowed to be forgotten, that the Son of God was so far from being "of one substance" with the Father, that He was not even "of like substance." The Eunomian party assumed for its rallying cry the word ἀνόμοιος. The more moderate Arians, who confessed that our Lord was ourog to the Father, were thrown into the arms of the Nicene school by the excessive zeal with which the Eunomians pushed their view. Eunomius and his adherents prided themselves on the strictly logical method of their teaching. Nothing was allowed to be taken for granted; nothing accepted on faith. They taught that God, as being absolutely simple, must be perfectly comprehensible to the human intellect. Everything of a mysterious nature disappeared from their system. They were unwilling to use any language about God which conveyed its meaning after a symbolical or metaphorical manner. Their arguments implied that such terms as "generation," if applicable to Him at all, must be held to connote that all the circumstances of generation, as known to the created world, have their counterpart in the divine life also

These doctrines they taught with the utmost assiduity. Gregory, in the third Theological Oration, shews1 that they used a regular method of instruction, with short text-books for beginners, in which the main arguments were skilfully marshalled in a form which made them easy to remember. The whole atmosphere of Constantinople was full of their disputations, pressed upon all hearers, Christian and not Christian, without reserve. "Every market-place," Gregory says, "resounds with their words; every dinner-party is spoiled by their ill-bred talkativeness; as for festivals and funerals,—all festivity is banished from the one, the other become cheerful things in comparison with the misfortune of having to listen to their arguments; even the women's apartments, the natural abode of what is simple and unaffected, are all made wretched, and robbed of the flower of their modesty, by haste to speak. Our 'great mystery' is in danger of becoming a matter of mincing technical terms<sup>1</sup>."

It was in these circumstances that Gregory intervened. In his first Oration, he reproved the contentiousness which he saw around him, letting his censure fall upon the orthodox as well as upon the Eunomian party. He shewed what preparation was required both in the speaker and in the hearer before religious subjects could be rightly treated of. He laid stress upon the harm done when the sacred language of Christianity was dragged out before the heathen, and subjected to irreverent criticism. He exhorted the disputants to turn their attention to other subjects of controversy.

In the second Oration, Gregory shewed that the nature of God is beyond the power of man to understand. We may assuredly know by the study of the world around us that God is, but we cannot find out what He is. We can arrive at negative truths concerning Him, that He is incorporeal and the like, but not at any adequate positive conception. We are compelled to use figurative and anthropomorphic language concerning Him, and it is hard to recognise constantly that such language is only figurative. Idolatry is the result of failure to recognise it. The saints of the Old Testament, privileged as they were,—nay the Apostles themselves,—knew God only in part. Even the works of God transcend our powers of intelligence and of wonder; how much more the God who created them.

The third Oration begins with the statement of our belief in a God who is One, but in Three Persons. Gregory shews that such a Sonship as we acknowledge in the Godhead is not to be interpreted by the phenomena of carnal generation, and that it implies no priority of existence on the part of the Father. He deals with the various questions of a more or less captious nature raised by the Eunomians, prior to the study of the Scriptural evidence, such as the following: - Did the Father beget the Son by an act of will, or not? Did the Son exist before He was begotten, or not? If the Son is begotten and the Father unbegotten, how can They be said to be of the same nature? If the Father is acknowledged to be greater than the Son, inasmuch as He is the cause of His being, and if it is His very nature to be the cause, how is He not greater by nature than the Son? Gregory then falls back upon the authority of Scripture, and shews that the Godhead of the Son is clearly implied, even where not explicitly stated, and that the passages which speak of Him in less exalted terms must be interpreted with reference to His assumption of our created nature in the Incarnation. The way of faith is a better way than that of argument.

In his next Oration Gregory deals seriatim with the stock texts which Arians adduced against the Godhead of the Son, applying to them the canon of interpretation which he had laid down in the fourth. He then discusses the names by which God is spoken of in Scripture, and especially those of the Son, both as God and as Man.

The fifth Oration is on the subject of the Holy Spirit; and here Gregory is confronted not only by his Eunomian opponents<sup>1</sup>, but by many also of those who shrank from the language of extreme Arianism concerning the Son. They were the party known as Macedonians, from a former Bishop of Constantinople who had espoused their views. These men, in their wish to avoid controvertible terms, objected to the statement that the Holy Ghost is God, on the same ground on which the insertion of the ὁμοούσιον in the Creed had been objected to. They said, with some show of reason, that it was going beyond the words of Scripture. After dealing with some difficulties, raised by the more determined antagonists of the Catholic doctrine, Gregory defends himself against the charge of Tritheism which even more moderate opponents did not hesitate to level against it, and then proceeds to examine the testimony of Scripture. In an interesting passage, he gives what he believes to be the reason for the reticence of Scripture with regard to the deity of the Holy Spirit, shewing that there is a gradual development of the divine revelation to suit the advancing capacities of those to whom it is given.

The doctrine of Gregory is of course not novel. Ullmann¹ rightly declares that his want of originality in this respect is one of his chief merits. The Orations of Athanasius against the Arians were, in particular, well known to him, and he frequently makes use of them, especially in clearing up objections drawn from Scripture. He was also familiar with the works of his friend Basil on the same subjects; though the Theological Orations owe a more direct debt to Basil's Hexaemeron than to his more dogmatic compositions. From the Hexaemeron Gregory derives much of the fine description of the wonders of nature which occupies the latter part of the second Oration.

The exegesis of Holy Scripture was considered in his own time to be one of Gregory's strongest points.

Jerome speaks of him as 'praeceptor meus, a quo Scripturas explanante didici1.' 'Gregorium Nazianzenum,' he says, 'et Didymum in Scripturis sanctis catechistas habui2' He speaks of having written a work at Constantinople 'cum...apud uirum eloquentissimum Gregorium Nazianzenum, tunc eiusdem urbis episcopum, sanctarum Scripturarum studiis erudirer3.' From the modern point of view, however, Gregory cannot be said to rank in this respect as high as some of his contemporaries. He had not the critical instinct of Basil. Basil, for instance, in arguing upon Prov. viii 224, dwells upon the facts that the expression "the Lord created Me," if attributed to our Saviour, would stand alone in Scripture; that the book in which it occurs is a book of enigmatical sayings, and not of theological statements; that the Hebrew word probably means "possessed" rather than "created"; that "created" is often used in other senses than that which the Euromians here affirmed<sup>5</sup>, and the like. Gregory, on the other hand, only discounts to a certain extent the authority of Solomon, mentions, but to reject it, Basil's view that the speaker in the passage is not the Eternal Word, but a personification of wisdom<sup>6</sup>, and then argues (after Athanasius) that the creation spoken of is the creation of the human nature which the Word assumed. There are other passages where Gregory shews both acumen and candour in his interpretations; but he does not often rise above the exegetical methods of his age.

It is in his lucid expositions of the doctrine of the Trinity that Gregory chiefly excels. By these it was that he won the title of "the Theologian." In simple and reverent language, without presumptuous over-definition, he enuntiates the traditional belief, as championed by Athanasius, in a way which became the law for future theologians. Sentence after sentence from Gregory is incorporated in the de Orthodoxa Fide of John of Damascus. Indeed the doctrine of the Trinity could not be better expressed than in such passages as iii 2, and v 9 and 10.

There is, however, one point in which Gregory's teaching requires to be read with caution. If his language were taken according to its strict grammatical sense, it might sometimes be pressed to mean that in the Incarnate Saviour a human person coexisted with the Eternal Word who had come down into our flesh, or had in some way been substituted for Him. The principal passages to which this caution refers are the following:

iii 18 τὰ μὲν ὑψηλότερα πρόσαγε τῆ θεότητι καὶ τῆ κρείττονι φύσει παθῶν καὶ σώματος, τὰ δὲ ταπεινότερα τῷ συνθέτῳ, καὶ τῷ διὰ σὲ κενωθέντι καὶ σαρκωθέντι, οὐδὲν δὲ χεῖρον εἰπεῖν, καὶ ἀνθρωπισθέντι.

Here indeed the danger is not great. No one could doubt that  $\delta$   $\kappa \epsilon \nu \omega \theta \epsilon i s$ ,  $\delta$   $\partial \nu \theta \rho \omega \pi \iota \sigma \theta \epsilon i s$ , is the same person to whom belongs the  $\theta \epsilon \delta \tau \eta s$ . But the contrast drawn is not exact. Gr. ought in strictness to have said  $\tau \dot{\alpha}$   $\delta \dot{\epsilon}$   $\tau a \pi \epsilon \iota \nu \delta \tau \epsilon \rho a$   $\tau \hat{\eta}$   $\sigma a \rho \kappa i$ , or  $\tau \hat{\eta}$   $\partial \nu \theta \rho \omega \pi \delta \tau \eta \tau i$ , or the like. The effect of the contrast actually drawn is to suggest that in the process of incarnation the personality was changed, or that a new personality was set up. The true doctrine of the unchanged personality could not, however, be more clearly stated than in the words which commence the section following.

iii 19 [ἄνθρωπος, ὁ κάτω θεός,] συνανεκράθη θεῷ, καὶ γέγονεν εἶς, τοῦ κρείττονος ἐκνικήσαντος, ἵνα γένωμαι τοσοῦτον θεός, ὅσον ἐκεῖνος ἄνθρωπος.

Here Gr. must be understood to mean that man, i.e. humanity, was united to God (i.e. to the Divine Son), and became One Person with Him. But the absence of an expressed subject to the verb συνανεκράθη makes it at first appear as if a personal subject were to be understood ("he was united to God"), which would be false. Τοῦ κρείττονος must be taken as neut., not masc., the method of the union being that the superior nature triumphed over the inferior. The last phrase has a danger of its own.

iv 1 τὰς μὲν ὑψηλοτέρας καὶ θεοπρεπεστέρας φωνὰς προσνείμαντες τῆ θεότητι, τὰς δὲ ταπεινοτέρας καὶ ἀνθρωπικωτέρας τῷ νέῳ δι' ἡμᾶς 'Αδὰμ καὶ θεῷ παθητῷ κατὰ τῆς ἁμαρτίας.

Here, as in iii 18, the suggestion is that of a change of personality in the Incarnation. The phrase suits Gr.'s poetical instinct, and no one could really mistake his meaning.

iv 2 ὧν ἕνεκεν ἐχρίσθη θεότητι· χρίσις γὰρ αὕτη τῆς ἀνθρωπότητος.

It would, of course, be inexact to speak of our Lord as being "anointed with Godhead." Probably Gr. intended  $\dot{\eta}$   $\dot{\alpha}\nu\theta\rho\omega\pi\dot{\sigma}\tau\eta s$  to be the actual subject of  $\dot{\epsilon}\chi\rho\dot{\epsilon}\sigma\theta\eta$ . This would be quite correct. But as he appears to make that  $\dot{\alpha}\nu\theta\rho\omega\pi\dot{\sigma}\tau\eta s$  itself speak, the effect is to erect the  $\dot{\alpha}\nu\theta\rho\omega\pi\dot{\sigma}\tau\eta s$  into a personal subject. The language implies that His humanity had an existence prior to the anointing, and that it was in fact the true seat of His personality. The same is implied in—iv 3 τί δὲ μεῖζον ἀνθρώπου ταπεινότητι ἢ θεῷ πλακῆναι, καὶ γενέσθαι θεὸν ἐκ τῆς μίξεως.

iv 7 τὸ γὰρ δὴ λέγειν ὅτι τοῦ κατὰ τὸν ἄνθρωπον νοουμένου μείζων [ὁ πατὴρ] ἀληθὲς μέν, οὐ μέγα δέ.

This seems to indicate that "He who is conceived of in accordance with the man" (i.e. with the human nature which He assumed) is a different person from Him who is conceived of in accordance with the Word, or with God. So in iv 8 οὐ τοῦ λόγου, τοῦ ὁρωμένου δέ...οὐ τοῦ ὁρωμένου, τοῦ λόγου δέ.

Here  $\tau \circ \hat{v}$   $\delta \rho \omega \mu \acute{\epsilon} \nu \circ v$  is evidently masc., and it implies (though Gr. certainly did not intend it to do so) that  $\acute{o}$   $\delta \rho \acute{\omega} \mu \epsilon \nu \circ s$  is one person, and  $\acute{o}$   $\lambda \acute{o} \gamma \circ s$  another.

iv 9 καὶ τοῦτο τῆς ἀνθρωπότητος· εἰ δὲ καὶ τῷ θεῷ δοίης, οὐκ ἄτοπον.

Whatever is predicated of the humanity of Christ is predicated of "the God" in Him, for there is no human personality of which it can be predicated. The true contrast would have been to say  $\epsilon l$   $\tau \hat{n}$   $\theta \epsilon \hat{o} \tau n \tau \iota$   $\delta o ins$ .

iv 10 εἴτε ὁ σωματικῶς ὁρώμενος...εἴτε ὁ ὡς λόγος νοούμενος.

The presence of the definite articles causes some confusion, as if "He that was seen in bodily wise" were a different person from "Him that is conceived of as the Word."

iv 12 εἰ μὲν οὖν μὴ παρὰ τοῦ κατεληλυθότος αὐτοῦ ταῦτα ἐλέγετο, εἴπομεν ἂν ὡς παρὰ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου τυποῦσθαι τὸν λόγον, οὐ τοῦ κατὰ τὸν σωτῆρα νοουμένου—τὸ γὰρ ἐκείνου θέλειν οὐδὲ ὑπεναντίον θεῷ, θεωθὲν ὅλον—ἀλλὰ τοῦ καθ᾽ ἡμᾶς [νοουμένου].

Here, besides the difficulty of the last clause, which makes  $\delta$  κατὰ τὸν σωτῆρα νοούμενος to appear to be a different person from  $\delta$  καθ' ἡμᾶς, we have the contrast between τὸ κατεληλυθός (i.e. the Godhead, or rather the Divine Person) and  $\delta$  ἄνθρωπος. The contrast is made all the more marked by the ἐκείνου in the parenthetical clause, and indeed by the whole of that clause, which sets "Him who is conceived of according to the Saviour," and His "wholly deified" will, over against "the man" and (it is implied) "the man's "will which was for the moment in conflict with God's. It is clear from the context that Gr. did not hold the theory of two persons in Christ, but only of two natures and two wills; but the language is inexact.

ίν 13 κατὰ κοινοῦ τῆς θεότητος ἦν ὁ λόγος.

Gr. says that the saying "to know Thee, the only true God," is addressed by Jesus Christ to "the Godhead in general," including, that is, the Son Himself. It would be hard to think of Christ addressing words of worship to the Eternal Son without supposing Christ to be one person and the Eternal Son another.

iv 21 ής ἔργον ἄνθρωπον ἀκοῦσαι τὸ χρίον, καὶ ποιῆσαι θεὸν τὸ χριόμενον.

It is not exactly true to say that "the anointing element" in Christ comes to be called man. The Blessed Person who may be said to anoint the humanity which He assumed is rightly called man, but His divine nature never became man, nor did the human nature which He "anointed" become God.

It cannot be denied that such passages indicate a want of clearness in Gregory's conception of the one person of Christ in two natures. He does indeed, as has been observed, sometimes state admirably the Catholic doctrine on the point; at other times his language thus wavers. It must be said on Gregory's behalf that the same ambiguities are to be found in other Catholic fathers,—for instance in Athanasius. And Gregory lived before the rise of the Nestorian heresy, which compelled the Church to arrive at a more conscious and definite belief with regard to the unity of Christ's person, and the impersonality of His human nature apart from the divine <sup>1</sup>.

II. THE TEXT.

The present volume does not profess to offer a complete critical edition of the Five Orations. According to our scheme, the texts in the series to which it belongs are to be based upon the best printed editions, though, where possible, recourse is to be had to the original MSS., and the chief various readings are to be noted.

In this case, however, the best printed edition, that is to say the Benedictine edition (1778—1842), proved to be so unsatisfactory, not only in regard to minor matters, such as accents and punctuation, but in regard both to the readings adopted, and to the critical notes, that I was compelled to form what is practically a fresh text. For this purpose, on a brief visit to Paris last year. I made a fresh collation, in part, of the two most important of the MSS. used by the Benedictines, denoted in the present edition by the letters "a" and "b". Owing to the shortness of the time at my disposal, I was not able to make the collation quite complete,—in some parts only taking note of the evidence of these MSS, in places where the Benedictine editors indicated that there were divergences of reading. I collated in the same way the MS. in the Library of Trinity College, Cambridge, here denoted by the letter "g", which has not been collated before. I further obtained, through the kind offices of Herr S. Riezler, a complete collation of the Munich MS. "c" by the hand of Dr C. Gleye. The Ms. has not been used before for any edition of Gregory. From the Rev. H. N. Bate, Fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford, and the Rev. K. Lake, Fellow of Lincoln College, I obtained complete collations of the various MSS. of any value preserved at Oxford. The readings of these MSS. had been to a certain extent recorded by Montagu in the 17th century, but Montagu's method renders his work useless for purposes of accurate criticism.

The MSS., therefore, upon which the present text is based are the following.

a. The Medicean MS. 510 in the Bibliothèque Nationale at Paris. (Omont i p. 66.) This fine codex is described in the Benedictine edition Vol. I. p. xi. It is written in uncial characters, on parchment, with a number of full-page pictures and well executed initials. It is denoted in the Benedictine edition by the letters "bm", which stand for Basil the Macedonian, because it contains a picture of that Emperor, represented as still reigning. As Basil died in the year 886, this gives us approximately the date of the Ms. It contains all the Theological Orations, together with all Gregory's other Orations, except that the last few lines of our Or. ii, and the first five chapters and a half of v, as well as the end of v, are missing.

b = Coislin LI, in the Bibliothèque Nationale at Paris (see Montfaucon's Bibliotheca Coisliniana p. 118). It is a folio MS. of the 10th century, presenting a text markedly different from that of "a". In the Benedictine edition it is "Coisl. I."

- c = Munich Cod. CCCCXLVIII. "Membranaceus,...in folio, sine titulis miniatis, litteris minutis et nitidissimis, cum marginalibus minutissimis alterius manus,...atramento flavescente, saec. x,...optime conservatus et inscriptus." (Hardt's Catalogus Codd. MSS. Graec. Bibl. Reg. Bavaricae tom. iv p. 394.) It contains all five Orations.
- d. I have used this letter to denote two different MSS. in the Bodleian Library. The first is Barocc. 218 which contains, of these Orations, only ii. It is described in Coxe's Catalogue as "Codex membranaceus, in 4to, saec. xi optime, minuto tamen charactere, exaratus." The other, which contains the three last, is Barocc. 181; "Codex membranaceus, in folio, saec. forsan xi, binis columnis, optime exaratus."
- e = Magdalen College, Oxford, (Greek) Codex V.—a parchment MS. in quarto of the 11th century (Coxe's Catalogus Codd. MSS. qui in Collegiis Aulisque Oxon. adservantur vol. ii p. 3).

f = Lincoln College, Oxford, (Greek) Codex XX.—a parchment folio, "saec. forsan xi exeuntis" (Coxe ibid. vol. i p. 12).

g = Trinity College, Cambridge, B. 9. 13. The book is lettered on the back as a volume of Chrysostom, but is really of Gregory. It is one of Bentley's MSS., brought from the monastery of Pantocrator on Mount Athos. It is written in a good clear hand, apparently of the beginning of the 11th century. The first 44 pp. contain our Orations iii, iv and v.

Many other existing MSS. contain these Orations, and ought to be examined with a view to obtaining the proper data for a critical edition. In the Bibliothèque Nationale alone there are eleven or twelve more MSS, containing them, besides "a" and "b", dating from the 10th and 11th centuries, not to speak of later ones. In the Vatican there are seven from the same period, besides a fragment of the vth Oration which is not later than the oth. These have not been used by any editors, although the Benedictines profess on their title page to have used them. The Laurentian Library at Florence contains two uncollated MSS. of the 10th century, the Library of the Escorial contains another, in which these Orations, in whole or in part, appear. Had I known how long my edition would be delayed, I should have endeavoured to obtain collations of at any rate the most important of these. With regard to the Basel MS., upon which I presume that the editions of Hervagius and Leuvenklaius were based, Dr Bernoulli kindly informs me that it is only of the 13th century.

The de fide Orthodoxa of St John Damascene contains many passages from these Theological Orations, but I have not observed any instance in which that work throws light upon a doubtful text of Gregory.

The commentaries of Elias of Crete are valuable, not only from an exegetical point of view, but as shewing what was the current text of his time. Extracts from his commentaries, with notes by A. Jahn, are printed in Migne's edition of Gregory (Patr. Graec. t. xxxvi). Jahn has successfully shewn that this Elias is not to be confounded with his namesake and fellow-countryman who attended the Second Council of Nicaea A.D. 787, but that he wrote in the middle of the 11th century.

The chief printed editions of Gregory's works—there is no separate edition, so far as I am aware, of the five Theological Orations—are those of Hervagius of Basel in 1550, of De Billy (Prunaeus) at Paris in 1569 and subsequent years accompanied by a Latin translation, of Leuvenklaius at Basel in 1571, containing selections from the commentaries of Elias and others, of Morel at Paris in 1630, and of the Benedictines of St Maur, of which the first volume, containing the Orations, was published in 1778. This last is reprinted in Migne's Patrologia, with the addition of Jahn's notes upon Elias. It is, perhaps, unnecessary to refer to French and German translations of Gregory. The scholarship of the only English translation with which I am acquainted, in Wace and Schaff Nicene and Post-Nicene Fathers, is unfortunately far below the level of that of Cyril in the same volume, and the student will do well to avoid a work which is only misleading.

In my apparatus criticus I have given in inverted commas the critical notes of the Benedictine edition, such as they are. Thus on p. 5, εξικνειται bd 'Or. 1 etc.' means that my own collations shew ἐξικνεῖται to be the reading of b and d, and that the Benedictine editors say that the same is the reading of 'Oratoire I' and of other MSS, which they leave unspecified.

When passages in these Orations themselves are referred to in the notes, they are given simply thus—ii 21, v 8; or, when another section of the same Oration is referred to, thus—§ 10. When the reference is to some other Oration of Gregory's, the number is given as in the Benedictine edition, with the word Oration (Or.) prefixed. Thus "Or. ii 23" does not refer to the second of these five Orations, but to that which stands second in the Benedictine edition of Gregory's whole works.

- 1. Gr. complains of the verbosity and contentiousness of his opponents, unlike the brevity of St Paul. He wishes they would turn their attention to practice.
- 1. πρὸς τοὺς ἐν λόγω κομψοὺς ὁ λόγος] The Eunomians prided themselves on their dialectical skill. Πρὸς is not 'against,' but 'addressed to'; 'My argument is addressed to those who are smart in argument.' There is a shade of sinister suggestion in the word κομψός.
- ib.  $d\pi d \tau \eta s \gamma \rho$ .] It is not Gr.'s usual custom to take a text.
- 2.  $l\delta\omega\delta \kappa\tau\lambda$ .] Jer. 1 31 (LXX. xxvii 31). The words added in  $\delta$  and by Elias appear to be an interpretative addition. But the omission of words clearly required by the sense a little below throws some doubt on the authority of acd when they omit

- these here. If genuine, the accusatives express the departments in which the Eunomians display their υβρις: 'O thou most proud—in training, and hearing, and disposition.' The ἀκοὴν anticipates the following reference to St Paul's words.
- 3. τ. ἀκ. προσκνώμενοι] 2 Tim. iv 3. St Paul's word is κνηθόμενοι. Gr. instinctively substitutes προσκν. to prepare more easily for τοις ἡμ. λόγοις, 'itching for our words.' Of course they 'itch' for them in a different sense from those of whom St P. speaks.
- 4. τ. χειρα] They are prepared to fight. Elias understands it of itching to write against Gr.
- 5. βεβ. κενοφ. κτλ.] 1 Tim. vi 20; 2 Tim. ii 16; cf. 1 Tim. vi 4 and 2 Tim. ii 14.

1. περιττὸν κ. περίεργον] perhaps 'excessive in volume, and over-subtle in character.' But the two words are practically synonymous; cf. 1 Tim. 13 φλύαροι κ. περίεργοι.

ib. τοῦ συντετμ. λόγου] Rom. ix 28; cf. Is. xxviii 22 (LXX.).

2. ὁ τῶν ἀλ. μαθητής κ. διδάσκα-λος] as distinguished from the professional training of the Eunomian disputants. It is a bold thing, in the face of Gal. i 12, to call St P. 'the fishermen's disciple': probably it is for that reason that Gr. adds 'and master.' He appears to have in view such incidents as Gal. ii 14; perhaps also the Pauline influence discernible in St Peter's Epistles.

4. δεινὴν ἐπιθ. κπλ.] <sup>c</sup>clever at the employment of noble and choice words. This way of using the comparative is familiar; it almost=nobilissimis quibusque uerbis.

5. οὔτω τι καί] biting irony. Even a little attention to conduct would make a great difference. 'Ασχολείσθαι=' to occupy oneself.'

6. και ἴσως] The phrase means (continuing the irony) that in that case the chances would not be very remote.

7. κυβισταὶ λόγων] ' rword-tumblers.' Κυβιστής (more usually κυβιστητήρ) is one who stands on his head, or turns head over heels, or (according to Elias) a diver. The reading κυβευταὶ 'dicers,' or 'sharpers' (cf. Eph.iv 14), would not suggest the 'ridiculous' image which Gr. half apologizes for using.

ib. ἄτοποικ. παράδοξοι] 'strange and astonishing.' "Ατοπος does not seem to be used here, as it often is, either in the sense of 'absurd,' i.e. unreasonable, or in that of 'monstrous,' i.e. wicked. Gr. only emphasizes the surprising nature of the feats which the Eunomians perform.

2. No part of society is free from their importunate wrangling; Christianity is in danger of becoming a matter of pettifogging logic. The opponents must give a fatherly heart leave to express its concern. If they are not moved by what he says, they will at least have the satisfaction of rejecting and deriding it. He does not intend to adopt their style.

9. καταλύσαντες] 'having destroyed' or 'broken up'; both for themselves and for their disciples. Εὐσέβεια is here practical piety.

ö τι δήσ. ἢ λύσ. τ. προβ.]
 They care for nothing but the opportunity of tying or untying some knotty proposition.

2. και των παλ.] 'And that too, not such wrestling matches as,' etc.

4. κλέπτει] 'takes unfair possession of the eye,' as opposed to the legitimate skill in wrestling.

ib. τὰ τοιαῦτα] acc. after ἀμαθῶν, 'not versed in things of the sort.'

ib. συναρπ.τ. ἐπαιν.] an extension of the metaphor of κλέπτει. 'Extorts applause,' lit. 'the applauder.'

5. περιβομβεῖσθαῖ] Βόμβος, origing the humming of bees, comes to be used of any insistent and continuous noise.

άποκναίεσθαι] 'to be disturbed,' or 'made tedious.' Demosthenes (564.
 has the expression ἀποκναίει ἀηδία καὶ ἀναισθήσια καθ' ἐκάστην ἐκκλησίαν ταῦτα λέγων, which Gr. perhaps has in mind.

8. παραμυθεῖσθαι συμφ. μ. τοῖς ζητήμασι] De Billy and others understand παραμ. = βαρύνεσθαι, comparing Job xvi. 2 παρακλήτορας κακῶν, which they take to mean 'abettors of nvy afflictions.' But this seems an unnatural sense to put upon the verb, and it would be hard to find a parallel example. Gr. prob. means that the worse calamity of their disputations relieves the lesser calamity of sorrow. The 'comfort' in Ezek. xiv 22, 23 is by some interpreted in this fashion.

10. ἀπλ. σύντροφον] 'associated with simplicity,' 'used to' it; a frequent use of the word.

11. ἀποσυλ, τ. π. λόγον ταχύτητι] cf. James i 19. To rush into argument is, in Gr.'s view, a desecration of the flower of womanly modesty. It is best to take ἄνθος as the object of ἀποσυλ., γυναικ. being the subject.

12. τεχνύδριον] a diminutive of τέχνη, like λογύδριον, χερύδριον, βι-βλύδριον, 'a little finicking profession.'

13. τὸ μέγα ἡ. μυστήριον] 1 Tim.

14.  $\kappa \alpha \tau \dot{\alpha} \sigma \kappa \sigma \pi \sigma i$ ] usually thought to be used instead of  $\dot{\epsilon} m i \sigma \kappa \sigma \pi \sigma i$ . But there is no indication that Gr. was chiefly thinking of heretical bishops.

15.  $\sigma \pi \alpha \rho$ .  $\tau \dot{\alpha}$  alo $\theta$ .] Jer. iv 19 (LXX.).

3. έλαλήσαμεν...έσχεν Gr. assumes that what he asks has been done, and looks back upon the result. The words are a quotation from Ecclus. xxv 9. 5. ὁ σπείρων τ. λ.] Mk iv 14.

6. και τοῦτο ἡμ. διαπτύσαντες] Cp. Orat. xxv § 18 διάπτυέ μοι τὰς ένστάσεις. 'Pouring contempt upon this utterance as you have done upon others of ours.' If they fail to get good, Gr. ironically says they will at least have the advantage of indulging in increased contempt for their opponents. 9. παράδοξον] i.e. what the Eunomians will consider to be such.

11. νεανικῶς] 'audaciously'; cp. iii 1. On Gr.'s lips of course it has an ironical meaning.

3. To speak on theological subjects belongs only to men prepared by deep study and by moral self-purification. It should be done only in seasons of calmness, before serious hearers; and the subjects should be such as the ordinary intelligence can grasp.

14. εὔωνον] 'so cheaply acquired.'
ib. τ. χαμαὶ ἐρχομ.] 'nor is it the property of those who go along upon the ground'; a common expression from Homer downwards.

17. διαβεβηκότων] Διαβεβηκώs is one who stands firmly planted upon both feet. Elias paraphrases by ήδραιωμένων, though he gives an alternative explanation.

19. τὸ μετριώτατον] 'to say the least of it.' For the thought, cp. Athan. de Inc. § 57.

1. τυχόν] 'perhaps not even free from danger.' The words are based upon Plato Phaed. p. 67 μη καθαρώ γὰρ καθαροῦ ἐφάπτεσθαι μὴ οὐ θεμιτὸν η.

ib. σαθρά] properly = σαπρά 'decayed,' 'corrupt,' but used in the sense of 'weak,' 'feeble.' Cp. § 5 and iii 6, where it is contrasted with lσχύν, lσχυροῖς. Hesych. σαθρά 'ασθενή, κεκλασμένα.

3.  $l\lambda \dot{\omega}$ os] lit. 'mud'; esp. in solution, the impurities which hinder a liquid from being clear. By  $\tau \dot{\eta}$ s  $\xi \dot{\xi}$ , l.  $\kappa$ .  $\tau a \rho a \chi \dot{\eta}$ s Gr. seems to mean the confusions and agitations of secular life.

ib. τὸ ἡγεμονικόν] 'the commanding faculty,' a technical word from philosophy, esp. Stoic philosophy, descriptive of the reason. See Plutarch de Plac. Phil. 898 Ε and 903 Β; also Cic. de Nat. Deor. II xi 29.

4. τύποις] 'impressions,' or 'images.' Μοχθηρὸς is a word of many shades of meaning. Here it appears to mean, not 'vicious,' nor 'unhappy,' but (like πονηροῖς just below) 'poor,'

'worthless,'—'worthless and roving imaginations.'

5. κάλλη γραμμάτων] So Plut. speaks of κάλλη οίκοδομημάτων = καλὰ οίκοδομήματα.

 σχολάσαι κ. γν. θεόν] Psalm xlv (our xlvi) 10. The καὶ γνῶναι has the force of 'and so to know,'

'in order to know.'

7. ὅταν λάβ. καιρόν] Psalm lxxiv 3 (lxxv 2). Not at all times, but only when we 'receive the opportunity,' can we 'judge according unto right' in matters of theology.

 διὰ σπουδῆs] sc. ἐστὶ. 'To ruhom it is a serious thing, and ruho do not make this also, like other things, a subject of light conversation.'

10. τοὺς ἱππικούς] sc. ἀγῶνας, οτ perh. δρόμους.

12. ἐρεσχελlα] 'disputing for fun,' esp. with a view to provoking, as distinguished from 'talking in earnest.'

13. Tha] neut. plur.; 'on what subjects?'

ib. ἐφικτά] 'within our reach.'
 14. ἔξις] appears to mean 'skill,'
 'acquired power.'

4. τοις στερροίς των λόγων | Though Gr. is fond of the partitive gen. (oi στερροί τῶν λόγων = οἱ λόγοι οἱ στερpol), it seems best here to suppose τοιs στ. to be neut., 'the solid qualities of our discourses.' Perh. Gr. is still using the metaphor or simile of food. It would seem to suit καταπιεσθέντες κ. βαρυνθέντες as well as τοι̂ς στερροι̂ς. Cf. Heb. v 12 (στερεά τροφή).

6. ζημ. καὶ εἰς τ. ά. δ.] The εἰς does not denote the extent of the damage, but the quarter in which it is felt. Over-strong meat not only fails to increase the vital forces of those to whom it is administered; it even impairs those which they possessed. Cp. v 26.

4. It is always right to think of God; but not always suitable to discourse of Him.

8. ἐπιφυέσθωσαν] ἐπιφύειν is 'to plant upon'; hence in pass. 'to fasten upon and cling to,' like hounds upon a quarry. Plutarch frequently uses the word in this way; e.g. Lucull. § 1 έπιφυομένους, ώσπερ θηρίοις εύγενείς σκύλακας. Gr. uses it again in v 11.

ib. οί π. εὔκολοι] ' reho are always (lit. in all points) so agile and quick.' Εύκολος (cp. δύσκολος), from κόλον, 'diet,' means originally one whose food agrees with him. Hence it comes to be used for facility in any direction. Plato Legg. 942 D uses the substantive in the sense of bodily activity, which (metaphorically applied) is the sense here.

9. μνήμον. κτλ.] 'It is more necessary to remember God than to breathe?

11. των έπ. εἰμί] ' am one of those who approve.'

ib. μελετάν ήμ. κ. νυκτός] Psalm i 2 (Josh. i 8).

12. έσπέρας κτλ.] Psalm liv 18 (lv 17).

ib. ωσπερ ἀσεβές] 'as though it were wrong in itself.' The reading εὐσεβές, though well attested, appears to be the result of misunderstanding. It would mean, 'nor do I forbid theology, if done in a godly manner.'

4. την ἀμετρίαν] Nor is it the function of a teacher that I object to, but want of judgment in the exercise of it.

ib. η μέλιτος κτλ.] Prov. xxv 16. καίπερ όντος μ., 'honey though it be,' i.e. the best of things in itself.

6. τὸ καλὸν οὐ κ.] The saying is quoted as a proverbial one (ὅ φασιν) in the Clementine Epitome § 18.

7.  $\alpha\nu\theta$ os  $\dot{\epsilon}\nu$   $\chi$ .] rather a curious instance to choose,—as if people would object to flowers in winter.

9. πένθει γεωμ.] Geometry was, so Maximus suggests, a recreation and a joy. Indeed, according to him, it formed part of the musical curriculum, and as such is included in the warning of Ecclus. xxii 6. After this suggestion Max. gives up the enquiry into Gr.'s meaning. Perhaps it was not necessary to go so far into it. Gr. is only taking examples of irksome incongruity.

ib. ἐνταῦθα δέ] 'And shall we in this case alone disregard "the time"?'

5. We should not discuss theology before the heathen. They turn our dissensions into a defence of heathenism, and come down upon our weaknesses like flies upon a sore. They would themselves rather die than divulge their mysteries. We must learn the decencies of speech.

13. οὐκ ἀδελφικῶς ἔχ.] 'although so unbrotherly disposed.' Cp. Aug. Serm. ccclvii 4, Quiduis dicas, quantumlibet oderis, ut placuerit detesteris, frater meus es.

14. θερμοί κ. δυσκάθεκτοι] θ. is 'wild,' 'excited'; δυσκ. (from κατ-έχειν), 'hard to hold in.' Xenophon uses it in the same sense.

15. ἐπιβάτην] more usually signifies 'a rider'; but here the metaphor άγχουσαν εὐλάβειαν ἀποπτύσαντες, πόρρω τῆς νύσσης θέωμεν άλλ' είσω των ήμετέρων όρων φιλοσοφωμεν, καὶ μη είς Αίγυπτον εκφερώμεθα, μηδε είς 'Ασσυρίους κατασυρώμεθα, μηδε άδωμεν την ώδην κυρίου επί γης άλλοτρίας, 5 πάσης ἀκοῆς λέγω, ξένης τε καὶ ἡμετέρας, ἐχθρᾶς καὶ φιλίας, εὐγνώμονος καὶ ἀγνώμονος, ἡ λίαν ἐπιμελῶς τηρεῖ τὰ ἡμέτερα, καὶ βούλοιτο ἂν τὸν σπινθῆρα τῶν ἐν ἡμῖν κακών γενέσθαι φλόγα, έξάπτει τε καὶ ἀναρριπίζει καὶ εἰς ούρανον αίρει ταις παρ' έαυτης αύραις λανθάνουσα, καὶ 10 ποιεί της Βαβυλωνίας φλογός τὰ κύκλω καταφλεγούσης ύψηλοτέραν. ἐπειδή γάρ οὐκ ἐν τοῖς ἑαυτῶν δόγμασιν έχουσι την ἰσχύν, ἐν τοῖς ἡμετέροις σαθροῖς ταύτην θηρεύουσι, καὶ διὰ τοῦτο, ώσπερ αἱ μυῖαι τοῖς τραύμασιν, is probably taken from a chariot race, and  $\epsilon \pi \iota \beta$ , will mean 'the man in the chariot,' i.e. the driver. The word is elsewhere used in a more restricted sense, of the man who fights in a chariot, not the driver; but it is evidently not so intended here.

 ἄγχουσαν] lit. 'throttling,' 'strangling'; here 'restraining.'

ib. ἀποπτύσαντες] lit. 'spitting out,' i.e. 'getting the bit out of our mouths.' It is used by other authors of the same action.

ib. πορρωτης νύσσης θέωμεν] 'dash wide of the turning-post.' Nύσσα (Lat. meta) is the  $\kappa \alpha \mu \pi \tau \dot{\eta} \rho$ , or post, round which the chariot turns to do the second lap of the blavhos. Naturally, it ought to be barely euitata

2.  $\epsilon$ ἴσω  $\tau$ .  $\dot{\eta}\mu$ .  $\ddot{\rho}\rho\omega\nu$ ] The metaphor begins to change; and Gr. means, as the following words shew, 'within the Holy Land,' i.e. within the Church. The Egypt and Assyria are the heathen world,—not, as Elias and others take it, heretical Christians.

3. ἐκφερώμεθα...κατασυρώμεθα] The metaphor of the runaway chariot seems not to have wholly disappeared. There is, of course, a reference to such passages as Hos. ix 3. 4. την ώδην κ.] Psalm cxxxvi (cxxxvii) 4.

5. πάσης ἀκοῆς λέγω] 'I mean any and every hearing.' 'Ακοῆς is grammatically in apposition to  $\gamma \hat{\eta}s$ .

6. εὐγνώμονος κ. άγν.] 'sympathetic or unsympathetic.' This seems from the context to be the intended meaning; but it would be equally in accordance with the usage of the words to understand (as Elias does) 'sensible and senseless.'

ib. "| very naturally refers only to the ἀκοὴ ἀγνώμων, or the γῆ ἀλλοτρία.

7. τὰ ἡμέτερα...τῶν ἐν ἡμ. κακῶν] The heathen and unconverted keep a watch upon Christians, and make the most of anything among them that is wrong; 'would like the spark ... to become a flame.'

8. ἀναρριπίζει] 'fans it up'; from piπis, 'a fan.

9. λανθάνουσα] i.e. without our seeing what they are about.

10. της Βαβ. φλογός] Dan. iii 23 (LXX.).

11. δόγμασιν] 'received opinions'; used of heathen beliefs in general,possibly of the doctrines of heathen philosophers in particular.

1. οὕτω τοῖς ἡμετέροις] agrees with ἀτυχήμασι, ἀμαρτήμασι,—the sentence being interrupted for rhetorical effect: 'to our—am I to call them misfortunes or mistakes?'

 μὴ ἐπὶ πλεῖον ἡμ. αὐ. ἀγν.] 'any further be ignorant of our own selves.' Our enemies know us, while we do not know ourselves, or see the consequences of what we are doing.

3. το περί ταῦτα κ. ἀτιμ.] 'disregard what is seemly in these questions,' i.e. by disputing before the world. Cp. τον καιρον άτιμ. supra.

among themselves.

5. μυστικῶς τὰ μυστικά] We have unfortunately lost in English the primary meaning of a 'mystery,' so that the words can only be paraphrased;—'to utter what concerns the secrets of religion in religious secrecy.'

Mυστικῶς is used in liturgical Greek for 'in a whisper.'

.6. μὴ ἡίπτειν κτλ.] Cp. Matt.

7. ἀποφαίνωμεν] 'Αποφαίνειν in late Greek often='to make.' But here 'to prove' would give an equally suitable meaning.

8. προσκυν. τοῖς δ.] προσκ. in the later Greek governs dat. or acc. indifferently; e.g. John iv 23 πρ. τῷ πατρί...τοὐς προσκυνοῦντας αὐτόν. Just below we have πρ. τὰ πάθη.

10.  $\lambda \delta \gamma \omega \nu \ \tilde{\epsilon} \sigma \tau \iota \nu \ \tilde{\omega} \nu] = \tilde{\epsilon} \nu l \omega \nu, \ \hat{\epsilon} \sigma \nu \delta \nu$

14. το φιλονεικον] 'let our very contention be subject to law.' The whole of Gr.'s Or. xxxii is on Moderation in Discussion.

6. The heathen world, with its base mythology, is not in a position to understand the niceties of Christian theology. It must inevitably attach unworthy meanings to the phraseology which it hears us use.

1. γέννησιν...κ. κτίσιν] The one is an orthodox word and the other a heretical one; but Gr. deprecates the using of both alike before a promiscuous public.

ib.  $\theta$ εον έξουκ ὅντων] The Arians affirmed that the Son έξ οὐκ ὅντων ἐγένετο, but of course denied that He was in the full sense θεός. Gr., however, is speaking of the effect produced upon the heathen by the varying language of professing Christians.

2. τομήν κ. διαίρεσω κ. ἀνάλυσω] These are not to be taken (as Elias and others take them) as technical terms of theology; nor are they strictly parallel to the first three accusatives after ἀκούει. The ἀκροατής hears of 'begetting' and 'creation'; he hears' 'dissection and division and analysis.'

4.  $\kappa\alpha\theta[\zeta_0\mu\epsilon\nu]$  as in 1 Cor. v 4. 6.  $\epsilon\pi\alpha\nu\hat{\omega}\nu]$  inasmuch as he attributes such actions to the gods.

8.  $\dot{o} \chi \theta \dot{e} s \kappa \tau \lambda$ .] Gr. does not mean that he no longer worships those gods, but rather that he has not worshipped them very long. The heathen is accustomed to making new gods.

9. οὐχ ὑλικῶs] He cannot but put a material construction upon such language. Āμαθῶs will mean 'grossly.'

10. συνήγορον] He will turn what you say about God into an advocacy of his own deified passions.

12. ταις φωναίς τ. ἐπηρεάζομεν]
The Eunomians 'maltreated these expressions,' by maintaining that, because the Son is begotten, the Father must have existed before Him. At the same time Gr. does not acquit his own party of a similar misuse of terms, as is seen by what follows, though in their case the misuse lay in a different direction.

13. φιλ. ἐν τοῖς ἡμετέροις] τοῖς ἡμ. is prob. neuter, 'in our quarters,' 'in our school'; but it may be masc., 'among our adherents.' In either case, of course, it means, 'to adopt and use our system of thought.' The term φιλοσοφία was early applied to Christianity. See Melito αρ. Eus. Hist. Eccl. IV xxvi 7 ἡ καθ' ἡμᾶς φιλοσοφία.

παρ' έαυτῶν εἰσὶν ἐφευρεταὶ κακῶν, πότε ἂν τῶν διδομένων ἀπόσχοιντο; ταῦτα ἡμῖν ὁ πρὸς ἀλλήλους πόλεμος. ταῦτα οἱ πλεῖον ὑπὲρ τοῦ Λόγου μαχόμενοι, ἢ ὅσον ἀρέσκει τῷ Λόγῳ, καὶ ταὐτὸν πάσχοντες τοῖς μαινομένοις, οἱ τοὺς ἰδίους οἴκους ἀνάπτουσιν, ἢ τοὺς παῖδας σπαράττουσιν, 5 ἢ τοὺς γονέας περιωθοῦσιν, ὡς ἀλλοτρίους νομίζοντες.

1. ἐφευρεταὶ κακῶν] Rom. i 30.

ib. των διδομένων] the evil things that we give them. Gr. means, no doubt, disrelish for divine truth, which Christians set forth so unattractively.

2. ταθτα] sc. ἐστίν. 'This is what our war of Christian against Christian comes to,' 'this is what comes of it.'

3.  $b\pi \epsilon \rho \tau$ . A.] Catholics were to blame, in Gr.'s estimation, as well as heretics.

4. ταὐτὸν πάσχοντες τ. μ.] The idiomatic use of πάσχειν, 'to be in a given frame of mind'; almost='behaving like.'

5. ἀνάπτουσιν] like ἐξάπτει above,

'to set on fire.'

περιωθεῖν] 'to push about,' i.e. to treat with violence and indignity.
 So in Or. in Jul. I Gr. says τοὺς ἐμμένοντας τῆ ὁμολογία περιωθῶν.

7. Why should we contend as we do? There are plenty of other things to occupy our thoughts, the exercises of philanthropy, and devotion, and self-discipline. But we not only neglect these ourselves; we give other men license to sin, if by that means we can get their support in our party warfare.

7. τὸ ἀλλότριον] Gr. does not say τοὺς ἀλλοτρίους, i.e. the heathen. He means the false and heathenish element which had been introduced into Christian language. Τοῦ λόγον, however, depends on ἀπεσκ., not on τὸ ἀλλ.

8. εls τὴν ἀγ. τ. χ.] Mark v 9 foll. By the 'Legion' Gr. means the gross and unworthy spirit which had instigated the contentions which he has been deploring.

ib. ἀπεπ...κατὰ βυθῶν χωρήσαντα] 'We have sent it away and it has gone.' Κατὰ βυθῶν answers to the κατὰ τοῦ κρημνοῦ of the Gospels; but it appears to be influenced by the remembrance of εἰς τὴν ἄβυσσον of Luke viii 31.

9. δ δεύτερον ἐστι, πρός] The relative looks on to what follows:

'the next thing is, to.'

10. ὤσπερ ἀνδριάντα] Cp. Plat. Κερ. II § 5 ὡς ἐρρωμένως ἐκάτερον, ὥσπερ ἀνδριάντα, ἐκκαθαίρεις.

12. γλωσσαλγία] A classical word for 'talkativeness,' much used by Gr.

ή καινή νόσος αύτη καὶ ἀπληστία; τί τὰς χείρας δήσαντες τας γλώσσας ωπλίσαμεν; ου φιλοξενίαν έπαινουμεν; ου φιλαδελφίαν, οὐ φιλανδρίαν, οὐ παρθενίαν, οὐ πτωχοτροφίαν θαυμάζομεν; οὐ ψαλμωδίαν, οὐ πάννυχον στάσιν, οὐ 5 δάκρυον; οὐ τὸ σῶμα νηστείαις ὑποπιέζομεν; οὐ δι' εὐχῆς πρὸς θεὸν ἐκδημοῦμεν; οὐ τῷ κρείττονι τὸ χείρον ὑποζεύγνυμεν, τὸν χοῦν λέγω τῷ πνεύματι, ὡς αν οἱ τῷ κράματι δικαίως δικάζοντες; ου μελέτην θανάτου τον βίον ποιούμεθα; οὐ τῶν παθῶν δεσπόται καθιστάμεθα, μεμνημένοι 10 της ἄνωθεν εύγενείας; οὐ θυμὸν τιθασσεύομεν έξοιδοῦντα καὶ ἀγριαίνοντα; οὐκ ἔπαρσιν καταβάλλουσαν, οὐ λύπην άλογιστον, ούχ ήδονην άπαίδευτον, ού γέλωτα πορνικόν, ούκ όδιν άτακτον, ούκ άκοην άπληστον, ού λόγον άμετρον, οὐ διάνοιαν ἔκτοπον, οὐχ ὅσα παρ' ἡμῶν ὁ πονηρὸς καθ' 15 ήμων λαμβάνει, τον διὰ των θυρίδων, ώς ή γραφή φησιν,

1. τàs χ. δήσαντες] 'though our hands are tied.'

2. οὐ φιλοξ. ἐπαινοῦμεν; The string of questions which follows is intended to shew the inconsistency of this γλωσσαλγία with the occupations which it is assumed that Christians are following.

3.  $\pi \tau \omega \chi o \tau \rho o \phi l a \nu$  Gr.'s Or. XIV is  $\pi \epsilon \rho l \phi \iota \lambda o \pi \tau \omega \chi l a s$ . The zeal of his friend Basil in that direction is well known: see De Broglie L'Église et l'Empire t. v p. 186 (3rd ed.).

4. πάννυχον στάσιν] Cp. Ór. xlii 26 χαίρετε, Ναζαραίων χοροστασίαι, ψαλμωδιών άρμονίαι, στάσεις πάννυχοι. The word στάσις appears to correspond to Lat. statio, in the sense of 'a service.' It is derived from the custom of standing for prayer.

5. ὑποπιέζομεν] 'crush down,'

'suppress.'

6. πρ. θεδν ἐκδημοῦμεν] Cp. 2 Cor. v 6 foll., - 'leave the world behind and sojourn with God.'

7. τὸν χοὖν] ι Cor. xv 47; Gen.

ib. οι τω κράματι δ. δικάζοντες] The kpaua is the human compound of soul and body, or 'dust' and 'spirit.' Upon this, i.e. upon the rival claims of the constituent elements, man has to pass judgment.

10. της ἄνωθεν εύγενείας] Perh.

with reference to John iii 3.

11. ἔπαρσιν καταβάλλουσαν] ·sc.

τιθασσεύομεν. Cp. Prov. xvi 18 and similar passages.

15.  $\delta i \dot{\alpha} \tau \hat{\omega} \nu \theta \nu \rho (\delta \omega \nu)$  Jer. ix 21. The same interpretation is given by Greg. Nyss. de Dom. Orat. v, by Ambrose de Fuga Saec. § 3 and in Psalm. cxviii Exp. vi § 20, and by Jerome adv. Fovin. II p. 202 (Mart.). It became the traditional interpretation. Cp. Greg. ib. μèν οὖν]=immo, 'nay.' So far from ruling our own passions, Gr. says, we give license to those of others.

3. ἐπινικίους ἀφέσεις] Elias understands it of the manumission of slaves; but a more usual form of celebrating a triumph was to release prisoners, and that is prob. the com-

ib.  $\mu b \nu o \nu \ a \nu$ ] This is the sole condition of the release, that they should tend to promote our cause. Gr. is prob. referring to the way in which, in his time as in other times, the sins of powerful patrons were treated with complaisance. Of course he has the Arians chiefly in view. They laid themselves open to the charge; and it is of them esp. that Gr. uses the expression  $\kappa a \tau \lambda \theta \epsilon o \nu \phi \epsilon \rho$ , 'to rush against God.'

5. τῆς ἀσεβείας τὴν παρρησίαν] ἀσεβ. is in apposition to οὐ καλοῦ πρ., τὴν παρρ. to  $\mu$ ισθόν. In exchange for their serviceable impiety, they are allowed to sin unrebuked.

8. There are 'many mansions' above, and they are reached by many ways, though in one sense the many ways are the one strait and narrow way. Why should we leave all the other ways for the way of controversy?

8. σὺ δὲ ἀπόκριναι] Job xxxviii

9. χρηματίζων] 'to answer' when consulted, esp. as an oracle. It is not the word used in Job xxxviii 1 (LXX.), but it occurs in the similar passage xl 3 (8).

ib. πολλαί μοναί] John xiv 2.

'Akoveis = ' you are taught.'

10. δώσεις] 'you will grant.' 13. ὅ τί ποτε θήσεις] like δίδωμι,

13. ο τι ποτε υησείς] Ιπε οιοωμ, used in a logical sense; 'what you will affirm this "mansion" to be.' Ταύτην τὴν μονήν is a somewhat curious use of the singular. It is a kind of attraction for τοῦτο τὸ μονήν, i.e. 'the word μονὴν in this connexion.'

ib. ωs ὁ ἐμὸς λόγος] 'as I main-

5. τὸ διαφόρους κτλ.] The 'mansions' vary as the lives which men live (πολιτείαs) and the aims which they set before themselves (προαιρέσεις). It is somewhat tempting, in the context, to understand προαιρέσεις of 'schools of thought.' Lucian (Demon. § 4) speaks of al ἐν φιλοσοφία προαιρέσεις. (Cp. the use of αἴρεσις.) But the other is perh. the simpler.

6. κατὰ τὴν ἀναλογίαν τ. π.] Rom. xii 6. These various types of life and pursuits are like so many roads. They do not lead to the same place. The places to which they lead differ 'according to the proportion of faith,' i.e. are suited to the various degrees and forms of religious principle by which men come to them.

8. εὶ μὲν οἶόν τε τὸν αὐτόν] The man under examination replies that, if it were possible, it would be well for the individual to follow all the roads, i.e. to combine in himself all characteristic pursuits and moral activities which lead to the various 'mansions'; failing this, to combine as many as he can; but excellence in any one of them is a great achievement.

14.  $\delta i \dot{\alpha} \tau o \dot{\nu} s i \delta \rho$ .  $\kappa \tau \lambda$ .] because of the effort it demands, and because few are found able to tread it, in comparison of the great number who take the contrary direction, and who walk in the way of vice. The  $\kappa a \dot{\nu}$  couples the antecedent of  $\delta \sigma a to \tau \dot{\omega} \nu \dot{\nu} a \nu a \tau t d \nu a \tau d \nu a$

3. ὥσπερ τ. πενίαν καταγν. τ. ἡμ. λόγον] καταγ. τί τινοs is to find something to somebody's disadvantage: 'why do you profess to have found our principles poor?'

5. πρός μίαν ταύτην] not, of course, the μία όδὸς στενή spoken of above-which included πάσας τὰς ἄλλας ὁδούς, -but a single branch of that road. Gr. grants that the road of the διαλεκτικός is not a bad road, if it were properly pursued; but it is, as he has compelled the opponent to admit, a loss to follow that one road to the exclusion of all others, and so to forfeit the 'many,' and perh. the better, mansions. This is indeed to incur a mevla, unknown to the faithful followers τοῦ ἡμετέρου λόγου. Gr.'s conception of the 'many mansions,'all attainable to the individual, not successively, but by walking simultaneously along many roads which lead to them, is a conception difficult to grasp, but suggestive of a noble fulness of living energy.

ib. ώθεισθε] 'crowd along,' 'force your way in a herd'; Theocr. xv

7. ἀδολ. κ. τερατείαs] 'Αδολεσχία is 'idle chattering': Elias explains τερατεία by το πλάττειν ἄτοπά τε και ἀλλόκοτα, 'saying extraordinary things to electrify people.' Cp. Ar. Νυβ. 418. The verb τερατεύεσθαι comes below in § 10.

8. ἀπαρίθμησιν] 'enumeration.' 1 Cor. xii 29. It is a little strange that Gr. should select a passage where St Paul is insisting on the limitation of spiritual gifts, and their assignment to the various members of the Church, instead of being accumulated upon each. But prob. Gr. does not concern himself with the context of the passage, and intends the 'rebuke' to apply to the διαλεκτικόs inasmuch as he gives himself the airs of an 'apostle' or a 'prophet.'

9. ἐν οἶs φησί] 'where he says.' It seems best not to make χαρισμάτων the antecedent of ols.

9. However exalted you may be yourself, you cannot make other people theologians suddenly. That, however, is what you profess to do, and then you crowd Councils with the conceited rabble that you have collected.

11.  $\xi \sigma \tau \omega \delta \dot{\epsilon}^* \dot{\nu} \cdot \sigma \dot{\nu}$ ] Assuming that you have the gifts which you imagine, why do you make such a bad use of them? In  $\dot{\nu}\psi \cdot \pi \dot{\epsilon} \rho \alpha$  it is

3. αὐθήμερον πλ. ἀγίους] It is assumed, from their setting up as theologians, that they have passed through the moral discipline which Gr. requires before so doing (p. 4 supra); but the discipline must have been hurried through 'all in a day.'

ib. χειροτονεῖς θ....ἐμπνεῖς τ. π.] The same thought carried on. These men's theology has come to them, not by long study and careful training, but by a touch or a breath. Xειρ. prob. alludes to the act of laying on of hands in Ordination, though Gr. does not necessarily imply that the men had been actually ordained. The word, however, may perh. only mean 'elect', 'appoint.' In either case the process is characterized as both arbitrary and sudden.

4.  $\dot{\epsilon}\mu\pi\nu\epsilon\hat{\imath}$  Elias supposes a ref. to such passages as Gen. ii 7 or Job xxvii 3. If the allusion to ordination in  $\chi\epsilon\imath\rho$ , were secure, it would be natural to connect  $\dot{\epsilon}\mu\pi\nu$ , with John xx 22 ( $\dot{\epsilon}\nu\epsilon\phi\dot{\nu}\sigma\eta\sigma\epsilon\nu$ ). There is no evidence, however, that any ceremony of breathing was used in Gr.'s time in ordaining; and it seems simpler to regard the word as denoting only a quick and miraculous way of imparting the knowledge of divine things.

5.  $\pi$ .  $\sigma v \nu \epsilon \delta \rho \iota \alpha$ ] So equipped, the theologians pass to those 'multitudinous councils' which were the chief feature of Church History in the fourth century. Gr., as is well known, had no high opinion of councils at the best (Stanley Eastern Church p. 74). Aoylw points both to the assurance with which these men spoke, and to the source of their inspiration ( $\epsilon \mu \pi \nu \epsilon \hat{\nu} s$ ).

6. ἐνδεσμεῖs] a rare word; 'to put in bonds.' The 'spider's webs' are of course the dogmatic subtleties by which they entangle weak opponents. Cp. Orat. xxv § 18.

7.  $\sigma\phi\eta\kappa\dot{a}s$ ] He does not seem to refer again to the heathen; it is the heretics themselves who swarm out against the faith,—the same who are described in the next sentence as  $\delta\iota a\lambda$ ,  $\delta\nu\dot{a}\delta\sigma\sigma\nu$ .

8. σχεδιάζειs] The verb denotes what is hastily prepared out of the first materials that come to hand, 'to improvise.' It thus returns to the accusation that Gr.'s opponents had had no proper training.

ib. δ. ἀνάδοσιν] 'Αναδίδωμι is to 'yield,' as the earth yields a crop, or the spring a volume of water. Thuc. iii 88 uses it of Aetna, πῦρ κ. καπνὸν ἀναδ. So ἀνάδοσις is an 'σιτριτί' or 'σιτριτικών of course is masc., 'dialecticians.'

ib. οι μ....τ. γίγαντας] A con-

'Αντιλέγεις καὶ τούτοις; καὶ οὐδαμοῦ σοι τἄλλα; καὶ τὴν γλῶσσαν δεῖ δυναστεύειν πάντως, καὶ οὐ κατέχεις τὴν ἀδῖνα τοῦ λόγου; ἔχεις καὶ ἄλλας ὑποθέσεις πολλάς τε καὶ φιλοτίμους. ἐκεῖ τρέψον μετὰ τοῦ χρησίμου τὴν νόσον.

tracted expression; 'as the old fables did with the giants,' meaning, 'as the old fables said that the Earth brought forth the giants.' It explains the metaphor of ἀνάδοσιν. The giants, however, are referred to not only because they sprang out of the Earth, but because they waged war upon the gods.

 τῶν ἀνδρῶν ὅσον κ.] 'everything that is worthless in the shape of men.'

2. συρφετόν] like περίψημα, 'offscourings, 'sweepings.'

ib. χαράδραν] may be either the 'torrent' itself, or the 'channel,' natural or artificial, down which it pours. Here perh, the former is the simplest; the 'offscourings' form a 'torrent'; but the metaphors are somewhat entangled.

3. κολακεία] They were ἄνανδροι to begin with; and the flattery which they receive from their leaders makes them worse.

ib. καιν. ἀσεβ. ἐργαστ. ἐδημ.] 'you have created a strange kind of manufactory.' The heretical leaders have set up in business, as it were; their plant and factory consisting of their dupes. The stress of the sentence does not lie on the products of the ἐργ. (i.e. ἀσεβείαs), but on the fact that the leaders make a living by it.

ἐκκαρπούμενος] 'profiting by.'
 If you cannot be silent, turn your argumentative powers to use by refuting the various schools of heathen philosophy, the absurdities of heathen worship and magic. Or if you prefer something more original and constructive, give us a philosophy of your own, or speak of points of Christian doctrine where there is no great harm done if a mislake is made.

6. καὶ τούτοις] i.e. as you oppose everything else that we say. Cp. the beginning of the sermon.

ib. οὐδαμοῦ σ. τἄλλα] 'Do you care for nothing else?,' i.e. than talking, and talking controversially.

7. δυναστεύειν] not here over others, but over the man himself.

His tongue is his tyrant.

ib. την ἀδῖνα τ. λ.] Cp. the somewhat similar image in Job xxxii 18 foll.

8. ὑποθέσεις] 'subjects,' 'themes';

Lat. argumenta.

9. φιλοτίμους] We too transfer the epithet 'ambitious' to the subject from the man who deals with it. But the usage does not occur commonly in Greek.

το. βάλλε] 'strike.' The unsympathetic attitude here assumed towards the schools of Greek philosophy does not represent the whole mind of Gr. and his friends. It is only assumed for arhetorical purpose.

ib. την σιωπήν] "The Pythagorean school is represented to us not merely as a scientific association, but also, and principally, as a religious and political society. Entrance into it was only to be obtained by a strict probation, and on condition of several vears' silence." "The duration of the silent noviciate is variously given." Zeller Pre-Socratic Philosophy I p. 342 (Engl. Transl.), where this ref. of Gr. may be added to those given by Zeller.

1. τοὺς κυάμους τ. 'Ορφικούς] "According to later accounts, the Pythagoreans of the higher grade [lived] in obedience to a minutely prescribed rule of life...This...enjoined ... entire abstinence from ... animal food, from beans and some other kinds of nourishment." Zeller op. cit. p. 343 f. "Whether these ordinances," he adds, "originated with the Italian Pythagoreans, or only belong to the later Orphics of Pythagorean tendencies; whether consequently they arose from Pythagoreanism or from the Orphic mysteries, we do not certainly know." Zeller speaks of "the early connexion of Pythagoreanism with the Bacchic Orphic mysteries" (p. 347, first note).

ib. Αὐτὸς ἔφα] "They rigorously maintained the doctrine of their master, and silenced all opposition with the famous dictum αὐτὸς ἔφα": Zeller p. 350. Gr. calls this κ. άλαζ.

'an extraordinary piece of swagger.'
2. τὰs ἰδέαs] 'Plato...defines the Idea as that which is common to the Many of like name...This Universal he conceives as separate from the world of Phenomena, -as absolutely existing Substance...The Ideas stand as the eternal prototypes of Being-all other things are copied from them"; "archetypes, according to which Divine Reason fashioned the world": Zeller Plato and the Older Academy pp. 239 foll., 244.

3. μετενσωματώσεις κ. περιόδους] 'his transincorporations and circulations of our souls.' See Zeller op. cit. ch. ix. "At their first birth, all [souls]...are implanted in human. and male, bodies; only their lots vary according to their merit. After death, all are judged, and placed for a thousand years, some as a punishment under the earth, some as a reward in heaven. This period having elapsed, they have again to choose, -the evil as well as the good, -a new kind of life; and in this choice, human souls pass into beasts, or from beasts back into human bodies" (p. 303).

4. ἀναμνήσεις Plato taught that our souls bring with them into their earthly existence knowledge acquired in a previous state of existence. "If ...concepts and cognitions [of an universal kind] are given us before any presentation has been appropriated, we cannot have acquired them in this life, but must have brought them with us from a previous life. The facts of learning and of conceptual knowledge are only to be explained by the pre-existence of the soul." Zeller p. 395.

5. ἐπὶ ψυχήν] 'directed to,' 'reaching as far as,' and so 'concerned with the soul,' i.e. of the beloved, although it may profess to be unconcerned with the body. "Love...is realised in a graduated series of different forms. The first is the love of beautiful shapes,—of one, and then of all: a higher step is the love of beautiful souls, which operates in moral words and efforts, in works of education, art, and legislation: a third is the love of beautiful sciences," etc.:

Zeller p. 194; cp. p. 507.

ib. ἀθείων]=ἀθεότητα. The atheism of Epicurus was of a practical, rather than theoretical, nature. He did not deny the existence of gods, but their interference in the affairs of men. See Zeller Stoics, Epicureans, and Sceptics p. 464 foll.

1. ἀτόμους] Épicurus, whose view of the universe was purely materialistic, taught the eternal existence of those "primary component parts of things" which he called 'atoms.' See Zeller ορ. εit. p. 439 foll.

ib. ἡδονήν] "The only unconditional good, according to Epicurus, is pleasure; the only unconditional evil is pain": Zeller p. 473. By ἀφιλόσοφον Gr. means "unworthy of a philosopher." On the character of 'pleasure' as understood by Epicurus, see Zeller p. 476 foll.

2. τ. μικρολόγον πρόνοιαν] "Aristotle's philosophy excludes the conception of God's immediate interference in the course of the universe; and it would be illegitimate to attribute to Aristotle the popular belief in Providence": Zeller Aristotle and the Earlier Peripatetics I p. 422 (cp. p. 403 and II p. 328). The epithet μικρολόγον would more naturally apply to a providence concerned with petty details; Gr. seems to intend it in a kind of passive sense,

'of which mean things are said.' Cp. θνητούς λόγους just below.

ib. ἔντεχνον] 'the artificial character of his system.' Gr., as a master of rhetoric, prob. has chiefly in view Aristotle's work on Rhetoric, at the beginning of which the word ἔντεχνος frequently occurs.

ib. θνητοὺς π. ψ. λόγους] 'his mortal language about the soul.' "It is impossible to say that Aristotle taught a doctrine of personal immortality. He taught merely the continued existence of thinking spirit, denying to it all the attributes of personality": Zeller op. cit. II p. 134.

3. ἀνθρωπικόν] hardly distinguishable here from ἀνθρώπινον: 'the purely human character of his determinations,' i.e. the absence of anything divine in his teaching.

4. δφρύν] Lat. supercilium,

'haughtiness.'

ib. Κυνῶν] applied to the Cynics as early as Arist. Rhet. III x 7.

ib. τὸ λίχνον κ. ἀγοραΐον] 'the greed and coarseness.' Zeller Eelecticism p. 290 speaks of the "coarse and rude behaviour" of the later

Cynics, "their extortions and impositions, and, despite their beggarly life...their covetousness." 'Αγοραΐον, cf. Acts xvii 5.

5. το κενόν, το πλ. τ. ληρ.] oxymoron; 'emptiness, full of absurdities'

7. θεαγωγίας, ψυχ.] 'the calling up of gods, and of souls.'

1. τερατεύονται] Cp. τερατεία above, p. 15.

2. ἀπαξιοῖς λ.] 'think unworthy of treatment.'

ib. ἐληλεγμένα] from ἐλέγχω.

3.  $\tau \dot{\alpha} \ \sigma \dot{\alpha}$ ] It is difficult to see why the subjects which Gr. classes under this headshould be so described any more than many of the foregoing. It does not seem to mean 'Christian subjects,' rather than heathen; which would more naturally have been called  $\tau \dot{\alpha} \dot{\gamma} \dot{\mu} \dot{\mu} \dot{\tau} \tau \rho \dot{\alpha}$ ; and besides, such a subject as  $\ddot{v} \lambda \eta$  has nothing distinctively Christian in it. Prob. Gr. means 'stick to a line of your own,' as distinguished from being guided by the movements of an adversary.

ib. τὸ ἐν τ. φιλότιμον] 'an ambitious subject in that line': cf.

5. κόσμου ἢ κόσμων] 'the world or worlds.' Gr. seems to have entertained the notion of a 'plurality of worlds.'

ib. ΰληs] 'matter'; no doubt Gr. means concerning its nature, origin, and the like.

λογικῶν φύσεων β. τε κ. χ.]
 Elias rightly understands Gr. to mean good and bad angels.

8. ἐπιτυγχ...διαμαρτ.] 'to hit,'

'to miss.' It certainly seems strange that Gr. should consider it almost a matter of indifference whether a man were right or wrong upon such matters as the last four which he has mentioned. But this is evidently the sense which is required. Prob. he supposed that it was not possible to go far wrong on such subjects. Any interpretation of 'recompense,' for instance, which was not really a denial of recompense, would be harmless in comparison with the teaching upon the nature of Christ to which Gr. was accustomed from the Eunomians.

ἐντευξόμεθα] used with a reference to ἐπιτυγχ, just before. Even if we make a few mistakes on points of subordinate importance, 'we shall meet and converse with God.'

10. δλίγα] does not seem to be often used in the plur, in this adverbial sense. It appears to suggest the various occasions on which a little of such intercourse is vouch-safed. In the contrasted clause, μικρὸν qualifies τολεώτ., 'soon after,' 'perhaps more perfectly,'—the ίσως suggesting a modest doubt concerning our share in the great revelation.

16. ἀμπελῶνες μ.] Cant. ii 15 ἀλώπεκας μικρούς ἀφανίζοντας ἀμπελῶνας. Gr. joins μικρούς with ἀμπ. instead of ἀλώπ., understanding the sentence to denote the meanness of the 'foxes' (i.e. jackals), which did not venture to attack the large vineyards, and spoiled the small ones instead.

ib.  $\pi \lambda \alpha \xi l... \lambda \iota \theta (\nu \alpha \iota s)$  Ex. xxiv 12. A somewhat difficult turn in the application of the narrative. Gr., or rather his  $\lambda \delta \gamma o s$  as identified with him, has ascended the mountain, with a view to having impressed upon him, or upon it, the teaching of God, as the Commandments were upon the tables of stone. The epithets  $\sigma \tau \epsilon p \rho a s \tilde{c} s$  intended to convey the thought of something lasting,—no transient impression.

5. ἀμφοτέρωθεν] Ex. xxxii 15. Again a somewhat fantastic application. One side of the tables is seen—one part of the λόγοs is understood—by every one; but there is a reverse which only few can read, viz. those who succeed in reaching the mountain top  $(\phi\theta\dot{\alpha}\nu\sigma\iota\sigma\iota\nu)$ . This use of  $\phi\theta\dot{\alpha}\nu\epsilon\iota\nu$  is familiar in the N. T.

point from which we may observe and study God, without being overwhelmed by the greatness of the revelation. The glories of the Divine Nature are tempered for us, as it were, by the Human Life which encompasses us as we look out from it to the Divine. By the Incarnation, our field of contemplation is at once restricted and made clear.

1. διακύψας] 'peering through the aperture.' Είδον must be supplied again before φύσιν.

2. την πρώτην] In ref. to Ex. xxxiii 20 οὐ δυνήση ἰδεῖν μου τὸ πρόσωπον. 'Ακήρατος practically, if not etymologically, = ἀκέραιος 'pure,' 'unmixed.' Cp. Arist. de Μαιαδο ii 5 στοιχεῖον ἀκ. τε καὶ θεῖον. Gr. adds  $\lambda$ . δ. τη τριάδι lest he should suggest the Sabellian notion of a self-conscious Nature distinct from the Persons in whom it resides.

3. τ. πρώτου καταπ.] i.e. as reckoned from the seat of the Divine Presence, not as in Heb. ix 3 in the order of human approach.

4. ὑ. τ. χερουβίμ συγκ.] It seems more natural to suppose that Gr. refers to the Cherubim covering the Mercy Seat (Ex. xxv 20 [19]), than to the decoration of the veil (Ex. xxvi 31). Cp. Ezek. xxviii 14, 16, where, however, there is nothing in most texts of the LXX. to represent 'covering.'

5. τελευταία] to recall τὰ ὀπίσθια.

ib.  $\dot{\eta}$   $\delta \dot{\epsilon}$ ] Gr. does not of course mean to distinguish sharply between the  $\pi \rho \dot{\omega} \tau \eta$  and  $\tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \upsilon \tau a l a$   $\phi \dot{\omega} \sigma \iota s$ , as if they were separate natures. He means the expressed and unexpressed parts or aspects of the same nature. The danger of misunderstanding is not felt in Greek, where words like  $\pi \rho \dot{\omega} \tau o s$ ,  $\mu \dot{\epsilon} \sigma o s$ , and the like, are commonly used in a partitive sense; e.g.  $\dot{\sigma} \pi \rho \dot{\omega} \tau o s \pi \sigma \dot{\omega} s$  'the front of the foot.'

6. ὅσα ἐμὲ γινώσκειν] sc. πάρεστι. ib. ὑπ' αὐτοῦ] sc. τοῦ θεοῦ, to be supplied from θεοῦ τὰ ὀπίσθια above.

8. μεγαλοπρέπεια] used of God nine times in the Pss.; μεγαλειότης is not. Prob. Gr. refers esp. to Ps. viii 2 (1), ciii (civ) I (in some texts), cx (cxi) 3, or cxliv (cxlv) 5, 12, where the word is used in connexion with God's works. Gr. prefers the word because it expresses not the abstract quality, like μεγαλειότης, but the impression produced by its manifestation.

9. ὅσα μετ' ἐκεῖνον ἐκ. γνωρ.] 'all the indications of Himself which He has left behind Him.' Elias compares Wisd, xiii 5.

4. To form an adequate conception of God is even more impossible than to express it when formed. It is doubtful whether even angels can do it.

14.  $o\dot{w} \dot{\kappa} \dot{\tau} \dot{\epsilon} \chi \nu \omega s$ ] Plato thus artfully insinuates, in Gr.'s opinion, that he has himself apprehended what he says is so difficult to apprehend, and at the same time escapes exposure by saying that it is inexpressible  $(\tau \hat{\omega} \dot{\alpha} \nu \epsilon \kappa \phi \rho_{*})$ .

17. ἀδυνατώτερον] because if only the conception could be formed, expression would be comparatively easy. Cp. Novatian de Trin. § 4 nomen Dei edici non potest, quoniam non potest nec concipi.

4. μὴ ὅτι] 'not to speak of,' cp. § 11. Καταβεβλ. from βλάξ, which is thought to be a collateral form of μαλακόs, 'slack,' 'enfeebled,' 'enervated.'

6.  $\gamma \epsilon \nu \nu \eta \tau \hat{\eta}$  ] not= $\gamma \epsilon \nu \eta \tau \hat{\eta}$  'created,' for Gr. goes on to speak of the higher created intelligences as a separate class afterwards; but strictly 'begotten' or 'born,' i.e. existing under physical conditions, the effect of which is described in the following clause.

7.  $\epsilon \pi \iota \pi \rho \circ \sigma \theta \epsilon \hat{\epsilon}$ ] The verb is formed from the adv.  $\epsilon \pi \iota \pi \rho \circ \sigma \theta \epsilon \nu$ : 'to be in front of,' so 'get in the way of.' Wyttenbach collects many instances of its use in his note on Plut. de Recta Aud. Ratione p. 41 C.

ib. σαρκίον] the diminutive expresses depreciation.

8.  $\pi \rho \dot{o}$ s] 'in reference to,' 'when it comes to a matter of.'

ib. οὐκ οίδα δέ, εἰ μή] of course in-

10. τυχὸν ἂν καὶ τρανοῖντο] Τρανόω, a favourite word of Gr.'s, usually = 'to make plain' (e.g. § 20). But as τρανόs is sometimes used in the more active sense of 'clear,' i.e. of penetrating intelligence (e.g. Wisd. vii 22), it seems best to understand τρανοῦντο here in that way, 'gifted with insight and intelligence.'

12. ἐκτυπώτερον] 'more expressly,' 'distinctly.'

5. The works of God are beyond our present comprehension, much more Himself; we can only affirm for certain that He exists.

14. κείσθω] 'be dropped.' He does not wish to pursue the question with regard to the superior intelligences: το δὲ τρ. 'but as concerning us.'

6. Of His existence the order of nature assures us. We are forced to think of a Creator when we look upon Creation, as the sight of a lyre makes us think of the lyre-maker. But beyond that, we have no certainty.

4. συνεκτικήν] from συνέχειν, 'to maintain in harmony': cp. Col. i 17 τὰ πάντα ἐν αὐτῷ συνέστηκεν. So Xen. Cyrop. 8 p. 140 [οι θεοί] τὴν τῶν ὅλων τἡνδε τάξω συνέχουστω ἀτριβῆ. For the construction, τὴν  $\pi$ .  $\pi$ . alτίαν is strictly (with θεόν) the subject of εἶναι. The def. art. is used in the same way as in participial sentences like εἰσὶν...οὶ τ. ἀκ. προσκνώμενοι (above, p. 1); where our idiom rather puts 'a' than 'the'; 'that there is a God and a creative cause.'

5. ὁ φυσικὸς νόμος] Gr. does not here mean 'natural law' in our modern sense, although such an use might readily be paralleled. The explanatory clause below shews that he does not mean 'the law which we observe in the natural order around us,' but the natural consequence upon ourselves of the observations which we make. Cp. below ταῖς φυσικαῖς ἀποδείξεσιν.

ib. προσβάλλουσα] 'lighting upon.' 6. κ. πεπηγόσι] πέπηγα (from πήγνυμι) has the intrans. sense, 'to be fixed.' Κ. πεπ. κ. όδ. κ. κιν. κ. φερ. are predicates of τοῖς όρ.; 'seeing them fixed' etc.

8. συλλογιζόμενος] When we see the order in nature the natural result upon ourselves is to infer the existence of an ἀρχηγός i.e. 'author.'

The latter makes the best parallel to  $\delta \alpha \nu$ .; it is also used in this sense by Herodian 6 (9, 10)  $\dot{\omega} s$   $\dot{\epsilon} \nu$   $\dot{\delta} \psi \epsilon \sigma \nu \dot{\eta} \nu$  'when he came in sight.'

2. ἀγνώμων] here 'unreasonable,' 'deficient in sense.'

3. κ. ταῖς φ. έπ. ἀποδ.] The καὶ joins ἐπόμενος to ἐκουσίως, not to προιών.

4. ἀλλ' οὐδὲ τοῦτο] a very difficult passage. The usual interpretation makes alla answer to the un in μη προιών, 'who will not go as far as this, but (says) that not even this, which we have imagined, is God.' But it is harsh to supply the necessary φάσκων or ὁμολογῶν in order to make the clause grammatical; and a comparison with the sentence in § 12, where Gr. resumes his thread after a long digression, seems to shew that we must assign an entirely different meaning to the present sentence, -and one which will accord better with grammatical requirements. In § 12 Gr. says that the proposition from which he had started was τὸ μὴ ληπτὸν είναι ανθρωπίνη διανοία τὸ θείον, μηδέ όλον όσον έστι φαντάζεσθαι. Here, accordingly, we must suppose, that it is Gr. himself, and not the λίαν άγνώμων, who denies είναι θεὸν ὅπερ έφαντ. It is, he says, very unreasonable not to accept the natural proofs of God's existence, and in following them we are compelled to form certain great outlines of a conception of God (e.g. creative power, rational method, etc.), which we cannot doubt to be correct. But even this is not the same thing as to identify  $(\epsilon \hat{\imath} \nu \alpha \imath \delta \pi \epsilon \rho)$  God with what we have imagined, or figured to ourselves, or what our reason has delineated. Toῦτο is the subject of ἐστὶν understood, of which  $\epsilon l \nu a \iota \theta$ .  $\kappa \tau \lambda$ . is the predicate. While we have ἀποδείξεις for the one belief, we have none for the other.

5. ὑπέγραψεν] Cp. I Pet. ii 2I ὑπογραμμόν 'a sketch,' 'outline.'

The rare word περίνοια appears to denote an embracing in thought, a mental taking in of the subject. Τούτου sc. θεοῦ 'If ever anyone in any degree has attained to an understanding of Him, what proof is there of the fact?'

14.  $\sigma \epsilon \pi \tau \acute{\nu}$  from  $\sigma \acute{\epsilon} \beta \epsilon \sigma \theta \alpha \iota$ , 'an object of devotion.' Gr. does not mean that the fact of being  $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \gamma \rho \alpha \pi \tau \acute{\nu}$  would by itself preclude being  $\sigma \epsilon \pi \tau \acute{\nu}$ , but that all that is connoted by  $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \gamma \rho \alpha \pi \tau \acute{\nu}$  would.

up of the whole thing.

ib.  $\sigma \dot{\nu} \theta \epsilon \sigma \iota s$ ] The blending of different elements introduces a possibility of conflict, and so of division, and so of destruction; which is unthinkable in connexion with Him who, if He exists at all, must be the πρώτη φύσις, or primary existence, into which no earlier existence enters. Elias observes that the 'Platonic' form of the argument is particularly applicable to the heretical dialecticians whom Gr. has in view.

5.  $\dot{\epsilon}\kappa \tau \hat{\omega}\nu \tau \epsilon \lambda$ .] In other words, the contention that God is not 'a body' is proved by a reductio ad absurdum.

8. Besides, if God were corporeal, His corporeity must involve either the denial of all other corporeities, or His interpenetration with them. Even on the supposition of a 'fifth element' which might be identified with His corporeity, He would be made subject to motion and to space.

ib. πλακήσεται κτλ.] πλακ. from πλέκω 'to weave,' so 'entangle,' 'involve.' It is a somewhat strange use of the simple verb; but Gr. has elsewhere  $\theta \epsilon \hat{\omega}$  πλακήναι και  $\theta \epsilon \hat{\omega}$  γενέσθαι  $\hat{\epsilon}$ κ τῆς μίξεως. 'Αντιπ.' 'bring into juxtaposition.' What Gr. understands by the two words is explained by the comparison with mixing liquids.

1.  $\tau \circ \mu \epsilon \nu \tau \epsilon \mu \nu \epsilon i$ ] sc.  $\delta \theta \epsilon \delta s$ ; the fut.  $\tau \mu \eta \theta$ . shews that Gr. is no longer thinking of the liquids, though no doubt it was the comparison with them which caused the pres.  $\tau \epsilon \mu \nu \epsilon \iota$ . The supposed interpenetration of the  $\sigma \hat{\omega} \mu \alpha$  of God with other  $\sigma \hat{\omega} \mu \alpha \tau \alpha$  necessitates constant breaches of continuity in both.

3.  $\gamma\rho\alpha\omega\delta\dot{\epsilon}\sigma\tau\epsilon\rho\sigma\nu$ ] Cp. 1 Tim. iv 7. The words which follow in some authorities must be an ancient gloss. If they belonged to the text at all, they must needs come in after  $\tau\mu\eta\theta\dot{\eta}\sigma\epsilon\tau a\iota$ , where (apparently) no Ms. places them.

ib. διαπεσεῖται] 'fall through,'
'come to nothing'; Plat. Phaed. 80 C.
The subject of διαπ. is ὁ π. τ. σ.

4. σῶμα οὐχ ἔξει] It is difficult in English to keep up the play on the word σῶμα. Gr. means of course that the argument for a corporeal existence of God proves unsubstantial: it has no  $\pi \hat{\eta} \xi \nu$ , 'solidity' (cp.  $\pi \acute{\alpha} \gamma \iota \iota \iota \iota$ ).

5. εἰ δὲ ἄνλον] ἀ priv. and ὕλη. The protasis is broken up into εἰ μὲν τὸ πέμπτον and εἰ δὲ ἄλλο τι παρὰ τὸ πέμπτον. Then the first apodosis is broken up likewise into ἔστω μέν and εστὰ πίος.

ib. τὸ πέμπτον] The reference is to the Aristotelian conception of a "quintessence," or fifth "element," besides earth, air, fire and water. Cp. Bas. Hex. i 11.

7.  $\ell \sigma \tau \omega \mu \ell \nu$ ] Gr. is willing to assume for the moment that there is such a thing as the imagined quintessence:  $0 \psi \delta \ell \nu \nu \nu$  diologyau, 'I will not now differ.'

8. κατὰ τὴν αὐτόνομον κτλ.] Almost each word here requires annotation. Λόγος is 'the word σῶμα,' or perhaps ἀσώματον σῶμα. Φορὰν at first sight seems to refer to τὴν κύκλω φ. just above; but there is prob. no such play upon the word intended. Gr. seems to employ it in the sense of 'usage.' Although no other example of the subst. in that sense is at hand, the verb is not infrequently so used. Gr. has διὰ γλώσσης φέρειν 'to speak often of.' 'Αναπλάττειν and its derivatives are frequent in Gr. Sometimes the prep.

κατά τί δὲ τῶν κινουμένων ἔσται καὶ φερομένων, ἵνα μὴ λέγω την ύβριν, εί τὰ αὐτὰ τοῖς πεποιημένοις ὁ πεποιηκώς κινηθήσεται, καὶ τοῖς φερομένοις ὁ φέρων, εἴ γε καὶ τοῦτο δώσουσι; τί δὲ τὸ τοῦτο πάλιν κινοῦν; τί δὲ τὸ τὸ πᾶν 5 κινούν; κάκείνο τί; καὶ τί πάλιν ἐκείνο; καὶ τούτο εἰς άπειρον. πως δε οὐκ έν τόπω πάντως, εί γε φερόμενον; εί δὲ ἄλλο τι παρὰ τὸ πέμπτον φήσουσιν, εἰ μὲν ἀγγελικόν, πόθεν ὅτι ἄγγελοι σώματα, καὶ τίνα ταῦτα; καὶ πόσον ύπερ άγγελον είη θεός, οῦ λειτουργός άγγελος; εί δὲ 10 ύπερ ταῦτα, πάλιν εἰσήχθη σωμάτων ἐσμὸς ἀλόγιστος, καὶ φλυαρίας βυθός, οὐδαμοῦ στηναι δυνάμενος.

has its full force, 're-construction,' 'fashioning afresh,' as for ex. in baptism; sometimes it is simply 'to fashion,' 'imagine.' Thus he speaks of matter (ύλην) as ὑποστᾶσαν έξ οὐκ όντων, κάν τινες άγέννητον άναπλάττωσιν. So here he seems to mean the 'shaping' which the Aristotelians put upon the word, with a slight suggestion of its being a factitious and not the legitimate construction. This is further expressed by calling it αὐτόνομον, 'their independent,' i.e. arbitrary, 'use and construction of the word.'

1. κατὰ τί] Gr. seems to mean 'in what respect,' i.e. 'by virtue of what part of its being, will this  $\pi \epsilon \mu \pi \tau \sigma \nu$ , which is identified with the  $\sigma \hat{\omega} \mu \alpha$  of God, take its place among the things which move and revolve?' It is, however, he says, a υβρις, a wanton affront, to assign such a place to God at all, whatever may be the answer to his question.

4. δώσουσι] 'will grant': τοῦτο, sc. that God is ὁ φέρων.

ib. τι δὲ τὸ τοῦτο π. κινοῦν τοῦτο = τ δ π ϵ μπτον: it (viz. God) moves other things, and itself moves with them; what then moves it? The  $\tau \delta$  $\pi \hat{a} \nu$  which follows will then include the thing which sets τὸ πέμπτον in motion.

6.  $\epsilon \nu \tau \delta \pi \omega$  Motion is a change of space-relations, and therefore implies a local position.

7. εἰ δὲ ἄλλο τι] The other alternative (viz. that the  $\sigma \hat{\omega} \mu \alpha$  of God is not the  $\pi \epsilon \mu \pi \tau \sigma \nu$ ) is again confronted with a dilemma; εἰ μὲν ἀγγελ., εί δὲ ὑπὲρ ταῦτα.

8.  $\pi \delta \theta \epsilon \nu \ \delta \tau i$ ] 'ruhence comes the belief that,' 'how do they know that?'

ib. πόσον...είη] In better Greek there would of course be an av: 'how far would God excel an angel?'

10.  $\epsilon l \sigma \dot{\eta} \chi \theta \eta$ ] The aor. gives a liveliness to the argument: the logical consequences are represented as having taken actual effect; as in i 2.

ib. ἐσμός] 'a swarm,' said to be derived from ίημι. 'Αλόγιστος = 'innumerable,' though its possible sense of 'irrational' may perh. have suggested to Gr. the 'abyss of nonsense' which follows. Στῆναι, 'to stop.' It is not clear why the notion that God's (supposed) σωμα is superior to angelic bodies should 'again introduce a countless swarm of bodies.' Perhaps by πάλιν Gr. only means that this notion is in that respect no

8. τί γὰρ ὅντι αὐτῷ] The κατὰ τὴν φ, is to be taken with ὑπάρχει, not with ὁντι. matic use of  $\tilde{\eta}$  suggests the alternative, 'deny this if you can; or let us take it as self-evident and pass on.' The passage which follows is characterized by Gr. himself (in § 11) as σκολιόν και γριφοειδές. Editors, therefore, and translators may be excused if they have made nonsense of it by wrong punctuation and by impossible renderings. The drift, however, is plain enough. Gr. places his opponent in a dilemma. If the Divine Being is located in a section of the universe, it is circumscribed by something relatively small (τοῦ τινόs=the supposed section, έλάττονος in comparison with τδ  $\pi \hat{a} \nu$ ); a notion which is manifestly absurd. If on the other hand it is located in the universe at large, vet still (ex hypothesi) within the universe, then, though the thing which circumscribes it is relatively great (πλ. καὶ ἄλλου πολλοῦ= 'greater thanother great things'), yet none the less it is as much circumscribed as in the former case. This follows from the very statement that τὸ θεῖον is 'in' the universe, which at once involves the relation of the thing containing to the thing contained (grammatically τὸ περιεχόμενον is in apposition to the subject of  $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \gamma \rho \alpha$ φήσεται, and τοῦ περιέχοντος to έλάττονος τοῦ τινός and to πλείονος respectively). To complete the argument, however, it is necessary to postulate (εl...μέλλοι) that the universe is not positively infinite but contained within itself if within nothing else, and that as it consists of space-relations it cannot be exempt from the possibility of circumscription. (The grammar of the last clause is apparently irregular, and some word like  $\chi \rho \dot{\eta}$  must be supplied from μέλλοι; but it is possible that Gr. intends μέλλοι to stand absolutely and impersonally in both clauses (='it is to be a fact'), making To  $\pi \hat{a} \nu \pi \epsilon \rho \iota \sigma \chi$ . acc. and inf., like  $\mu$ . τόπον είναι).

The past tense  $(\hat{\eta}\nu$ ,  $\dot{\epsilon}\nu\dot{o}\dot{\eta}\theta\dot{\eta})$  in the pregnant Greek idiom refers back to the moment when the opponent is supposed to have adopted the conclusion.

whole phrase  $0i\kappa$  à.  $\sigma$ ύγκρατον, not merely to  $\sigma$ ύγκρ., unless we are to suppose that Gr. at first intended to say instead of  $\dot{\alpha}\phi$ ετον  $\tau$ . olov  $\gamma$ ., 'detached from that which generates it, so to speak,' some word like  $\sigma$ ύνδετον, 'connected with.'

i. μὴ τὸν ἐν ἄλλω] Mὴ here expects the affirmative answer: 'is it not?' We cannot think of νοῦς as existing independently, but as a faculty of something or some one.

2. οὖ κινήμ. τὰ δ.] not 'whose movements are thoughts,' but 'whose movements thoughts are.' The point is that we cannot imagine thoughts, uttered or unuttered, without some kind of movement, which involves a change, in the mind which thinks them.

4. χεόμενον] The word is often used of producing a sound. Gr. uses it here to bring out the notion of dissipation inseparable from utterance. He shrinks however from saying 'dissolved,' 'perishing' (λυόμ.), because, although the sound comes to an end, there is a sense in which the 'word' remains. What Gr. means by  $\lambda \nu \delta \mu \epsilon \nu \nu \nu \nu$  is made clear by iv 17  $\lambda \nu \epsilon \nu \mu \delta \nu \nu \mu$ .

5.  $\tau \dot{\eta} \nu$   $\ddot{\epsilon} \xi \nu \gamma$ ,  $\kappa$ .  $\tau$ .  $\dot{\epsilon} \nu$   $\tau$ .  $\theta \epsilon \omega \rho$ .] Wisdom can only be conceived of as a 'habit' (the Aristotelian word) of some personal subject, and occupied upon some object. It cannot be conceived of as isolated and self-existent.

7. διαθέσεις] In the same way 'righteousness,' 'love,' are 'dispositions' of a person, not abstract things; and for us they derive their meaning from a contrast with their opposites. They are, moreover, constantly changing, and the subject in which they reside varies accordingly.

1.  $\tau$ ls οὖν  $\dot{\eta}$   $\mu$ .  $\kappa\tau\lambda$ .] By what contrivance, he asks, can we construct an imagination of God out of these materials and yet not identified with them? How can we use words like 'light' and 'love' to help us in representing Him to our minds, and yet eliminate from the representation notions which are of the very essence of 'light' and 'love' as known to us?—The sentence is elliptical: n μηχ. is not the φαντασία which we attempt to form ἐκ τούτων: in full it would be something like  $\tau$  is  $\dot{\eta} \mu \eta \chi$ . έκ τούτων τε συλλέγεσθαι φ. κ. μ. τ.

2. η πωs τ. π.] Supposing the difficulty last stated to be surmounted, how can we reconcile the thought of God's absolute unity with that of a combination of separate images, even when these images are carried to their perfection?

3. κάμνει ' rvearies itself...so long as it investigates.'

σφαδάζουσα] 'to plunge,' like a restive horse.

9. δεύτερον π. πλοῦν] a wellknown proverb, like 'trying the second string.' The mind finds itself unable to comprehend God, but it cannot give up trying. Two alternatives lie before it; either to fall into idolatry, or to use nature as a suggestion of what is above nature.

10. κακώς είδυῖα] 'and it makes a great mistake.

15.  $\zeta \eta \mu \iota \omega \theta \hat{\eta} \nu \alpha \iota \theta$ . It was the fear of this ¿nula, as Gr. has said, which led to idolatry (in the wide sense of the word); and by idolatry they incurred it.

Some, impatient of the struggle, sink into worship of natural objects, or of images.

13.  $\tau$  is  $\dot{\eta}$  κοινωνία] If this is the right reading, of course it is 'what is this partnership?' i.e. whence came it? If we read  $\tau$  is  $\kappa$ , κοιν  $\kappa$ . συμφ.  $\kappa$ . συμπν. must be in apposition to the  $\tau$  is before  $\xi$ μ $\xi$ ε, 'who combined and distributed them?' what partnership and union and concord between them?'

15. τὸν εἰρηκότα] 'him who said it.' There is no reason to think that the words which follow are a direct quotation. Nor indeed are the foregoing, but they seem more likely to have had their origin in a reminiscence of something that Gr. had read than the comparatively colourless words which follow. It is harder, however, to say, whom Gr.

means by τὸν εἰρ. Elias refers to Oppian Halieut. ἱ 412 οἴη σὺν φιλότητι διακρίνας ἐκέδασσας αἰθέρα τε, κτλ. Jahn prefers Plato Tim. 35 a foll. The resemblance is not very close; but in Tim. 32 C occur words which come somewhat nearer. The 'body of the world,' Plato there says, was formed of the various elements δι' ἀναλογίας ὁμολογῆσαν, φιλίαν τε ἔσχεν…els ταὐτὸν αὐτῷ ξυνελθύν. Perh. Opp. comes the nearer to Gr.'s language.

2. λόγον ἐνθείs] Gr. does not mean (like Plato) that the universe is conscious of the law by which it acts.

3. διεξάγεται] seems simply to mean 'is conducted.' Cp. in Iulian.

i 12 διὰ κύκλου τινὸς εὐθύνων καὶ διεξάγων τὸν ἄπαντα κόσμον.

5. τῷ αὐτομάτω] 'to chance.'

10. πᾶσι σύμφυτος] not exactly = ἔμφυτος, but 'naturally bound up with'; like συνημμένος (from συνάπτευ) just after.

17. Hereafter we shall know as we are known; here, the most privileged attain to a knowledge which is only relatively great.

15. άλλ' el μέν] 'but whether man will ever find.'

19. τῷ οἰκείῳ] 'with that to which it belongs': Vaughan's 'spirits their fair kindred catch.' Cp. § 12 sub fin.

3. φθάνον εἰs, 'reaches.'

18. Enos, Enoch, Noe, Abraham, Facob, though so highly favoured, never saw God as God.

9. ἤλπισεν] Gen. iv 26 (LXX.) οδτος ἤλπισεν ἐπικ. τὸ ὄνομα κυρίου τοῦ θεοῦ. Even to call upon His name was beyond the present powers of Enos: he only succeeded (τὸ κατορθ.) in hoping to do it. Ἐπικ. is of course active in meaning.

11. μετετέθη] Gen. v 24; cp. Wisd. iv 10. This implied high favour with God (μέν), but it did not of itself prove (σΰπω) that E.

had either attained, or would ever attain, an adequate knowledge of the divine nature.

13. εὐαρέστησις] Gen.vi (LXX.) Καλόν, constr. like triste lupus

15. ἐδικαιώθη] Gen. xv 6.

16. θυσίαν ξένην] Gen. xxii 13. 'Strange,' because miraculously supplied. It is prob. that Gr. means the ram, rather than Isaac; for Basil also makes the ram a type of Christ (de Spir. S. 14, p. 319 D).

18.  $\tilde{\epsilon}\theta\rho\epsilon\psi\epsilon$  Gen. xviii 8. Although the detail is taken only from Abr.'s history, the restriction is intended to apply also to Noe.

4. Elõos  $\theta$ .] Gen. xxxii 30 (31). This reading has better authority than  $\delta k \omega s$   $\theta$ ., i.e. Bethel. On the other hand  $\tau o \hat{\delta} \phi \theta$ . seems more like a reminiscence of Gen. xxxv 1, 9 (in v. 7 the word is  $\hat{\epsilon} \pi \epsilon \phi \hat{\alpha} \nu \eta$ ); and perh. it might have been more natural to mention the name of Penuel after the mention of the wrestling.

6.  $\eta \tau \iota s \pi$ .  $\epsilon$ .] The whole clause forms a cogn. acc. after  $\pi \rho o \sigma \pi \alpha \lambda$ ., 'wrestles whatever wrestling that of God with man may be.'

7. η τάχα] 'or perhaps (it would be best to say) the trial,' etc. He prefers this turn, because God was not 'wrestling' for the mastery, but to try the ἀρετή of Jacob.

8. σύμβολα] Gen. xxxii 31 (32).

12. ἐκεῖνο δέ] refers to what follows, ὅτι θ. φύσιν κτλ. The δὲ marks the apodosis to κλίμακα μέν.

ib. ὑπὲρ αὐτόν] Jacob was excelled by some of his descendants, but none of them could 'make room for' (χωρεῖν), 'take in,' or perh. 'bear,' the whole of God.

19. Elias, Esaias, Ezekiel, and others, were unable to receive the revelation of the Divine nature in itself.

16. ἡ αῦρα τις ὁ.] I Kings xix 12 φωνἡ αῦρας λεπτῆς. The τις hints that there was something more than usual in 'that breeze.' Gr.'s argument implies that if the presence had been discerned in the mightier movements of nature, God might have been thought to manifest Himself wholly in them, but that it was impossible to imagine this in connexion with the 'small breeze.'

th. ἔστη ἐν ὑποστ.] Jer. xxiii 18. Ὑπόστ. is 'an establishment' of some kind; in 2 Sam. xxiii 14 of 'a garrison'; in Jer. prob. 'a court,' or 'familiar circle.' Gr. however curiously misunderstood the word to = ὑπόστασις in the sense of οὐσία (cp. § 9).

22. Well might David despair; for how marvellous is man's constitution, -his birth, his sustenance, his instincts, his continuity, his very organs and the media in which they act, a microcosm in himself.

16. μετὰ τῶν πρ.] Intelligence 'enters in with the things' around us, because we learn by them. This is further expressed by aloθ. κοιν.; it is 'in partnership with sense, though capable of withdrawing itself from the senses.

8. συνέχηται] sc. τὰ γεννώντα κ.

so that no two men are exactly

11. τὸ αὐτὸ ζῶον] 'animal' for 'kind of animal'; as we talk of 'the lion,' 'the ox.' Gr. is speaking of the deathless persistence of the species, not of the restored existence of the specimen. His wonder is that the type endures. It never passes into another ζωον. Μετα-στάσει, 'removal' by death.

12.  $\delta \pi \epsilon \xi \hat{\eta} \lambda \theta \epsilon$ ] gnomic aor.

13. ὁλκῷ] There seems to be no instance of  $\delta \lambda \kappa \delta s = \delta \lambda \kappa \dot{\eta}$ , which might mean the flow or current of the river. Suidas gives an interpretation odos η άγωγὸς ρεύματος, and quotes the phrase τον όλκον του υδατος έκοψεν. Here then it would mean 'as in the channel of a river, which (river) never stands still, yet is ever there? This is in accordance with the common meaning of o. = sulcus.

11.  $\pi\alpha\rho\alpha\delta\circ\chi\alpha i$ ] From the addition of  $\tau\iota\nu\dot{\epsilon}s$ , we see that the word bore some half-technical sense, of which the Lexica do not speak. Prob. it =  $\delta\circ\chi\alpha i$ ,  $\dot{\nu}\pi\circ\delta\circ\chi\alpha i$ , 'receptacles.'

12.  $\lambda \delta \gamma \psi \ \mu \dot{\eta} \ \theta \epsilon \omega \rho$ .] Gr. seems to mean that the senses, which are so hospitable to the things external to ourselves, are yet a mystery impenetrable to the reason which resides within us.

14. μνήμης... ἀναμνήσεως] μν. is the faculty, ἀνάμν. the act of remembering. There is a treatise of Aristotle bearing the title περὶ μνήμης καὶ ἀναμνήσεως, which doubtless Gr. has in mind.

 άτlθασσα] or ἀτlθασα, 'not disposed to be tamed'; ἐλεύθερα, cp. Job xxxix 5.

17. φιλόχωρα] 'attached to a place'; it seems an imperfect antithesis to ἀμφίβια, but prob. Gr. means that the latter class are so little attached to a place that they are indifferent even to an element.

18.  $\phi\iota\lambda\delta\kappa\alpha\lambda\alpha$ ] Gr. seems to be anticipating what he says in § 24 about the peacock; it would not be easy to point to a quadruped which is markedly  $\phi\iota\lambda\delta\kappa\alpha\lambda\sigma\nu$  unless Gr. refers to such things as the way in which a cat washes itself. Isocrates advises a man to be  $\phi\iota\lambda\delta\kappa\alpha\lambda\sigma\nu$  in regard to his dress, but not  $\kappa\alpha\lambda\lambda\omega\pi\iota\sigma\tau\eta\kappa$ , which he says would be  $\pi\epsilon\rho\iota\epsilon\rho\gamma\sigma\nu$ . Cp. § 27. 3. ὑπὸ γῆν] a special feature of Asia Minor. Σήραγγες are 'holes,' 'passages.' Gr.'s theory of hot springs is that the water is heated by the violence with which it is forced out of its underground passages, by blasts of air which it encounters. These dash it from side to side and drive it with intense pressure through narrow apertures, until it assumes a very high temperature (ἐκπυρούμεναι). "Οπη παρ-είκοι, 'wherever possible.' I do not know whence Gr. obtained this theory. It is not in Arist. Meteor. or de Mundo, although Arist. has much to say about underground currents of wind, as well as of underground streams. Arist. rightly connects hot springs with volcanic action. But cp. Bas. Hex. iv ἐκ τῆς αὐτῆς τοῦ κινοῦντος airlas ζέουσα γίνεται... καὶ πυρώδης.

8. μ. τ. ἐναντίας δ.] generally understood to mean 'along with the cold.' This is of course an impossible interp. of the words. The μετὰ is, as frequently in Gr., used in that general sense which includes the instrumental,—like its modern representative μέ: cp. § 13 σκοπεῖ μετὰ τῆς iδ. ἀσθενείας, § 21 προσβ. μετὰ τῶν αἰσθήσεων, § 28 μεθ' οῦ λόγος. So here it will mean 'with their contrary (i.e. corrective) force.'

10. ἄτεχνον ὕφ.] a kind of oxymoron. Gr. uses ὑφαίνειν in a wide way, without any notion of 'weaving'; e.g. § 24 συνυφαίνων τὴν ψδήν.

11.  $\epsilon \pi \alpha i \nu \epsilon r \dot{\alpha}$ ] agrees with  $\tau \alpha \partial \tau \alpha$ , the question  $\tau \dot{\epsilon}$   $\tau \dot{\epsilon}$   $\mu \epsilon \gamma \alpha \kappa \tau \lambda$ . being parenthetical. This  $\sigma \chi \dot{\epsilon} \sigma$ , depends on  $\dot{\epsilon} \pi \alpha \nu$ , 'to be praised for, in reference to, their correlation to each other.'

14. οὐδὲ γὰρ ὁ λόγος κτλ.] 'reason knows of nothing for it (the earth) to rest upon.'

2.  $\tau \delta \nu \chi \epsilon \rho \sigma$ .  $\nu \alpha \nu \tau$ .] There is prob. no direct ref. to the shell-fish called a nautilus, which only bears that name because of its similarity to a man in a sailing boat. By 'the land mariner' Gr. means the land animal which nevertheless finds a home on the sea. At the same time the word  $\nu \alpha \nu \tau t \delta \omega$  had become so exclusively poetical as applied to men and ships, and so recognised a name for the shell-fish, that the addition of  $\chi$ . was necessary to prevent a moment's mistake. 11. ἡ τῶν ὑδ. τροφή] 'how are the waters fed?' The metaphor was more 'luxuriant' in Greek than in English, and Gr. proceeds, with an apology, to develope it. Some of them, he says, are 'watered from above,' i.e. are fed by rain-water, others (and this is the climax of the 'luxuriance') 'drink with their roots,' i.e. are fed by springs from underground. These last Gr. had learned from Arist. to be connected with the sea.

5. ποιείν γ. λέγεται] Ps. ciii

(civ) 4, Heb. i 7.

 εἰ μὴ ποιεῖν] 'unless by "making" is meant keeping them to the law of their original creation? To 'make' the angels winds suggests a change in their mode of existence; but Gr. thinks that it may denote what is contained in the original act of creation, and not something subsequent.

8. ἀκούει audit, 'it is called.'

9. της π. οὐσίας] sc. θεοῦ; cp. § 7.

11. ἰλιγγιῶμεν] Cp. § 21. 13. λαμπρότητας, ἀναβάσεις] It seems as if these, like the foregoing, were recognised titles for spiritual beings; but they do not appear to be used by any other of the Fathers. 'Aνάβασις is a strange designation for a personal being, and, if it were not for the  $\nu$ .  $\delta \nu \nu$ . which follows, it might have been thought that Gr. had turned from the angelic beings to their actions, and that avaß. referred (as perh. it does in any case) to Jacob's dream.

1.  $\tau \hat{\eta} s \pi \rho$ .  $\kappa$ .  $\mu$ .] Unless we are to suppose that there is some irregularity in the grammar, we must supply  $\phi \hat{\omega} \sigma \epsilon \omega s$ , so that the clause, if written out in full, would run  $\mu \hat{\eta} \epsilon l \pi \epsilon \hat{\iota} \nu \ \hat{\sigma} \tau \iota \ \hat{\eta} \ \tau \hat{\eta} s \ \pi \rho \hat{\omega} \tau \eta s \ \kappa$ .  $\mu$ .  $\phi \hat{\omega} \sigma \epsilon \omega s \ \phi \hat{\omega} \sigma \epsilon s$ .

2.  $\delta\kappa\nu\hat{\omega}$   $\gamma\hat{\alpha}\rho$   $\epsilon l\pi\epsilon\hat{\imath}\nu$ ] Cp. § 13. The formula implies that the statement would be not incorrect, but capable of misconception. To say that the divine nature is 'above all' might appear to coordinate it with other things, as one, though the highest, of a series: so Gr. prefers to say  $\mu \delta \nu \eta_s$ , to bring out its absolute uniqueness.

2. διττοῦ δὲ ὄντος] The Benedictine editors compare Athenagoras

2. Atheism, Polytheism, Monotheism, are the three ancient opinions about God. The second ends in the same anarchy as the first, and we leave it to the Gentiles. Our Monotheism, however, is one where Three Persons are joined in equality of nature and in identity of will, -two of the three being derived from the first by what Scripture describes as generation and emission respectively.

13. παισίν 'Ελλήνων] a phrase formed on the fashion of viol Ίσραήλ; but the word maîdes seems to be chosen with a view to the verb ἐπαίχθησαν. 'With the first two the children of Greece amused themselves.'

14.  $\tau \delta \tau \epsilon \gamma \delta \rho$ ] The  $\gamma \delta \rho$  gives the reason why Gr. leaves those theories to the children of Greece

I. μ. δέ, οὐχ ἡν ἕν] 'Not a sovereignty contained in a single person.'

2.  $\ell \sigma r \gamma \alpha \rho$ ] Such a sovereignty, of a single person, does not necessarily exclude the thought of discord and confusion. It is possible to conceive of a single entity being divided against itself, and so becoming many. The divine unity, which we believe, is the result of 'equality of nature, unanimity of judgment, and identity of action' or 'of will.'

5.  $\pi\rho\delta s$   $\tau\delta$   $\xi\nu$   $\kappa\tau\lambda$ .] This complete harmony of mind and will in the Godhead is itself based upon the concurrence of the other Blessed Persons with that One of Their number from whom They are derived, viz. the Father. Gr. does not as yet name the Father, nor indeed any of the Persons, because he is speaking in the abstract of the divine unity and its conditions, and so says  $\tau\delta$   $\xi\nu$  and not  $\tau\delta\nu$   $\xi\nu$ a. A comparison of v 14 shews that  $\tau\omega$  $\xi\xi$   $\omega\dot{\tau}\tau\omega$ 0 depends on  $\tau\delta\nu\nu\nu\nu\nu\sigma\iota s$ , not on  $\tau\delta$   $\xi\nu$ . The 'antecedent' of  $\xi\xi$   $\omega\dot{\tau}\tau\omega$ 0 (neut.) is  $\tau\delta$   $\xi\nu$ .

ib.  $\ddot{o}\pi\epsilon\rho$ ] refers to the whole fourfold description. It is perhaps not impossible that such an unity should exist among creaturely beings, but our experience suggests no instance of it,—only imperfect images of it. The clause is of course parenthetical.

6. ὥστε] again refers to the whole description. It will be seen that οὐσία to Gr. means more than φύσιs. There is a moral element in it, and not only a metaphysical; ὑμοτιμία φύσεως is one of the things which secure ούσ. μὴ τ. The reading τŷ ἐξουσία gives no satisfactory sense.

7.  $\mu o \nu \dot{a} \dot{s} \dot{a} \dot{\pi}' \dot{a} \rho \chi \hat{\eta} \dot{s}$ ] The language comes perilously near the Sabellian conception of  $\pi \lambda a \tau v \sigma \mu \dot{s}$  (see Dorner Person of Christ div. I, vol. 2, p. 156); but of course Gr.'s tenses ( $\kappa \iota \nu \eta \theta e \hat{\iota} \sigma a$ ,  $\ell \sigma \tau \eta$ ) are not to be understood in a temporal sense. There was no time before the  $\kappa \iota \nu \eta \sigma \iota s$  of which he speaks. For  $\mu \dot{\epsilon} \chi \rho \iota$  see ii 9.

9. γενν. κ. προβ.] the γεννήτωρ, of course, of the Son; προβολεύς, of the Spirit.

12. ἀφελών κτλ.] Gr. knows no other way of expressing the relation of the Son and Spirit to the Father, such as might get rid of material suggestions.

2.  $\pi\lambda\eta\nu$  el  $\kappa\tau\lambda$ .] The only way, Gr. says, is to adopt the standard of Eternity. Eternity does indeed suggest a kind of temporal duration; that cannot be helped; but we use it to denote 'an interval or period' commensurate with things of a supra-temporal order, not measured by any measurement known to time. It seems best to connect the  $\pi\lambda\eta\nu$  with el  $\kappa\alpha$ l  $\mu\eta$   $\delta\nu\nu$   $\delta\mu$ ed, and to treat the intervening sentence (in accordance with Gr.'s manner) as parenthetical.

ib. μορμολύττη] 'to scare' with a μορμώ, or bugbear.

4. If difficulty is felt about the 'generation' of the Son by the Father, the difficulty is not got rid of by making the Son a 'creature' instead. It only arises from a carnal notion of what is meant by generation, as if there could be no higher kind of generation.

16. κάνταθθα] i.e. ἐν τῷ κτίζειν. A work of creation (lit. 'founding') as known to man involves time in which to work it out, desire for the accomplishment, the formation of a mental ideal, thought as to the mode of execution, etc. Gr.'s object is to shew that the thought of creation on God's part involves as many difficulties as that of generation.

as fathers. The variety of our relationships makes it impossible to consider any one of them an exhaustive description of a human being; but fatherhood expresses all that the person of God the Father is.

1.  $\xi \xi \; \dot{\alpha} \mu \phi o \hat{w}$ ] not the same  $\ddot{\alpha} \mu \phi \omega$  as above, but here as  $i f = \dot{\epsilon} \kappa \; \delta v o \hat{v} v$ . Gr. is thinking chiefly how our sonship differs from that of the Eternal Son, and leaves the difference of the fatherhood. Each of us has two parents, not one, so that we are in a way divided between them.

2.  $\kappa \alpha \tau'$   $\delta \lambda$ .  $\delta \nu \theta \rho$ .] another difference; we only gradually attain the position of human beings by a long fashioning in the womb, and some hardly attain it at all. In the last clause no doubt Gr. means idiots and persons otherwise deficient. The wishes of human parents for their offspring are often far from being realised  $(o lon \mu \dot{\eta} \tau \epsilon \theta \cdot)$ .

3. ἀφιέντες] The children in many cases go their way, and the parents theirs, and nothing is left of the sacred relationship except the name.

5. ἐγέννησε] We have been using expressions like 'begat' and 'is begotten,' which necessarily contain, besides the notion of begetting, the tense-notion of a moment when. To evade the difficulty, Gr. proposes to use a formula which puts the 'moment' back before the beginning of time, and to say that the Son 'was' already 'begotten from the beginning.'

9.  $\gamma \rho a \phi \dot{\eta} \nu \dot{\alpha} \pi o l \sigma \epsilon \iota s \kappa \alpha \theta' \dot{\eta} \mu$ .] a legal term, which has only an accidental relation to the use of  $\gamma \rho a \phi \dot{\eta}$  immediately after in the sense of 'Scripture.' It means 'to file an accusation.'

ib. παραχαραττόντων] 'putting a false mark upon,' i.e. 'falsifying'; chiefly used of coin that has been tampered with.

11. ἐνηλλαγμ. τ. χρόν.] Much of our language which denotes time is used in an inverse manner to the time intended.

14. ἴνα τί ἐφρ.] Psalm ii 1.

  - 6. 'Did the Father beget the Son,' asks the opponent, 'by an act of will, or not? If not, He was under constraint, which is impossible; if so, then the Son owes His being not to the Father only, but also to the Father's will, which thus becomes a kind of motherhood.' This dilemma is met by a similar one with regard to the objector's own birth, and by another with regard to creation. Gr. then shews that as a word is not the result of speaking, considered as a separate and substantive thing, but springs direct from the speaker, so the thing willed springs not from will in the abstract, but direct from him who wills.

  - 11.  $\pi \hat{\omega} \hat{s} \hat{o} \hat{v} \hat{e} \hat{\kappa} \hat{\tau} \hat{o} \hat{v} \hat{\pi}$ .] It certainly seems a strangely captious argument. If it was ever seriously urged by the Eunomians, we must suppose that  $\theta \in \lambda \omega \nu$  is not merely= ἐκών, but 'by willing'; i.e. it was the act of will which produced the Son. Then, as other faculties of the divine being are represented to us as hypostatic—notably the Λόγος -we are driven to suppose that this primary faculty, antecedent and necessary to the production of the Son, is hypostatic also. If that is the case, He does not owe His being solely to the Father, but partly also to the Father's Will, which is thus constituted a kind of mother in the Godhead. But Gr.'s subsequent words αν τοῦτο λέγωσιν suggest the doubt whether he did not himself invent this part of the argument for the Eunomians.

13.  $\alpha \dot{\nu} \tau \hat{\omega} \nu$ ] depends upon  $\chi \alpha \rho i \epsilon \nu$  ( $\dot{\alpha} \nu \epsilon i \eta$ ) by an idiom well known in colloquial English as well as in Greek; 'it will be delightful of them.'

14. où  $\gamma \dot{\alpha} \rho \pi \dot{\alpha} \theta$  os  $\dot{\eta} \beta$ .] This is true; nevertheless it is difficult for the human mind to imagine an act of will which is not caused by something which would come under the description of a mádos.

1. το ίσχ. αὐτ. ὅ τι λ.] ' what they consider their strong point.' Δεύτερον δέ corresponds to εν μέν. Before, however, entering upon this δεύτερον, which he does at άλλ' ἐπὶ  $\tau$ .  $\theta$ ., Gr. thinks it best  $(\pi \rho \delta \tau \epsilon \rho \sigma \nu)$ to grapple with his adversaries at closer quarters. This he does in the question  $\sigma \dot{v}$   $\delta \dot{\epsilon}$   $\alpha \dot{v} \tau \delta s$   $\kappa \tau \lambda$ ., which brings the argument home to them personally  $(\dot{\epsilon}\gamma\gamma\upsilon\tau\dot{\epsilon}\rho\omega)$ .

5. οὐ γὰρ δη την φύσιν ἐρεῖs] 'You will not say that he was compelled by nature. Nature admits equally of self-restraint."

10. ὑπέστησε] 'gave them existence,' i.e. by creation.

12. ἐστέρηται τοῦ θ. κ. τὰ κτ.] As, acc. to their supposed argument, the Son is deprived of the Father by the interposition of the Will from which He sprang, so is creation deprived of its Creator. His Will runs like a wall between it and Him. The Eunomian is the first to suffer the loss, because he invented it; that is poetical

15. ἔτερον οίμαι] Gr.'s argument is not very clear; because the Eunomians also had distinguished very sharply between the will and the person who wills, -so sharply that they said that the Son could not be the Son of one who willed to beget Him, but only of that will itself. But in so arguing they set up a new, though fictitious, identity. They converted the will itself into a personal agency. This is what Gr. combats. Will is one thing, and the person who wills is another. You might as well say that the θέλησις, γέννησις, λόγος.

- 3. οὐδὲ γὰρ ἔπεται πάντως] Gr. is using ἔπεται in its logical sense. He does not mean that in the order of facts the act of will sometimes fails of its effect; he means that it does not 'follow' that, because a thing has been willed, that thing is the result of will. It is the result of the personal force lying behind the will.
- 5.  $\tau \grave{\alpha} \tau o \hat{\upsilon} \theta \epsilon o \hat{\upsilon} \delta \epsilon \hat{J}$  All this holds true even in the experience of our limited personalities; much more may we suppose it to be so in regard to the divine nature. With God, so far as we know ( $\ell \tau \omega s$ ), will and action are identical, and there is no medium whatever.
- 7. καὶ τοῦτο] i.e. the proposition that  $\gamma \acute{e}\nu \nu \eta \sigma \iota s = \dot{\eta} \tau o \hat{\nu} \gamma$ . θ. Gr. evidently inclines rather to the view that 'the generation of the Son of God is even above and beyond will.

7. Gr. retaliates by asking how God comes to be God. If by His will, when did He first will it? is one portion of His being the result of the will of another portion? is He not in this case as much a child of will as the Son? If He is God without willing to be so, then He is under computsion.

'How, then, is the Son begotten?' asks the Eunomian. 'How is He created?' Gr. replies. Men do not create in the way which it is necessary to assume was God's way.

9. βούλει τι κτλ.] 'Do you wish me to make sport awhile with the Father also?' Hitherto the 'sport' has been with the Son. Gr. intentionally uses a shocking expression.

11. καὶ ὅπως ἀποφ.] 'and in order that you may escape.' The main verb is the imperative implied in the question πότε... ἡργμένος—'tell me when.'

9. A fresh puzzle is proposed by the Eunomian. Does the Son exist prior to generation, or not? The answer is that there is no such thing as a time prior to that generation. It is from all eternity. There is no more need to ask whether the Son is έξ ὄντων or έξ οὐκ ὄντων than there is to ask the same question concerning the Father. We are not compelled to believe that either one or the other of two alternatives is true. Take instances. Is time in time or outside of time? A man says, 'I am lying': is he speaking the truth or not? Were you present at your conception or not? Both alternatives may be false. The question is absurd.

1. ὄντα] A fresh difficulty: was the Son already in existence when He was begotten, or not? Gr. admits that the question might have some meaning in regard to human generation. In one sense we already existed (τ ∂ μ ℓν τ ι); in another, we then began to be (γεγ δναμεν practically=ε γενήθημεν).

 ib. σύνδρομον τῷ εἶ. τὸ γ.] 'In this case,' of the Eternal Son, 'generation is coincident with existence, and is from all eternity.'

7. ποῦ θήσεις] Where will you find a place, a date, for your question to apply to? 'Already in existence when He was begotten' implies a time before the begetting;

but there was no such time. He was begotten from the beginning. What was there before 'the beginning,' that we may say whether the Son then existed or not? In either case, whether we affirm or deny His existence, it is clear that that subsequent moment at which we suppose Him to have been begotten cannot really have been the beginning.

10. εὶ μή σοι κ. ὁ π.] If you still press your question, we will once more ask you about the Father, whether His existence is derived from elements that were beforehand or from elements that were not. Perhaps then you will make out that both propositions are true, and that He has two modes or stages of existence, one before and the other after the absorption of those elements. Or you will choose the latter alternative, and say of Him, as you say of the Son, that He comes into being from nothingness. If you are ready to admit this of the Father (such is the force of the ei  $\mu\eta$ ), there is some consistency in what you affirm of the Son.

are not the same; therefore if the Son is begotten and the Father unbegotten, the Son differs from the Father. The statement is false; for it is the very meaning of generation to transmit the nature of the parent. The contrast of begotten and unbegotten is only like that of wise and unwise, which can be predicated of different individuals without involving a difference of nature or essence. To erect Unbegottenness into constituting the very essence of God brings you into difficulties with other attributes, like Immortal, Unchangeable, which have as good a right to be considered as constituting that essence.

14. πῶs οὐ ταὐτόν] not 'in ruhat sense do you mean,' for Gr. is not prepared to admit that it is true in any sense; but simply challenging the statement altogether: 'how can you say so? if you had said that created and uncreated are not the same, I should agree with you, but the transmission of the parent's nature is of the very essence of generation.'

8. οὐκ οὐσίας τ.] 'they do not divide the essences; they are divisions (lit. divided) within (in connexion with) the same essence.'

9.  $\hat{\eta}$  καὶ τὸ άθ.] A fresh argument. If τὸ ἀγέννητον constitutes the divine nature, so that it and τὸ θεῖον are convertible terms, a similar case can be made out for these other predicates. Then, since the divine nature is absolutely identified with τὸ ἀγέννητον, and yet at the same time with τὸ ἀθάνατον, we are driven to suppose that these are separate natures, or essences, or that they compose the divine nature by their aggregation.

11. Assume for the sake of argument that to be unbegotten belongs to God alone, though the assertion rould by some be denied. It does not follow that unbegottenness is a necessary part of the divine essence. Adam alone was directly fashioned by God; yet Seth is as truly man as Adam. The divine essence is a positive, not a negative thing. If you ask me what it is, I can only answer that I hope we may know some day, but not here. Meanwhile, whatever glory there is in the underived existence belongs to the Son who is begotten of the Underived.

great thing to be altogether underived, as the Father is, it is no less a thing to be derived from Him in the way the Son is. He shares the nature and glory of the Selfexistent, and has the additional glory of being begotten of Him.

Cp. iv 7. If the Father is unbegotten,' they urge, 'and the Son is what the Father is, then the Son too is unbegotten? That would be true if. unbegottenness were the actual essence of God; but it is not. If 'un-begotten' and 'God' were equivalent terms, then we should be able to put the one for the other, and say not only 'the God of Israel' but 'the Unbegotten of Israel.' On this theory, the nature of the begotten Son is not only different from that of the unbegotten Father, but is its exact opposite; and indeed it might be argued that since the positive is prior to the negative, the begotten Son is prior to the unbegotten Father.

7. ἔσται τοῦτο] sc. ἀγέννητον. Quite true, Gr. replies, on the assumption that unbegottenness is the essence of God; the Son in that case will be begotten-unbegotten!

1.  $\tau \iota \nu \hat{\omega} \nu$  o  $\theta \epsilon \delta s$ ] 'God,' acc. to Gr., is a relative term; a 'God' must be 'God of' some one. If then unbegottenness is the very essence of God, and 'unbegotten' and 'God' are convertible terms, then we must be able to say with equal correctness, 'the God of all' and 'the unbegotten of all'; or conversely, as the unbegotten is 'no one's unbegotten,' so God must be 'no one's God.' The argument does not seem a very valuable one, because, to begin with, it must be questioned whether 'God' is really a term of relationship. If it be so, then apart from creation God would not be God. But the main purpose of the argument is sound, inasmuch as it shews the absurdity of identifying absolutely the positive existence of God with a merely negative description. On Gr.'s interpretation of the word  $\theta \epsilon \delta s$ , see iv

8. ἀνάγκη] If ἀγέννητον is the

9. αὶ ἔξεις τῶν στ. πρότεραι] You cannot take away a thing which is not there to begin with. But ἀγέννητον implies a taking away of γέννητον. Therefore γέννητον is prior to ἀγέννητον,—the Son to the Father,—and when the Father comes, and His ἀγέννητον is alone recognised as divine, He does away with the Son who occupied the ground before Him. Of course this argument is one of mere mockery (ἐρεσχελία, i 3).

account is correct; and at the same time it bears externally a greater resemblance to its original.

1. η δόs] Otherwise,—if the chasm between the two Persons bearing the name of God is not, on your theory, as vast as I have indicated, suppose you admit that the equivocal name is in this instance applied to two natures of equal splendour. You shall call them different natures, if you like; but admit that they are equal. What is the result? You are no longer satisfied with your illustration of the dogs. You invented it to justify an insinuation of inequality. The κατὰ in κατὰ τῆς ἀνισ, appears to be used as in the phrase τοξεύειν κατὰ σκοποῦ, of the point aimed at.

5.  $\epsilon l \ \tau \delta \ l \sigma$ .  $\epsilon \chi o \iota \epsilon \nu$ ] It requires great ingenuity to extract any meaning from the sentence, in relation to the context, if the reading  $\mu \dot{\eta}$   $\epsilon \dot{\chi}$ . is adopted. The  $\mu \dot{\eta}$  was evidently introduced by copyists who thought that Gr. was making a statement of his own belief, which was that the name  $\theta \epsilon \delta \sigma$  is applied in precisely the same sense to Father and Son. But this ignores Gr.'s argument,—and, it may be added, the meaning of ὁμωνυμία. Gr.'s immediate purpose is to shew that the Eunomian illustration is, from their own point of view, ill-chosen. To be of any service to them, their instance of 'equivocation' should have been one where the same name is applied to two objects of very different value.

15. 'You admit,' they say, 'that the Father is greater than the Son, inasmuch as He is the author of the Son's being; but since He is by nature author of the Son's being, it follows that He is by nature greater than the Son.' The fallacy of the argument, Gr. answers, lies in this,—that they attribute to the underlying essence what is predicated of the particular possessor of that essence. It is like arguing that because so and so is a dead man, therefore man is dead.

3. οὐ γὰρ ἀπλῶς κτλ.] The reply is that not everything which is predicated of a particular thing (e.g. of Socrates) is predicated of the nature which underlies that thing (in the example chosen, human nature). Everyone recognises what the statements are intended to apply to, and how they apply. So, what we say of the Father does not necessarily apply to the Divine Essence which belongs to Him; some things apply to Him as Father, not as God.

κατὰ τίνος, καὶ τίνα] The words are interrogative; if Gr. had intended the indef. pron., he must have said δ. ὅτι κ. τ. It seems necessary to understand κατά again before tiva, 'in regard to what points'-i.e. in regard to nature, or to individuality, or what. To take the example given by Gr. at the end of the section, if I say that Socrates is a dead man, it is plain that I am speaking of Socrates in particular and of no one else, and that I am speaking of Socrates in relation to the bodily life, not about his soul, nor about his influence.

5. τί κωλύει κάμέ] Two can play at that game, Gr. says. He too can draw that kind of conclusion, and they shall see whether it will hold. He makes a major premiss of that conclusion of theirs, 'The father is by nature greater than the son.' (We need not suppose that Gr. is for the moment speaking of God: the words would suit any father and son.) The minor premiss is, 'But he is not by nature necessarily greater, or necessarily father.' So far there is no absurdity. He need never have had a son; there might have been nothing else to compare him with. (Gr., I repeat, is not speaking of God.) The right conclusion would be that the father's 'natural' superiority over his son consists solely in his fatherhood, and not in his nature,-in his relationship, and not in that which he is when considered apart by himself. But the false conclusion which Gr. draws, to illustrate the false conclusions of the Eunomians, is this: 'Therefore the greater is not necessarily greater,' or The father is not necessarily father.' It will be observed that Gr. says μείζον, not ὁ μείζων, which makes it clearer that the proposition is intended to be quite general: 'A thing which is greater than another need not be greater, but might be at the same time equal or less; a father need not be his son's father, but might be his brother or his son.' The second paralogism (ὁ θεὸς οὐ πάντως θεός) helps to shew that this is Gr.'s meaning.

πατήρ οὐ πάντως πατήρ. εἰ βούλει δὲ οὕτως ὁ θεός οὐσία ἡ οὐσία δέ, οὐ πάντως θεός τὸ ἑξῆς αὐτὸς συνάγαγε ὁ θεός, οὐ πάντως θεός. ἀλλ' οἶμαι, παρὰ τὸ πῆ καὶ ἀπλῶς ὁ παραλογισμὸς οὖτος, ὡς τοῖς περὶ ταῦτα τεχνολογεῖν σύνηθες. ἡμῶν γὰρ τὸ μεῖζον τῆ τοῦ αἰτίου φύσει 5 διδόντων, αὐτοὶ τὸ τῆ φύσει μεῖζον ἐπάγουσιν ὥσπερ ἄν εἰ καὶ λεγόντων ἡμῶν, ὅτι ὁ δεῖνα νεκρὸς ἄνθρωπος, ἀπλῶς ἐπῆγον αὐτοὶ τὸν ἄνθρωπον.

3. παρὰ τὸ πῆ κ. ἀπλῶs] 'The fallacy lies in arguing from the conditioned to the absolute' (lit. 'is on account of that which is so for special reasons and that which is so absolutely').

4. τοις περί ταιτα] 'to use the technical language of logicians' (litias it is customary to speak technically for those who concern themselves with these things').

5. ἡμῶν γὰρ κτλ.] 'For when we allow that it is in the nature of a cause to be greater than the thing caused, they infer that it is greater by nature; which is like arguing that because we say, "Such and such a man is dead," therefore man, in the abstract, is dead.' The emphasis, of course, is on ὁ δεῖνα, and it seems simplest to take ἄνθρ. along with it as subject, understanding νεκρός alone to be predicate—an arrangement of words like o μέγας τέθνηκε Βασίλειος. But the sense is the same either way. In the apodosis, τον ἄνθρ. is subject, the predicate being supplied from the previous clause, sc.  $\nu \epsilon \kappa \rho \delta \nu$  eival. The commentators from Elias onwards have totally failed to catch the argument, or even to understand the grammar of the passage. If Gr. had intended to say anything so pointless as Petavius (de Trin. II v 12) makes out, viz. that because  $\dot{o}$   $\delta \epsilon \hat{u} \nu a$  is a dead man, therefore he is a man, he must have said  $\tau \delta$   $\dot{u} \nu \theta \rho \omega \pi o \nu$ , not  $\tau \dot{o} \nu$ . So far Elias, whom Petavius quotes, knew better.

16. 'Well,' they say, 'the word Father must denote either nature or operation: which is it to be?' Neither, is the answer; it denotes a relation, and a relation which implies community of nature between the Father and the Son.

It is not very obvious why yévvyøus should not be included under the head of èvepyeua, and Gr. does not much object to it. But evidently Gr.'s opponent made èvepyeûv =  $\pi o\iota$ eûv.

ib. εἰ καὶ ἄτοπος] The καὶ must be taken closely with ἄτοπος and disjoined from εἰ, which has here the force of 'since.' The reading η, adopted by the Benedictines, makes ἄλλως superfluous. The notion of such an operation as results in a 'Son' would be absurd if it did not imply a real (i.e. a consubstantial) Son.

In the Ps. the word ἀρχή was prob. intended to mean 'rule,' 'authority,' not (as Gr. seems to think) 'beginning.

Or possibly, as the  $\tau \hat{\omega}$  is repeated, Gr. may have intended  $\tau \hat{\omega} \sigma \nu \theta \ell \tau \omega$  to be the dat. of  $\tau \delta \sigma \dot{\nu} \nu \theta \ell \tau \sigma \nu$ , in the sense of 'the composite whole,' consisting of Godhead and

It would, of course, have been more exact to have said  $\tau \hat{\eta}$  dià oè keváoei, or something of that kind; but it would have been less vivid; and there was no fear of any one supposing that Gr. meant by  $\tau \hat{\omega}$  kevadévti a different person from Him who had the kpeitta  $\psi$

In Or. xxxviii, after shewing in § 10 how creatures endowed with mind have an affinity with God which other creatures have not, Gr. says in § 13 that the Eternal Word was incarnate διὰ μέσης ψυχῆς νοερᾶς μεσιτευούσης θεότητι καὶ σαρκὸς παχύτητι. We cannot imagine an 'incarnation' of the Word in an irrational thing.

I. γενόμενος ἄ., ὁ κάτω θεός]
'τωας made man, the earthly God.'
Gr. is fond of dwelling upon the intrinsic divinity of man. Cp. Or.
xxxviii 7 ἴνα...ὡς οἰκείοις ἤδη προσομιλῆ...θεὸς θεοῖς ἐνούμενός τε καὶ γνωριζόμενος. Here, the description of man as ὁ κάτω θεός is prepared for by the words διὰ μέσου νοός.

2. συνανεκράθη θεώ] Cp. iv 2 έχρίσθη θεότητι; iv 3 θεώ πλακήναι και γενέσθαι θεον έκ της μίξεως. The language, if pressed, would imply that Christ was a human person, taken into union with a divine one. This would, of course, be erroneous, and Gr.'s own words immediately before shew that he perfectly understood the Person of our Lord to be divine first, and then by condescension human. Prob. the nom. to συνανεκράθη is strictly supplied from ἄνθρωπος, ὁ κ. θεός, not from ὁ νῦν σοι καταφρονούμενος. The humanity of Christ undoubtedly συνανεκρ, θεώ. But the humanity of Christ, impersonal except by virtue of His assumption of it, is not exactly described by the term  $\mathring{a}v\theta\rho\omega\pi\sigma\sigma$ . The rise of Nestorianism, which was after Gr.'s time, would have suggested more careful phraseology; and it may be added that a fear of the still later Eutychianism might have made Gr. modify the words  $\sigma v \pi \nu \kappa \kappa \rho d \eta$  and  $\tau \sigma \hat{v} \kappa \rho \epsilon l \tau \tau \sigma v \sigma \epsilon \kappa \nu \kappa \nu \kappa \gamma \sigma \sigma v$ .

3. "va γένωμαι] It is perh. somewhat νεανικόν to speak of our becoming Gods 'to the same extent' as Christ is man; but doubtless Gr. would explain that he spoke of men in proportion to their capacity; or perh., in view of what follows, τοσοῦτον means 'as truly.' He uses the same phrase in Or. xl 45.

4. ἐγεγέννητο] 'He had been begotten before,' i.e. eternally.

21. It has been a disagreeable task to examine these objections; believers are not fond of arguing; but it is important to shew that the arguments are not all on the side of heresy. To rely upon logic, however, is the abandonment of faith, the evacuation of the Gospel, and its betrayal. God bring the opponents to a better mind, and grant us a saving hold upon the Trinity.

  - 1. We have gone rapidly through the Eunomian objections, especially those taken from Scripture, and have laid down a general canon for the interpretation of the texts. We will now take the texts seriatim.

1. στροφάς] Cp. iii 16. Πλοκάς is likewise a wrestling metaphor.

2. διεσείσαμεν | Διασείειν is to 'shake to pieces,' used of a searching examination. Plut. de Gen. Socr. 580 D διερωτών και διασείων τὸν Εὐθύφρονα. There seems to be no connexion with the preceding metaphors.

4. τοῦ γρ. ἰερόσυλοι] explained by the next clause,  $\tau \partial \nu \nu \partial \nu \dots \kappa \lambda \epsilon \pi \tau$ . The 'letter' is like a temple, which the sacrilegious heretic robs of its 'meaning.

5. σφετερίζονται] 'take possession of.'

10.  $τ\hat{\omega}$  νέ $\omega$ ...' Αδά $\mu$ ] The phrase is not free from danger. An ίερόσυλος τοῦ γράμματος might make out that the véos 'A. was, in Gr.'s view, a different person from the Divine Person implied in  $\tau \hat{\eta} \theta \epsilon \delta \tau \eta \tau \iota$ . Cp. iii 18, 19. It must be remembered that the Nestorian heresy had not yet been formulated.

ib.  $\theta \epsilon \hat{\phi} \pi \alpha \theta \eta \tau \hat{\phi}$ ] a daring oxymoron. Gr. would of course deny that the Godhead of Christ was subjected της άμαρτίας τοις δε καθ' έκαστον οὐκ ἐπεξεληλύθαμεν, ἐπειγομένου τοῦ λόγου σὰ δε καὶ τούτων ἐπιζητεις ἐν βραχει τὰς λύσεις, τοῦ μὴ παρασύρεσθαι λόγοις πιθανότητος, ἡμεις καὶ ταύτας κεφαλαιώσομεν εἰς ἀριθμοὺς διελόντες διὰ τὸ εὐμνημόνευτον.

to suffering, though the Divine Person was so subjected, in virtue of the nature which He assumed.

1. π. κατὰ τῆς ἀμ.] a compact expression; 'suffering against sin,' i.e. overcoming sin by means of suffering.

2. No. 1.—The Lord created Me ... with a view to His works. We will not shirk the difficulty by making the words a mere personification. It is our Lord who speaks. But the cause which He alleges to have been in view at His creation shews that He is speaking of the creation of His manhood, which was created with a view to the works of verity and judgment in our salvation. When afterwards He speaks of His Godhead, He uses very different language; He begetteth Me—there is no cause there.

6. καὶ λίαν  $\pi \rho b \chi$ .] 'exceedingly handy.' The  $\mu \dot{\epsilon} \nu$  is answered by πρός δ πως άπ.

7. K.  $\xi \kappa \tau \iota \sigma \epsilon \mu \epsilon$ ] Prov. viii 22. The Heb. word is kanah, not bara which is the word used in Gen. i 1.

It signifies comparare; and prob.  $\kappa \tau \hat{a} \sigma \theta a$  (which is the rendering of Aquila, Symmachus, and Theodotion) is nearer to it than the LXX.  $\kappa \tau t \zeta \epsilon \nu \nu$ . Cp. Bas. adv. Eun. ii 20. Into that question, however, Gr. does not enter.

9. τὴν τελ. παράπτωσιν] sc. Solomon's.

10.  $\tau \hat{\eta} s \sigma o \phi l as a \dot{v} \tau \hat{\eta} s ]$  'of Wisdom itself,' as distinct from that Blessed Person in whom all wisdom is gathered up and displayed. Delitzsch, commenting on the passage in Prov., says, "Wisdom is not God, but God's; she has personal existence in the Logos of the N.T., but is not herself the Logos." Gr. further explains this Wisdom, to be 'the science, so to speak, and the artistic principle on which the universe is composed.' Gr. intends to distinguish carefully the  $\tau \epsilon \chi \nu$ . No yos from the person of 'the Word.'

13. ἡ θάλασσα...ἡ ἄβυσσος] Joh

3. εί καί τισι τῶν πρὸ ήμ.] He prob. refers to Basil, who, in the Hom. in Princ. Proverb. § 3, where he has no controversial animus, expounds very strikingly the 'personification' of that wisdom which speaks to us out of nature. Very likely other Catholic authors adopted the same Bas. himself, however, when in controversy with the Eunomians, gives the same account as Gr. does here (adv. Eun. iv p. 293 Ληπτέον οὖν...έπὶ τοῦ τὴν μορφην δούλου λαβόντος). That account, it may be added, is derived from Athanasius, who says (de Decr. Nic. Syn. p. 220 Β), Τὸ δὲ πρόσωπον τοῦ μεν σωτηρός έστι, τότε δε λέγεται ότε λοιπόν λαβών το σώμα λέγει κτλ. Cp. the fuller passage in Ath. Or. ii c. Ar. § 44 f.; also Eus. adv. Marcell. ii 3. Among other expositors whom Gr. knew, Origen (de Princ. i 2) identifies Wisdom with the eternal Son, and, though he does not admit any imaginable period before the generation of Wisdom, thinks that Wisdom speaks of herself as having been created, inasmuch as she contains in herself from the outset the beginnings and outlines of the creation that was to be. Denys of Rome on the other hand (in Ath. de Decr. Nic. Syn. p. 232) dwells upon the various significations of the word κτίζειν in the Bible, and understands it here to mean 'appointing,' 'setting over the works which were made through Him.' For another explanation, with which, however, Gr. was hardly likely to be acquainted, see Hil. de Trin. xii 35

7. η τοῦτο] 'otherwise this,' which is the 'cause' of God, 'would be prior to God.'

10. τὸ γεννᾶ με] Prov. viii 25.

11. μετὰ τῆs alτlas] 'coupled with a mention of its cause.'

15. ἀλήθεια κ. κρίσις] Ps. cx (cxi)

ένεκεν έχρίσθη θεότητι. χρίσις γὰρ αὕτη τῆς ἀνθρωπότητος. τὸ δὲ Γεννῷ με χωρὶς αἰτίας ἡ δεῖξόν τι τούτω προσκείμενον. τίς οὖν ἀντερεῖ λόγος, κτίσμα μὲν λέγεσθαι τὴν σοφίαν κατὰ τὴν κάτω γέννησιν, γέννημα δὲ κατὰ τὴν πρώτην καὶ πλέον ἄληπτον;

3. Τούτφ δὲ ἔπεται καὶ τὸ δοῦλον ἀκούειν εὖ δουλεύοντα πολλοῖς, καὶ τὸ μέγα εἶναι αὐτῷ κληθῆναι παῖδα θεοῦ. τῷ ἄντι γὰρ ἐδούλευσε σαρκί, καὶ γενέσει, καὶ πάθεσι τοῖς ἡμετέροις, διὰ τὴν ἡμετέραν ἐλευθερίαν. καὶ πᾶσιν οἷς σέσωκεν ὑπὸ τῆς ἀμαρτίας κατεχομένους. 10

3. 10 κατεχομενους] -οις f

7. These, which are the works of our salvation  $(ro\hat{v} \ \sigma\omega\theta\hat{\eta}\mu\alpha\iota \ \pi. \ \eta\mu\hat{a}s)$ , are identified as 'the works' with a view to which Wisdom was 'created.'

1. ἐχρίσθη θεότητι] Gr. falls again into the danger of Nestorian language, and speaks as if there were a created person (identified with the created 'Wisdom') who was 'anointed with Godhead.' The mention of unction is so abrupt that I cannot help suspecting that in some version accessible to Gr. the word nissachti in Prov. viii 23 ('I was set up') was translated 'I was anointed.' So the Heb. word is understood by Fürst, Bertheau, and others; but I know no other indication of such a rendering in any ancient version.

4. την κάτω γ.] 'His birth upon

5.  $\pi \lambda \acute{e}$ ν ἄληπτον] used instead of άληπτοτέραν bec. it implies more decidedly that  $\dot{\eta}$  κάτω  $\gamma$ . was itself ἄληπτος.

3. Under the same head come the texts which speak of Him as a Servant, and make it a great thing for Him to be called a child of God. His Incarnation did indeed put Him in a state of servitude; and it was indeed a great thing for His manhood to be so united to God.

6. εθ δουλ. πολλοίς] Is. liii 11.

7.  $\mu \epsilon \gamma \alpha ... \pi \alpha i \delta \alpha \theta \cdot ]$  Is. xlix 6. From what follows, it seems that Gr. (and his opponents) understood $\pi \alpha \hat{i} \delta \alpha = \tau \epsilon \kappa \nu \rho \nu \text{ or } \nu \hat{i} \delta \nu$ .

8. έδούλ. σαρκί] Gr. seems to be undecided whether to take  $\pi \circ \lambda$ λοιs as neut., including σάρξ, γένεσις,  $\pi \acute{a}\theta \eta$ , or as masc., viz.  $\pi \^{a}$ σιν οἶς  $\kappa \tau \lambda$ . The 'Attic attraction' in ols misled De Billy into supposing that  $\pi \hat{a} \sigma \iota \nu$  likewise was neut. (omnibus illis per quae). It is difficult to determine whether the same mistake caused the copyists to write κατεχομένους, or whether Gr. himself neglected to complete the attraction by saying (as he should have done) κατεχομένοις. That De Billy's translation is wrong is shewn by the absence of the article before κατεχομένους; if Gr. had meant 'and all those things whereby He hath saved those who were enslaved,' he must have said τους κατεχ. In view of the preponderating authority for κατεχομένους, it seems best to retain it in the text, understanding it to be a construction ad sensum, agreeing with the ovs which lies hidden in the attracted ols.

τί δὲ μεῖζον ἀνθρώπου ταπεινότητι ἢ θεῷ πλακῆναι, καὶ γενέσθαι θεὸν ἐκ τῆς μίξεως, καὶ τοσοῦτον ἐπισκεφθῆναι ἀνατολῆ ἐξ ὕψους, ὥστε καὶ τὸ γεννώμενου ἵιγιον υἱὸν ὑψίστου κληθῆναι, καὶ χαρισθῆναι αὐτῷ τὸ ὄνομα τὸ ὑπὲρ 5 πᾶν ὄνομα; τοῦτο δὲ τί ποτε ἄλλο ἐστὶν ἢ θεός; καὶ τὸ πᾶν γόνυ κάμψαι τῷ κενωθέντι δι' ἡμᾶς, καὶ τὴν θείαν εἰκόνα δουλικῆ μορφῆ συγκεράσαντι, καὶ γνῶναι πάντα οἶκον Ἰσραήλ, ὅτι καὶ κύριον αὐτὸν καὶ Χριστὸν ὁ θεὸς ἐποίησεν; γέγονε γὰρ ταῦτα ἐνεργεία μὲν τοῦ γεννήματος, το εὐδοκία δὲ τοῦ γεννήτορος.

5. The text speaks of the subjection of the Son. It speaks of Him in us, or of us in Him. When we are wholly subject, then Christ, our Head, becomes subject, and not before. And so far from our language implying that the Son is at present in a state of rebellion, it is He who brings about our subjection. So also when He cries Why hast Thou forsaken Me? it is we who speak in His person.

'subjection' of the Son to the Father. The Eunomian, who wished to make out that the Son's position is always and necessarily a subordinate one, as being that of a creature, retorted, 'What? is He not subject now, but requires to be reduced to subjection,—although you make Him out to be God? Such language is only suitable to a robber, or to a rival claimant of the Godhead.'

6. His learning obedience, His strong crying and tears, are a sacred drama, in which He represents us, entering into a full realisation of our circumstances. He learns by personal experience to be lenient to our falls. When the text in question proceeds to say that God will be all in all, it does not mean the Father as distinguished from the Son, but the Godhead as a whole.

13. μαθεῖν] Heb. v 8; cp. vs. 7. 16. δραματουργεῖται] 'It is a drama, wonderfully constructed for our advantage.' 'The saint,' says Elias, 'applies the name of a drama to that which our Saviour endured as representing mankind. He does not mean that it was unreal and fictitious, like other dramas; but only that Christ impersonates and plays the part of the human race,' i.e. not the part which belongs properly to His eternal and divine self.

 διὰ τ. πρ. χωρ.] 'give it practical effect'; lit. 'proceed by way of action.'

10. δοκιμάζει] 'is applying a test to'; not in the usual sense, by temptation of us, but by Himself experiencing what temptation must be to us. So He takes a measure of all that we go through, by means of His own sufferings. It may seem as if κάκεῦνο were but a repetition of what had already been said in ἔργφ τιμᾶ τ. ὑπακ. κ. πειρᾶται ταύτης. The difference is that in the earlier sentences Gr. speaks of us as represented by Christ; we suffer, as it were, and obey in Him. Here he states the converse truth, that Christ identifies His lot with ours; He enters into our experiences in order to know at first hand what obedience on our part costs.

12. ποσον μέν άπαιτ.] De Billy translates quantumque et a nobis exigi et condonari debeat, which gives the required sense, but is grammatically impossible. If πόσον be read, the only possible meaning is that Christ learns by practical experience what is demanded of us and what allowance is made for us. This, however, is unsatisfactory, so far as  $\sigma \nu \gamma \chi \omega \rho$ . It is best to read ποσόν, and to make ἀπαιτ., συγχωρ., independent verbs coordinate with δοκιμ., μετρεί. They thus express the result of Christ's gracious experiment; 'and a certain demand is still made upon us, and a certain allowance is now made for us, our infirmity being taken into account along with what we have to bear.'

1. διά τὸ πρόβλημα] 'because of the screen (or shade)' which partly concealed Him. The πρόβλημα was the fleshly nature which Christ assumed. If it had not been for that, the Evil One would not have ventured to 'persecute' Him. The thought is a favourite one with Gr. Cp. Or. xxiv 9 πείραν προσάγει τώ ἀπειράστω, ἐπειδὴ δεύτερον ᾿Αδὰμ είδε του θεού τὸ φαινόμενον, ώς καὶ τοῦτον καταπαλαίσων * ήγνόει γὰρ ὅτι περιπεσείται θεότητι, προσδραμών άνθρωπότητι. 3. τὸ σκότος πόσον] διωχθήσεται.

Tò  $\sigma \kappa$ . =  $\dot{\eta} \mu \epsilon \hat{\imath} s$ , cp. Eph. v 8. It is difficult to draw any distinction between  $\sigma \kappa \delta \tau o s$  and  $\sigma \kappa \sigma \tau d a$ ; but  $\sigma \kappa \delta \tau o s$  is more concrete, so to speak, and possibly in the preceding clause  $\tau o \vartheta \sigma \sigma v \eta \rho o \vartheta \delta o s$  is intended for a gen. dependent upon  $\sigma \kappa \sigma \tau l a s$ , not in app. to it.

4. ποσῶς καὶ καταλ.] The word is chosen with ref. to John i 5. Although Christ escaped uninjured from the temptation, it is not wonderful, Gr. says, that we should (not only be 'persecuted' by the tempter but) even to some extent be 'overtaken.' The wonder is that He should even have been subject to assault, not that we should fail under it.

1.  $\mu\eta\delta\dot{\epsilon}$   $\gamma\dot{a}\rho$   $\Sigma a\beta$ .] Gr. does not wish the Sabellians either  $(\mu\eta\delta\dot{\epsilon})$ , i.e. any more than the Eunomians, to wrest this text to their own destruction. Elias seems to take  $\pi a\rho a\phi\theta$ . in a deponent sense, but without authority.

2.  $\delta \log \theta \epsilon \delta s$  God in the most unrestricted sense. Exegetically Gr. is no doubt wrong:  $\delta \theta \epsilon \delta s$ , as usual, means the Father, to whom the Son Himself has just been said to be made subject. thigh sheaf from the  $\alpha\lambda Nos \tau ts$ , 4.  $\frac{\dot{\eta}}{\mu\kappa\epsilon\epsilon}\rho\omega$ ] Although most of the best MSS. read  $\dot{\nu}\mu$ , that reading seems due to a misunderstanding. Gr. has just admitted  $(\dot{\sigma}\mu\kappa\lambda\sigma\gamma - \dot{\eta}\mu\kappa\epsilon\hat{s})$  that the Father is greater than the Son by reason of being His  $al\tau la$ . Some one else, he says, of course on the orthodox side, might find fault with me for the admission, and urge that in this case no manner of inferiority attaches to being 'caused' and not 'cause.' As Gr. has already (iii 11) made the remark in his own person, it is only a rhetorical device to put it here in the mouth of another.

The rendering of De Billy, sermonem nostrum acriori animi contentione prosequens, not only misunderstands the argument, but does violence to the meaning of προσφιλ.

9. τοῦ κατὰ τὸν ἄ. νοουμ.] 'than our Lord regarded as man,' lit. 'than Him who is considered according to the man' i.e. the man that is in Him. He does not see the Father act and then imitate His action, making for example a world apiece. His action is not similar, but identical, to that of the Father, only the initiative rests with the Father. The sustaining of what is already created is a part of this common action of Father and Son.

that in John vi 57 our Lord seems to refer not so much to the origination of His being as to something which may be compared to the continual sustenance of life (και ὁ τρώγων με κάκείνος ζήσει δι' έμέ). But on the other hand, so far as we know, the distinction between the original gift and the maintenance of life does not exist in the case of the Eternal Son, but belongs only to temporal existence. With Him nasci and pasci are the same. On the whole this interpretation is better than to translate ouvex. 'restricted,' 'confined.'

1. την...οἰκονομίαν] The only grammatical construction for these words is to attach them to κατὰ τὴν τ. έ. ὁμοτιμίαν, treating καὶ τοῦτο αν είη κτλ. as parenthetical. Της ¿ξουσίας will then be not merely 'of power,' but 'of the power' displayed in the making of τὰ γινόμενα:-for it is clear that Gr. understands ποιείν here chiefly of 'making' rather than 'doing.' He then adds that it is not only in respect of equality of power in creating that the Son is said to make or do 'likewise' whatever the Father makes or does, but in respect also of ordering and sustaining what He has made or done.

4. στ. βροντήν] Am. iv 13. Here the point seems to lie not only in the tense, but in the using, with regard to transient things like thunder and wind, such words as  $\sigma\tau\epsilon\rho\epsilon\sigma\delta\nu$ ,  $\kappa\tau\ell\zeta^*\epsilon\nu$  (to found). The explanation is that the 'law' or 'principle' of them  $(\lambda\delta\gamma\sigma)$  was laid down once for all, though the activity which produces them continues.

12. No. 7.—I came down not to do Mine own will, but the will of Him that sent Me. At first it looks as if this were said of the Manhood; for the human will does not always find it easy to conform to the divine. The cry in Gethsemane is a proof of it. But as it was only the divine nature which came down, the will cannot be the human will. Well, sentences of this kind do not always imply the existence of the thing whose activity is denied, but quite the opposite. The Son has no will of His own to do, apart from the Father's.

It does not wholly remove the difficulty to say that the 'time' when that action took place is, like the 'generation' of which it is one aspect, before and above time.

Ср. ката когоо § 13.

1. καὶ οὐ θετικῶς] This is added to bear out the assertion οὐχ ώς δυτος, άλλ' ώς οὐκ ὄντος. The point lies in this, that while the sentence, rigidly analysed, implies the existence of a fact, though it rejects an inference drawn from the fact, the speaker's intention is to deny the fact as well as the inference. Thus οὐ γὰρ ἐκ μέτρου κτλ. implies that the Spirit is 'given,' though not 'by measure'; but in reality it does not affirm the giving, any more than the measuring. Again, ούτε ή άμαρτία μου κτλ. implies that the Psalmist was guilty of sin, though that guilt was not the cause of the opposition which he encountered; but the Psalmist has no intention of affirming his own sin.

Again, οὐ διὰ τὰς δικ. ἡμ. implies that we have righteousnesses, though we claim nothing on the ground of them; but St Paul would never admit that we have any. Similarly, 'not Mine own will, but Thine' implies the existence of a will of the Son, apart from the Father's; but if we consider the expression  $d\pi d$ κοινοῦ, in a broad way, in view of the common use of language, we see that no assertion of the kind is intended.

ib. οὐ γὰρ ἐκ μέτρου] John iii 34. In the explanatory sentence θεός and θεώ make equally good sense. Gr. prob. understood the text as the A.V. does, supplying 'unto Him.' But perh. the very fact that this was the common interpretation caused  $\theta \epsilon \delta s$  to be changed into  $\theta \epsilon \hat{\omega}$ .

4. οὔτε ἡ ἀμαρτία] Ps. lviii 4 (lix 3).

5. οὐ διὰ τὰς δικ. ήμ.] A combination of Dan. ix 18 with Tit.

7. δήλον δέ τοῦτο] Gr. returns to the discussion of John vi 38 foll.

9. εἴτουν ἀποκατ.] Gr. adds this gloss, because in one sense unbelievers also have an aváoraois.

καὶ τίς ἂν τοῦτο πιστεύσειεν; ἐπεὶ καὶ τὸ τὸν λόγον τὸν ἀκουόμενον μὴ εἶναι τοῦ υἱοῦ, τοῦ πατρὸς δέ, τὴν αὐτὴν ἔχει δύναμιν. πῶς γὰρ ἴδιόν τινος τὸ κοινόν, ἢ μόνου, τοῦτο συνιδεῖν οὐκ ἔχω, πολλὰ σκοπῶν οἶμαι δέ, οὐδὲ 5 ἄλλος τις. ἂν οὕτω νοῆς περὶ τοῦ θέλειν, ὀρθῶς νοήσεις καὶ λίαν εὐσεβῶς, ὡς ὁ ἐμὸς λόγος, καὶ παντὸς τοῦ εὐγνώμονος.

1. τον λόγον τον ἀκ.] John xiv 24. The  $\dot{\epsilon}m\dot{\epsilon}$ l carries us somewhat abruptly back to the main thesis of the section, οὐχ ώς ὅντος κτλ.

6. καὶ  $\pi \alpha \nu \tau \delta s$   $\tau o \hat{\nu}$   $\epsilon \dot{\nu} \gamma \nu$ .] sc.  $\delta$   $\lambda \delta \gamma o s$ . This is the usual interpretation of the fathers.

13. No. 8.—Thee the only true God and Jesus Christ, and There is none good but one, that is, God. There are other instances where similar language does not exclude the Son. Here, it is used to exclude the false gods, and it is the common Godhead of the Father and of the Son which is addressed as the only true God. The other text is an answer to one who, thinking Him to be only a man, called Him 'good'; whereas the goodness was that of the Godhead. If this argument does not satisfy them, we can find them a text which, on their principles, would prove the Son alone to be God.

8. ἴνα γινώσκωσι σέ] John xvii 3. 10. οὐδεὶς ἀγαθός] Mark x 18.

12. την αὐτοαλήθειαν] viz. Christ, who says, "I am the Truth."

tive, to the verb: 'If you so understand  $\tau \hat{\varphi}$  µ $bv \varphi \sigma$ .  $\theta$ .' Usually in such cases we have  $\tau \delta \tau \hat{\varphi}$  µ $bv \varphi \kappa \tau \lambda$ . 16.  $ol\chi \hat{\eta} \sigma \epsilon \tau a t$   $\sigma ol$  'you condemn'

16. ολχήσεταί σοι] 'you condemn the Son to death, to darkness etc. and He must go.'

εἰ πρὸς ἐκ. ἀντιδιήρητο] 'If the words "only true" were used to distinguish God from Him,' 'to exclude Him.' Cp. § 4.

6. κατὰ κοινοῦ] Something like ἀπὸ κοινοῦ in § 12, 'in general.' Of course τῆς θεότ. depends upon ἦν, not upon κατὰ κ. Gr. does not perceive what difficulties he is landed in, if he makes 'Jesus Christ' address the Godhead in general as His sender. Both Nestorianism and Sabellianism are near at hand.

7. ἀπάντησιν ἔχει πρόs] 'is intended as an answer to.' Gr. has confused the Rich Young Ruler with the Lawyer who tempted Christ.

9. κᾶν τοῦτο] sc. ἀγαθός. 10. ὁ ἀγ. ἄνθρωπος] Matt. xii 35. 11. δώσω την β.] I Sam. xv 28.

4. νικήσειε] The subject of the verb is λέγεσθαι τοῦτο; 'if the contention that this is said in opposition to the Father should prevail'; or perhaps more strictly νικήσειε is impersonal, and λέγεσθαι in app. to its imaginary subject, 'if it should prevail that,' etc.

14. No. 9.—To make intercession for us. It does not mean that He appeals on our behalf to a higher power than His own, but He acts as our Representative and Mediator. In His capacity of our Paraclete, He encourages us to perseverance.

πάντοτε ζῶν] Heb. vii 25.
 μυστικῶs] 'in a way that is full of significance for us."

10. το γὰρ έντ.] 'for that intercession (Gr. does not mean intercession in general) does not contain (cp. ἔχει ἀπάντησιν § 13) any seeking of redress.' It is not the vindictive element in ἐκδίκησιν ζητεῦν which Gr. puts away, but the thought of appealing to a supreme power against a foe too strong for the appellant. 'There would,' he says, 'be something even of abasement in that.'

12.  $\pi \rho \epsilon \sigma \beta \epsilon \dot{\nu} \epsilon \dot{\nu} \dot{\nu} \pi$ .  $\dot{\eta} \mu$ .] 'to act as our Representative.'

16. μετὰ τοῦ σώματος] Gr. seems to mean 'with the Church.' Μετὰ would not be a very natural prep. to use of the other 'body.'

σώματός ἐστιν, οὖ προσέλαβεν, ἔως ἀν ἐμὲ ποιήση θεὸν τῆ δυνάμει τῆς ἐνανθρωπήσεως, κὰν μηκέτι κατὰ σάρκα γινώσκηται, τὰ σαρκικὰ λέγω πάθη καί, χωρὶς τῆς ἀμαρτίας, ἡμέτερα. οὕτω δὲ καὶ παράκλητον ἔχομεν Ἰησοῦν οὐχ ὡς ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν προκαλινδούμενον τοῦ πατρός, καὶ 5 προσπίπτοντα δουλικῶς. ἄπαγε τὴν δούλην ὄντως ὑπόνοιαν, καὶ ἀναξίαν τοῦ πνεύματος. οὕτε γὰρ τοῦ πατρὸς τοῦτο ἐπιζητεῖν, οὕτε τοῦ υἱοῦ πάσχειν, ἡ ὡς περὶ θεοῦ διανοεῖσθαι δίκαιον ἀλλ' οἶς πέπονθεν, ὡς ἄνθρωπος, πείθει καρτερεῖν, ὡς λόγος καὶ παραινέτης. τοῦτο νοεῖταί 10 μοι ἡ παράκλησις.

1. ἔως ἄν] Remembering what Gr. has said in § 4, we must not suppose him here to be fixing a terminus ad quem.

2. κατὰ σάρκα γιν.] 2 Cor. v 16. The explanatory clause, τὰ σαρκ. λέγω  $\pi$ ., shews that Gr. is not here concerned with our knowledge, but only with Christ's condition: γινώσκηται, but for the text of 2 Cor., might as well be  $\hat{\eta}$ .

3. χ. τῆς ἀμαρτίας] Heb. iv 15. 4. και παράκλητου] I John ii I. The και does not indicate a new thought, only a new text.

5. προκαλινδούμενον] 'falling prostrate before.'
7. τοῦ πνεύματος] whose inspired

7. του πνευματος] whose inspired words these are.

8. η...δίκαιον] The η grammatically joins δίκαιον to the adjectival notion in τοῦ πατρός, τοῦ νίοῦ.

 άλλ' οις πέπονθεν] 'But on the strength of what He has suffered in His character of Man, He prevails upon us to endure in His character of the Word and the Encourager,' Thus Gr. seems to recognise only the manward aspect of the work of the Advocate.

15. No. 10.—The Son knoweth not the last day or hour. Obviously the Wisdom through whom the worlds, or ages, were made cannot be ignorant of the length of their duration; and our Saviour's prophecies concerning the last things shew that He knew. You cannot know how the day ends without knowing how the night begins. He knew therefore as God, and knew not as man. The title of the Son, standing by itself, lends itself to this supposition.

12. μηδένα γινώσκειν] Mark xiii

15. ὁ π. τῶν αἰώνων] Heb. i 2. In συντελεστής Gr. perh. refers to such passages as Eph. i 10, or iv 13; in μεταπ., to Rev. xxi 5

The question only asks how such an one could be ignorant of anything; but the titles by which He is here spoken of have ref. to this particular thing.

2. ὡς τὸ πν. τοῦ ἀ.] I Cor. ii II. St Paul is speaking of the Spirit, not of the Son.

it.  $\dot{\epsilon}\nu \chi\rho\hat{\varphi}$ ] This seems to have been the reading of Elias; and it is found in the second hand of the Lincoln College Ms. The expression is both idiomatic and forcible, to denote what happens right up to the very moment of the end; and, as Jahn points out, in his notes on Elias, the word  $o\hat{\epsilon}$ o $\nu$  would go more naturally with it than with the tamer  $\dot{\epsilon}\nu \chi\rho\delta\nu\varphi$ . The reading  $\dot{\epsilon}\nu \chi\rho\delta\nu\varphi$  may easily be attributed to an early copyist unfamiliar with the phrase  $\dot{\epsilon}\nu \chi\rho\hat{\varphi}$ , who thought it an abbreviation for  $\dot{\epsilon}\nu \chi\rho\delta\nu\varphi$ .

9. συνεισάγει] 'implies,' 'involves'; cp. iii 16.

11.  $\tau \delta$  φαιν. χωρίση  $\tau ο \hat{v}$  ν.]  $\tau \delta$  νοούμενον may so naturally be used in contrast with  $\tau \delta$  φαιν., as 'the unseen' to 'the seen,' that probably Gr. must be understood to mean by the first the Lord's human nature, and by  $\tau \delta$  νοούμ. the divine. So Elias takes it. But it might be possible to take  $\tau \delta$   $\phi$ .= 'the look' of the saying, and  $\tau \delta$  νοούμ.= 'the meaning.' A casual reader, looking only at  $\tau \delta$   $\phi$ ., would think that an absolute ignorance was predicated; but attentive examination would shew that that is not  $\tau \delta$  γοούμενον.

12. τὸ γὰρ ἀπόλυτον κτλ.] The γὰρ justifies the assertion εὐδηλον. 'For the fact that the title of ''the Son'' stands absolutely and without conditions, nothing being added to say whose Son, suggests to us this interpretation; so that we put the more reverent construction upon the ignorance, and attribute it to the human nature, not to the divine.' "Ασχετον is used in a remarkable way, as if from σχέσις, 'relation.' In the light of later criticism, the fact which Gr. notices may be thought to tell in the opp. direction: the absolute title seems to denote the eternal relation, not the temporary condition. See Swete's note in his St Mark p. 297. Gr. takes the argument, as well as the illustrations of τείχος, νύξ, from Ath. Or. iii c. Ar. § 43, who says that if it had stood ὁ viòs τοῦ θεοῦ, it would have implied that the Godhead did not know, but that o vios allows us to suppose that the ignorance is that τοῦ ἐξ ἀνθρώπων γενομένου υίοῦ.

16. Or perhaps He only means to refer this knowledge, like everything else which the Son possesses, to its absolute source in the Father. All expressions about His obedience and the cost of it evidently apply only to the nature which He assumed. We pass to the consideration of His many titles.

8. ἐπὶ τὴν alτlav] 'referred back to the primary Cause,' i.e. the Father. This has already been done in the case of the Son's power; it holds good of 'everything else' which the Son possesses; they are not His, but the Father's, inasmuch as the Father alone is the source of them. So it may be, Gr. says, with our Lord's knowledge of great matters.

10. των καθ' ήμας φ. τις] Ηε means Basil, who tells Amphilochius (Epist. ccxxxvi) that this was the interpretation which he had heard έκ παιδὸς παρὰ τῶν πατέρων. The same is found in the Disp. c. Arium printed with the works of Athanasius (§ 27).

ib. μικρον έννοησαι ' ruould see to some extent.' The observation holds true, even if we do not accept Basil's account of the particular passage (μηδέ έκείνως άναγνούς).

II. η ωs ότι ο π.] 'except in so far as He does so because the Father dors?

12. τὸ συναγόμενον] Cp. § 12. The argument is not very clear; but the ωs δηλον appears to give the reason, not for the Son's knowing, but for the Son's knowing it from the Father. Nothing but the πρώτη φύσις can know, therefore the incarnate Son could not obtain the knowledge in any other way than from the Father.

5. λυομένη] Cp. ii 13. The sound is uttered and melts away and perishes; it is therefore unsuitable for expressing the indissoluble, imperishable nature of God.

6. Ιδιάζουσαν] This epithet is added in a not strictly logical position. The fact that God's nature is unique is no reason why it should not be expressed in fleeting sounds. The word is added in ref. to the custom mentioned, of using a special character.

8.  $\pi\epsilon\rho i$   $\alpha\dot{\nu}\tau\delta\nu$ ] contrasted with  $\kappa\alpha\tau'$   $\alpha\dot{\nu}\tau\delta\nu$ . For Gr.'s use of  $\pi\epsilon\rho i$  with acc. see iii 10, 12. Certain facts in connexion with God are known to us, and from these we dimly and tentatively draw for ourselves pictures of what He actually is.

9. ἄλλην ἀπ' ἄλλου] We put our mental image together, deriving part of it from one quarter, part from another.

11.  $\dot{\sigma} \delta e \sigma \mu \dot{\sigma} s$ ] Elias is, no doubt, right in understanding the bond which binds the soul to the body. Cp. iii 8.

13. ἴνδαλμα] Cp. ii 20.

18. Two names come nearest to expressing His nature, I AM, and GOD. Of these, however, God, and Lord also, is after all a relative term. I AM is a less inadequate name, because it is positive and absolute.

Gr. does not in these words mean to describe a property which distinguishes the divine nature from others. It is a common property of all natures. 'Man,' for ex., is not the name of a relationship, but of a substantive thing; while 'husband,' 'slave,' 'Cappadocian,' which express a relationship, are not the names of a nature.

14.  $\mathring{l}\delta lov \mathring{o}v \tau \omega s \theta \epsilon o \hat{v}$  sc.  $\mathring{\epsilon} \sigma \tau l v$ . What we are in quest of, we find in the name o wu; for to ov is the special property of God, and belongs to Him in its entirety, not partially, as it does to other beings, who only have a share in existence. It is a little surprising that Gr. does not say τὸ δὲ είναι, instead of τὸ δὲ ὄν. Perhaps it is because he has used to  $\epsilon l \nu a \iota$  immediately before in a somewhat different sense (viz. of what a thing is, rather than that it is); and καὶ ὅλον, μήτε τῷ πρὸ αὐτοῦ, μήτε τῷ μετ' αὐτόν, οὐ γὰρ ην, ημ ἔσται, περατούμενον η περικοπτόμενον.

2.  $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \kappa \sigma \pi \tau \delta \mu \epsilon \nu \sigma \nu$ ] The meaning of the verb is illustrated by the subst.  $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \kappa \sigma \tau \dot{\eta}$ , a passage in a book with its beginning and ending marked.

19. Other titles signify His power, like Almighty, King, Lord; others belong to His revelation of Himself in history, such as God of vengeance, of salvation, of righteousness. All these are common to the Three Persons, each of whom has His special appellation. Those of the Son are as follows.

ib.  $\hat{\eta}$  τῶν δυν.] Is. xxiii (xxiv) 10. 131. Cp. ii 6.

ib. δικαιοσύνη Ι Cor. i 30. Gr. does not see in the passage any ref. to justification. Christ is 'righteousness' inasmuch as He awards in all cases what is meet and right. As examples of such award, He mentions the judging justly between those under the law and those under grace, and between soul and body. Διαιταν with the dat. is 'to arbitrate for or between.' By arbitrating between those under law and grace respectively, Gr. prob. meant that in the final settlement of rewards and punishments account will be taken of the opportunities which each man has enjoyed in life.

12. ἔτι] as in § 19; 'thus far.' ib. τοῦ τε ὑπὲρ ἡμ.] It would be quite in keeping with Gr.'s usage to make the τοῦ masc., 'Him who is above us and Him who came to be what He is for our sakes'; cp. § 7. But perhaps we may give Gr. the benefit of the doubt and take the word as neut., as it is below.

ib. οὐκ ἐνεργεία] In the case of other 'anointed' ones the Godhead sanctifies them by exerting energy upon them; but in the case of Christ's humanity the sanctification was due to the indwelling of the entire power which sanctifies. The effect of this is that that anointing power in Him bears the name of God, while that which it anoints is raised to Godhead. In this statement we have the converse of that inexactness which has been referred to above. It is not really τὸ χρίον, strictly speaking, which is called man, but ὁ χρίων.

The word  $\tau \dot{\epsilon} \lambda \epsilon \iota \sigma \nu$  (not  $\tau \dot{\epsilon} \lambda \epsilon \iota \sigma s$ ) is evidently used in its Homeric sense, 'a thing without blemish.' Possibly the neut. is used to make the word agree with  $\sigma \phi \dot{\alpha} \gamma \iota \sigma \nu$ .

κτλ.; Heb. xiii 8. Gr. ends with something of a 'riddle,' in order to fix his teaching in the memory. The words from Ίησοῦς to σωματικῶς form the subject;  $\delta$  a $\dot{\nu}\tau\delta s$   $\pi\nu$ . is the predicate. The interpr. which Gr. has just put upon the title Χριστός must be borne in mind. He seems to take  $\chi\theta$ .  $\kappa$ .  $\sigma\eta\mu$ . closely together, in the sense of 'recently,' 'during these last few days,'-not, of course, like  $\pi \rho \omega \eta \nu \tau \epsilon \kappa \alpha i \chi \theta \dot{\epsilon} s$ , excluding the present, but including it. With σωματικώς cp. Col. ii 9; the adverbs have no verbs to qualify, unless ww or ὑπάρχων be supplied. For πνευματικώς = νοουμένως see Westcott on Heb. ix 14. The sentence is therefore: 'Jesus, anointed with the whole indwelling Godhead, who now for a few days has been in bodily form, is, considered according to the inward ύψηλοτέροις ἢ ταπεινοτέροις ὀνόμασιν· Ἰησοῦς Χριστός, χθὲς καὶ σήμερον σωματικῶς, ὁ αὐτὸς πνευματικῶς, καὶ εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας. ᾿Αμήν.

1. So the Son has escaped your stoning; but even among those who shrink from extremes in their opposition to the Son, there are some who think there is no scriptural authority for calling the Holy Spirit God. They part company with the extreme men, and then rejoin them, like roads or rivers that divide and then meet again.

ib. ἐπὶ τῶν ὁδῶν εύρ. ἐ.] Roads and rivers sometimes divide, and then the divergent portions meet again lower down. So here, people differ on most points but agree on others, so that you never can be sure where they agree and where they

2. The enquiry about the Holy Ghost is difficult. Controversialists defeated over the Son attack the Holy Ghost the more eagerly. Good Christians, sick of argument, wish the enquiry left alone. But we must try. I shall not discuss the meaning of 'holy' and of 'Spirit,' or of the two words together. That has been done by others.

3. of  $\delta\nu\theta\rho\omega\pi\omega$ ] The clause  $\chi\rho\dot{\eta}$   $\gamma\dot{\alpha}\rho$   $\tau\iota$   $\kappa\tau\lambda$ , as well as the opposed  $\delta\lambda\lambda'$   $\delta\tau\iota$   $\kappa\alpha\iota$   $\dot{\eta}\mu\epsilon\bar{\iota}s$ , shows that Gr. does not mean 'men,' including good Christians who dislike controversy, but 'the men,' i.e. his opponents. Their very failure, and the exhaustion of their arguments about the Son  $(\delta\pi\kappa\alpha\mu\delta\nu\tau\epsilon s)$ , make them the more keen in their attack upon the Spirit.

6. ἀποκναισθέντες Cp. i 2.

7. κακοσίτοις] 'squeamish about their diet.'

ib. of ἐπειδὰν κτλ.] The MSS appear to give no sign of any other reading, but the grammar is in hopeless confusion. The simplest remedy would be to strike out of before $\epsilon \pi \epsilon \iota \delta \acute{a} \nu$ , and to insert it before  $\pi \mu \grave{o}s$  $\pi \acute{a} \nu \tau a$ . Otherwise we must suppose that some words have fallen out after ἀηδισθῶσι, such as πάντα ἀπο-· στρέφονται, followed by ημείς ουν to begin a new sentence. The required sense is plain, though it cannot be got out of the present text: that as people of delicate stomach, who have had something offered them which they dislike, turn against food in general, so we, disgusted with the Eunomian arguments about the Son, are disinclined to listen to arguments of any kind about the Spirit, or indeed on any religious subject.

9. ὁ λόγος δραμεῖται] 2 Thess. iii 1. As, however, ὁ λόγος is here 'the argument,' and not directly 'the word of God,' Gr. shrinks from making it the subject of δοξασθήσεται, as in St Paul.

11.  $\pi o \sigma a \chi \hat{\omega} s$ ] in how many different senses the words  $\pi \nu \epsilon \hat{\nu} \mu a$  and  $\ddot{a} \gamma \iota o s$  are used in Scripture.

3. ἐπεὶ καὶ ἡμεῖs] The use of  $\dot{\epsilon}\pi\epsilon l$ , where perh. we might have expected us, seems to be in favour of the reading ταὐτά, which would thus be taken to mean, 'since we agree with them.' But the MSS. are not of very great value in matters of this kind (and it must be remembered that the principal Ms. fails us at this point); and it would be difficult to supply a verb that would suit ταὐτά, which the obvious φιλοσοφούμεν would not do. Έπει will therefore indicate that the proposed division of labour is a fair one: the ἔτεροι (by whom Gr. prob. means, not Basil, but students who were still living to profit by his labours), have worked at that particular study for our advantage as well as their own, and we will leave it to them, since we are labouring at this other for theirs as well as ours.

3. Zeal for the letter of Scripture is sometimes a cloak for sinful unbelief. My confidence in the God-

4. There never was a time when He was not. No one person of the Trinity can be imagined to exist or to have ever existed without the others; for an imperfect Godhead is unthinkable; especially a Godhead without holiness. If He ever began to exist, He is on a level with us. How then could He raise us, as He does, to Godhead?

6. μη τοῦτο ἔχουσα] Βη τοῦτο Gr. means the Holy Ghost.

 $\gamma$ . ἢ γὰρ ἄλλη τις] Besides the superior Ms. authority for ἢ, it accords better with the καl before ἥ τις, which would be unintelligible with εl. It is quite in Gr.'s style to interpose the question with καl before passing on to the second horn of the dilemma. 'Either the holiness of the Godhead is independent of the Holy Spirit,—and in that case I should like to be informed what it is supposed to be; or if' etc.

5. The Sadducees denied His existence. Some of the best Greek thinkers had glimpses of Him, but there was no agreement among them on the point. Christians likewise are divided. While some believe Him to be God, some think Him a Divine operation, or even a creature; some make nice distinctions between His nature and those of the Father and Son.

3. διαπτύσαντες] Cp. i 2. By τὰς τοσαύτας Gr. prob. means, as De Billy interprets, tot ac tanta.

 $i\dot{b}$ . Έλλήνων  $\delta\dot{\epsilon}$  ol  $\theta$ .] no doubt esp. Plato and Aristotle. If the actual expression  $\nu o 0 s$   $\tau o \dot{v}$  παντόs does not occur in Plato, the thought is frequently there, and prob. the expression itself in some of the Neo-Platonists. The phrase  $\tau \dot{o} \nu$   $\theta \dot{\nu} \rho \alpha \theta \epsilon \nu$  comes from Arist. de Gen. An. ii 3.

6. τῶν δὲ καθ' ἡμ. σ.] 'of our own clever people,' as opp. to 'Ελλήνων. There is an ironical tone in σοφῶν,

14. ἄλλων δὲ ήκουσα] 'I have heard others, still cleverer, meting out Godhead.' It is not known whom he means.

15. τὰ νοούμενα] 'that our notion is that of three existences.' The neut. is used throughout to avoid undue handling of personal language.

 ἀλλον τρόπον μιμ.] 'imitating, though in a somewhat different form, those,' etc. He seems to mean Arius.

4. τάξιν καὶ χάριν] The word χάρις appears to be used in the sense which Lidd. and Scott put as IV 2, viz. 'homage due,' 'majesty'; and τάξις accordingly will be, not exactly the order in which the names stand in the Bible, but the rank which is inherent in each. 'Who think that the rank and dignity of the respective names denotes a gradation of the realities which they represent.' The πράγματα, of course, are the three Blessed Persons themselves.

6. Against Sadducee and Greek I shall not indulge myself to argue, but only against the others. The Holy Ghost is either a contingent or a substantive existence. If contingent, He must be a Divine operation or influence; but this does not agree with the personal language of Scripture. If He is a substantive existence, He is either God or a creature; there is no betwixt and between. If

He is a creature, how can we 'believe in' Him? He must be God.

8. άμαρτ. έλαίω] Ps. cxl (cxli) 5. It may be asked, why it would be an anointing of himself with the oil of sinners for his oration to enter into controversy with such persons, while he feels himself at liberty to argue with the Macedonians. The answer is, that the άμαρτωλοί are not opponents (as the Donatists might have said) too bad even to be argued with. He means that, although it might add a richness and profusion to his discourse, there would be a kind of sinful self-indulgence in demolishing opinions with which he was not practically confronted.

9. των καθ' ἐαυτὸ ὑφ.] 'either an independent subsistence, or a thing observed in something else.'

6.  $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu \pi \epsilon \rho \hat{\iota} \tau \hat{\eta} \nu \circ \hat{\iota}$ .] 'an existence, and not an attribute of ex-

ib. οὐ γὰρ ταὐτόν] 'it is not the same thing to believe in anything, and to believe statements about it; the first is peculiar to God, the second can be done with any thing.' See Pearson on the Creed I believe in God; who rightly says that the distinction is more characteristic of Western than of Eastern theology.

7. φιλοσώματος] i.e. determined to refer everything to material standards.

9. σοφοί τοῦ κακ.] Jer. iv 22. It is hard to see why Gr. balances this clause by 'and will not write what is good.' It is not a reference to anything in Scripture. No doubt the Eunomian literature was as extensive as its oral polemic.

11. τὰ πράγματα] much as at the end of § 5. The 'names' which he says would not scare him off are such as that of viwvos. Not that he admits that such a name would necessarily be applicable, even if the 'facts' were as suggested. This is shewn in the next sentence.

12. κατά τινα σχ. ύψ.] 'according to some relationship too lofty for us to understand' the Son is Son. No other language would express at once His derivation from the Father and His being of one substance with Him. It does not follow, however, that all the nomenclature of our earthly relationships is to be transferred straightway to the Godhead.

1. συγγενόμενον] 'by intercourse with His own will'; cp. iii 6. The 'ancient fables' are prob. those of heathen mythology, not of Gnosticism.

3. Μαρκίωνος] Marcion's system has really nothing to do with Gnosticism and its fantastic inventions, although he is usually reckoned among the Gnostics. Perh. therefore Gr. uses his name with that of Valentinus to denote in contemptuous indifference Gnosticism in general; or perh. he confuses Marcion with Marcus, the disciple of Val., from whom the Marcosians take their name.

ib. θεὸς ἀρρενδθηλυς] Gr. does not mean that Val. taught that God was  $\mathring{a}\rho\rho$ , but only compares the God who has just been imagined with the bisexual beings of the Valentinian system. See Iren. I i I εἶναι

9. 'Where does He come short of being a Son?' you ask. In nothing. It is no defect, any more than it is a defect in the Son not to be Father, or in the Father not to be Son. The names denote unalterable relationships within a single nature.

this language does not indicate a deficiency in any direction, nor the inferiority of essence.' The  $\tau \alpha \tilde{v} \tau a$  does not refer only to what has immediately preceded, viz. that the Father is not Son;—this would not suggest any thought of  $\tilde{v}\phi\epsilon\sigma us$ . It refers also to the Son's not being Father, nor the Spirit Son.

4. προσηγόρευσεν] The abovementioned facts 'proclaim Them' respectively Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. The aor. takes us back to the moment when these titles were first assigned in Scripture.

5. ὑποστάσεων] here used in the recognised 'personal' sense.

7.  $\delta\pi\epsilon\rho$   $\delta$   $\pi\alpha\tau\eta\rho$ ] He is not the Father, but He is all that the Father is.

ib.  $\ddot{o}\tau \iota \dot{e}\kappa \tau \circ \hat{o} \theta$ .] The fact that He is of the Father's essence (1 Cor. ii 12) does not make Him Son.

8. ἐν τὰ τρία τŷ θ.] The Three (Gr. again avoids the masc.) are One—an undivided unit—in their nature; the One is Three—a Trinity—in the ineffaceable distinction between the persons. The latter observation removes the Sabellian conception of the unity; the former removes the Eunomian division of the natures. In the construction of the last clause,  $\tau \hat{\eta} \hat{r} m$ ,  $\nu$ ,  $\delta u a \nu \hat{\rho} \hat{r} \omega \hat{r} \hat{r} \hat{r}$  is the predicate after  $\hat{\eta}$  understood, like  $\delta \hat{v} \hat{r} \epsilon \hat{r} \hat{\lambda} \lambda \hat{c} \hat{\nu} \hat{\nu} \omega \hat{r}$  above.

10. You are surprised at our calling Him God, consubstantial with the Father. He must be so if there is only one God and one Godhead. I am ashamed to use earthly illustrations; but even in natural history there are very different modes of reproduction which it might help you to consider.

12. δὸς οὖν μοι] The word διδόναι is not used here in its frequent sense of a logical concession; for it would be no concession to the Eunomians to 'give' what is here required. It means rather, 'shew me,' 'convince me that it is so.' The Eunomian offers, if convinced that two consubstantial persons issue from the same Divine Source, to acknowledge each of them to be a God.

Gr. illustrates the illogical character of the offer by a counter-paralogism. 'Shew me,' he says, 'that there is more than one sort of God, and I will shew you the same Trinity that we now believe in, name and thing.' It is as unreasonable to deduce ditheism or tritheism from the Catholic doctrine of the relation of the Son and Spirit to the Father, as it would be to deduce the Catholic doctrine of the Trinity from a belief in Godheads of varying quality.

16. ἐξ ἐτέρων τὰ αὐτά κτλ.] The instance given by Elias is that of frogs, some of which are the offspring of frogs, and others the spontaneous product of the marsh, and yet equally frogs. His instance of the converse is more true to nature, but a less exact illustration of his subject.

1. είς ἄλλα μεθιστάμενα] Elias very properly instances gnats, as developed out of larvae. It was prob. not known that such larvae invariably developed into gnats, or that all gnats had been such larvae.

2. φιλοτιμία φ.] 'in nature's eagerness to excel'; cp. ἡ φ. ἐφιλο-

ib. ήδη δὲ καὶ τοῦ αὐ.] The same creature produces offspring in more than one way, by generation and otherwise; and both kinds of offspring have the same nature as the parent. Gr. is prob. thinking of the way in which some low forms of animal life appear (like plants) to be propagated by 'cuttings' as well as by 'seed.'

1.  $\tau \delta$  προσκ.  $\tau \hat{\varphi}$  πν.] Gr. thinks that 'worshipping or praying in or by the Spirit,' which are clearly commanded, are in fact the bringing of prayer and worship by the Spirit to Himself. This is based upon the text first quoted, in which the object of the worship  $\pi \nu \epsilon \hat{\nu} \mu a$  έστν. Not that Gr. definitely takes the first  $\pi \nu \epsilon \hat{\nu} \mu a$  in that text to be the Holy Ghost; but on the principle that worship offered to one person of the Trinity is offered to all, his reasoning is correct, if his premisses are accepted. It must be owned, however, that he somewhat begs the question.

7. πάντα διὰ τοῦ vl.] John i 3.
11. τῷ vlῷ δὸs] 'assign Him to the made through Him.

12. τῷ περιληπτικῷ] 'your comprehensive phrase will not help you.'

 τὸ πῶν ἔση καθ.] Cp. § 4.
 βέλτιον μικράν] 'Better to have a notion of the union, however incomplete, than to venture upon such thorough-going ungodliness.'

13. It is painful to revive a long-dead controversy; but I must defend myself against the charge of Tritheism. It is brought against us both by those who go all lengths in unbelief, and by some who are fairly orthodox with regard to the Son. To the latter I would say that they are equally open to the charge of Ditheism.

4. ἐπ' αὐτὸ τὸ κεφ.] 'to the fundamental question itself,' viz. how to reconcile the Godhead of the Three Persons with the unity of God.

5. τη πίστει παραχ.] 'that had yielded to faith.'

7. λογολέσχας] like άδολέσχας,

ib. μη έρ. άλωναι] a law term, freq. in Demosth., 'to have judgment given against us by default.' 'Ep. agrees with δίκην understood, which is a kind of cognate acc. after άλωναι.

ib.  $\lambda \delta \gamma o \nu \in \chi$ .] used in a kind of double sense, which after all is but one; 'to have the Word,' and 'to have reason.'

9. πολυαρχία τὸ δ.] 'how can the object which you glorify not be poly-theistic?' Cp. iii 2.

10. ταῦτα τίνες;] 'Who is it that says this? Is it those who go the whole length of ungodliness?' i.e. the Arians and the Eunomians? 'or is it, as may well be the case (kai), those who belong to the second division, and are more or less right-minded with regard to the Son?' Cp. § 1 περί τον υίον μετριάζοντες. Gr. asks, because part of his argument will apply to both sections, and part that which comes next-only to the latter.

14. τί φατε] 'What do you say to us Tritheists?' i.e. What argument can you urge against us, whom you call Tritheists, which will not equally apply to yourselves, who worship the Son, even if you have departed from the Spirit?

6. ὁ λόγος της διθ. ὑμῖν] 'what defence do you offer for your ditheism, if you are charged with it?'

7. λόγος συνέσεως] an expression formed on the model of λόγος σοφίας, γνώσεως, I Cor. xii 8.

10. ύμιν τοις κ. σ. χρ.] 'by the advocacy of you our accusers.'

14. To both parties I answer thus. There is but one God, and one Godhead; and though there are three Persons, there is but one Source from which all that belongs to the Godhead issues. Between these three Persons there is no kind of division or inequality, as there is between the specimens of a limited class.

13.  $\epsilon ls \theta \epsilon \delta s$ ,  $\delta \tau \iota \mu . \theta . ] ' There is$ but one God, because there is only one thing that can be called God-head.' If there could be different kinds of Godhead, we might imagine many Gods; but as the thing is necessarily unique, we cannot conceive of it as the possession of several personages independent of each other. This argument, of course, is based on philosophical grounds, not on divine revelation; but it bears witness to the reasonableness of that revelation.

ib. πρὸς ἐν τὰ ἐξ αὐτοῦ] Cp. iii 2 πρός τὸ ἐν τῶν ἐξ αὐτοῦ σύννευσις. The personalities issuing from a single source are referred back to that source so as to be but one with it, although we recognise that they are three. The αὐτοῦ is neuter. It refers to Ev.

 ἀμέριστος ἐν μεμ.] 'but divided as the Persons are, the entire and undivided Godhead is in each.' The passage is incorporated without comment by Jo. Damasc. de Fide Orth. viii.

3. ἐν ἡλίοις τρίσιν] The illustration only shews the impossibility of illustration. 'Three suns joined to each other' might appear to us as one, but their relation to each other would be very different from that of the Three Divine Persons.

6. τὸ φανταζόμενον] The word does not imply that our observation is untrue, but only that it is (necessarily) inadequate. Cp. e.g. ii 6,

ib. πρὸς τὰ ἐν οῖς ἡ θ.] 'at the Persons in which the Divine nature resides, and which issue from the First Cause, deriving from it Their existence above all time and with an equality of glory, there are Three objects for our adoration.' Gx. avoids saying τρεῖς οἱ προσκ., not only, as so freq., for the sake of reverence, but because it sounds at first as if the three were 'separate individualities' like ourselves. Tpla also has its dangers, as possibly suggesting differences of nature; but in the context this danger is removed. It is possible that Gr. here means to speak of the Father Himself as  $\epsilon k$   $\tau \hat{\eta} \hat{s} \pi p \hat{\omega} \tau \eta \hat{s} al\tau \hat{l} as$ ; but, if so, that  $\pi p \hat{\omega} \tau \eta al\tau l a$  is within Himself. He is the source of His own being.

15. The Greeks, it is true, spoke of a single Divine nature, compatible with plurality; as is the case also with human nature. But in these cases, each individual has but a fragment of the whole nature, and varies, not only from all other partakers of it, but from himself also, by change. This holds true even of angels.

13. μόνον ἐπινοία θ.] In the case of the heathen polytheism, the common Godhead exists only as a conception or generalisation of the philosopher; it has no existence in fact. Each individual deity differs greatly from the other in history, and character, and capacities. The

2. οὐ σύνθετοι μόνον] We are not only composite beings, made up of body and soul, and each of these factors again resoluble into different component parts; we are beings of opposite characteristics, -not only as compared with each other, but as compared with our own fluctuating and inconstant selves.

16. The divisions among the many 'Gods' of the Greeks are notorious. They are at shameful variance. Their empire is partitioned out. Not so with our God. Each of the three Persons is absolutely one with Himself, and no less absolutely one with the others.

18. τὰ όμ. συναριθμεῖται] Things of the same nature, like men, trees, or horses, come under a number which sums them up, as three trees, four horses, five men; you cannot, acc. to the disputant, apply them to heterogeneous things, and class a tree, a horse, and a man together as being three.  ωστε ὑμεῖς μέν] These are still the words of the opponent, down to λέγομεν. On the principle just laid down, he says, if the Father, the Son, and the Spirit can be called three at all, it can only be as three Gods; that is, your doctrine is incurably tritheistic. Ours is not, he adds; for we deny the identity of essence, and make no attempt at bringing those beings together under a number.

he means cases where the noun is expressed and the numeral agrees with it (ofs i.e. συναριθμουμένοις practically = 'the numeral'), like 'three men,' 'three Gods.' He does not mean that you can never lump together under a neuter numeral heterogeneous objects as so many 'things.' This, he says, is not a connumeration.

2. τίς γὰρ ἡ ἀντίδοσις;] This is explained by the words below, ἀδικήσεις, μὴ διδοὺς ὅπερ εἴληφας; It is Gr.'s reply to the objector. 'What,' he asks, 'shall I make you give me in return?' The γὰρ implies a suppressed 'Take care!'

ib. τοῦτο νομοθ. ἐστι] 'This,' Gr. retorts, 'is to legislate for language, not to state the facts with regard to it.' At that rate, he can refuse to admit that Peter and Paul and John are three beings of the same nature; he may say that unless all the peculiarities of Peter are exactly reproduced, so that there are three Peters, there is not sufficient correspondence between Peter and the others to warrant their being brought under a single number as three men.

6. γενικωτέρων] 'generic' as opposed to εἰδικός 'specific.' Gr. puts both words in the comp., because he does not use them in a quite strict sense.

τρεῖς εἶναι τοὺς μ.] I John v 8.
 μὴ καταλλ. ἔχων ἀπ.] 'because he comes forward without putting his words in grammatical agreement.' 'Αρρενικῶς, 'in the masc.'; οὐδετέρως, 'in the neut.'

3. τό τε ὅργανον] a pair of tongs. 8. έληλεγμένος] from ἐλέγχω.

10. ἥ τε τῶν ὁ, συνεκφ.] 'and the nouns are expressed in both cases, along with the numeral,' i.e. not merely 'understood.' Gr. means both in the case of ὁμοούσια which are not numbered together, and in that of οὐχ ὁμοούσια which are.

20. It will not bear the simplest test of addition or division. Your rules about the order of enumeration, and about the use of prepositions, are just as ridiculous. We will now proceed to give you the coup de grace.

13. οὐκ εἰς δύο συντ.] 'one and one make two,' although acc. to the heretic's logic 'one and one' would only be said of things of different nature, such as could never be united under a common numeral. Conversely 'two is divided into one and one,' although 'two' can only be said of things of the same nature, which it would be unnatural to describe in that single fashion. The upshot is that the same things are proved to be of the same nature and of different natures. Of course the argument is more or less of a piece of banter.

17.  $\pi \rho o a \rho \iota \theta \mu$ .  $\kappa$ .  $\dot{\upsilon} \pi a \rho \iota \theta \mu$ .] Elias says, probably without historical grounds, that this system of numbering ( $\delta e \dot{\upsilon} \tau e \rho o s$   $\theta e \dot{o} s$ ) was derived from the way in which the Neoplatonic writers arranged existences according to a scale, from the First Cause to the lowest. The phraseology is fully discussed by Basil l. c. (de Sp. S. 17). ' $\Upsilon \pi a \rho \iota \theta - \mu e \dot{\upsilon} \nu$ , as distinguished from  $\sigma \upsilon \nu a \rho \iota \theta \mu$ , is to reckon in a secondary position.

7.  $\mathring{\eta}$  διαγράψομεν] Cp. iii 8. The words  $\mathring{\eta}$  άθετήσομεν, έπειδ $\mathring{\eta}$  οὐ γέγραπται seem to be an ancient gloss to explain  $\mathring{\eta}$  διαγράψομεν. They offer no real alternative to it; and the variation of the MSS. which contain them between  $\mathring{\eta}$  and  $\kappa al$   $\mathring{\eta}$  indicates the uncertainty of their footing. If they are to be retained, the only sense that can be got out of them would be this:—Shew us the words άγέννητον, ἄναρχον in the Bible, and we will either reject the Holy Ghost's Divinity for not being found there, or (if we can prove that it is there) we will erase both it and your two words together. But this would be very cumbrous. Omitting the words, the sense is plain. Gr. retaliates; - Shew us ayévv., avapx. in the Bible, or we will discard them, and you will die by your own rules. The perf. τέθνηκας gives vividness to the argument. Probably the gloss was introduced because Gr.'s word διαγράψομεν seemed itself to imply that the words ἀγέννητον etc. were to be found written in Scripture. How can that be erased which was never written? The scribe wished to substitute for διαγρ. the more general word άθετήσομεν, 'because the expressions in question are not written.' It may be suggested that the correction might be due to Gr. himself; but (1) its place in the MSS. is against it; it ought to have followed διαγρ.; (2) by διαγρ. Gr. intended no reference to being found in Scripture; he meant, if conscious of the metaphor at all, an erasure from the theological writings in which the expressions occurred.

7. μακρώ χρόνω] Cp. ii 14. 8. τàs θυσίας συνεχ.] This, which is the usual patristic view of the legal sacrifices, is well expressed by Cyr. Al. c. Iul. iv p. 126 (Aubert); and by Greg. the Great in his letter to Mellitus (Bede Hist. Eccl. i 30).

10. ἐδέξαντο τὴν ὑφ.] 'as soon as they were reconciled to the withdrawal, they conceded the concession that had been made to them.' It is not clear at what point Gr. means that the Jews 'conceded' the sacrifices. It ought, acc. to the parallelism, to mean when 'they became Jews instead of heathens,' as they gave up circumcision when they 'became Christians instead of Jews.' This, however, would only be true of special representatives of the race, like Samuel and other prophets and psalmists, who taught that obedi-ence was better than sacrifice. If Gr. is not thinking of these, we must suppose that the time when they gave up the sacrifices was practically the same as when they gave up circumcision, i.e. not when they first became 'Jews,' but when they became Christians.

26. 13 προσβαλοντες] προσβαλλοντες be: προβαλοντες 'Or. 1'

Probably Gr. does not mean that this was an advance in St Paul's own views. He can hardly have failed to know that the Ep. to the Gal. was written before the incident in Acts xxi 26. He only means that we see St Paul sometimes acting on the principle of  $olkovo\mu la$ , i.e. departure from what is absolutely best, out of consideration for the circumstances of others, and sometimes on the principle of  $\tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \iota b \tau \eta s$ .

26. So it was with the doctrine of God, except that the successive changes have been in the direction of believing more truths, not fewer. When the doctrine of the Father was well established, that of the Son was revealed, and when that was accepted, then the doctrine of the Spirit. The Spirit Himself came by degrees. Christ Himself revealed Him only by slow advances.

The same profectus apostolicus is traced in Or. xli 11, and by Gr.'s secretary Jerome ad Hedib.

28. Let this be our position then, to worship in one Godhead three undivided Persons. Woe to him who does not hold it, or who shifts with the public opinion of the times. If the Holy Ghost gives us the divine nature, He must needs be an object of worship, and in the full sense divine.

What title, peculiar to God, is there which is not applied to Him, except those of Unbegotten and Begotten?' The phrase ων θεός means, 'which go to make up our conception of God.' It seems strange to add καὶ γεννήσεως as one of those things  $\hat{\omega}\nu$   $\theta\epsilon\delta s$ , as those with whom Gr. is arguing would not admit it. Gr. means, no doubt, that to orthodox Christians the Godhead cannot be conceived of without it.

ib. φύσει οὐ θέσει] These words qualify the preceding adjectives, and esp. ἡγεμ. The Holy Spirit is 'good, right, sovereign,' by nature, and not by an act that involved a change in Him.  $\Theta \ell \sigma \iota s$  seems to be used in the sense of 'agreement,' 'arrangement,' in which sense it is contrasted with  $\phi \delta \sigma \iota s$  by other writers. From this general sense of 'agreement,' it comes to be used of 'adoption' into a family, or 'admission' to the citizenship of a city.

πειραζ., Acts v 9.

5. ἀποκαλυπτικόν] ι Cor. ii 10; φωτιστ., ζωτ., perh. Ps. xxxv 10 (xxxvi 9) as in § 3 (cp. John vi 63, Rom. viii 10).

6. ναοποιοῦν] I Cor. iii 16, vi 19;  $\theta$ εοποιοῦν, constructively deduced from the Spirit's action in baptism;  $\tau$ ελειοῦν, in the 'mystical' sense of 'initiating.' All three words have ref. to 'baptism,' in the larger sense of the word; and the ἄστε prob. belongs to all three. It is more difficult to say what Gr. means by this use of ἄστε. Prob. it is intended to shew that the Spirit's part in baptism is an active, and not a passive part, so as to justify

Gr.'s attribution to Him of the work of 'making' us temples etc. His independence with respect to the sacrament is a proof of this. He is able to 'anticipate baptism' (Acts x 44); and 'baptism' may be received and His indwelling be yet to seek (Acts viii 16).

8. ένεργοῦν] 1 Cor. xii 11; μεριζόμενον, Acts ii 3; διαιροῦν, 1 Cor. xii 11; ποιοῦν ἀπ. κτλ., Eph. iv 11 compared with 1 Cor. xii 4 foll.,

Rom. xii 6, Acts xx 28.

10. νοερδν κτλ.] The following list is taken from Wisd. vii 22 foll., which describes the 'spirit' which 'is in Wisdom.' Gr. does not quote all the epithets there used, some of which, esp. μονογενές, would have been troublesome for him to expound. Each epithet from νοερδν to ἰμδλυντον is explained. Νοερδν = σοφώτατον; πολυμερές = πολύτρ. ταῖς ἐνεργ.; σαφές = σαφπνιτικόν πάντων (neut.); τρανδν = τρανωτικόν; ἀκώλυτον = αὐτεξούσιον (this shews the order of df to be wrong); ἀμδλυντον = ἀναλλοίωτον (since any change in the Holy Ghost must be a change for the worse).

καὶ σαφηνιστικὸν πάντων, καὶ τρανωτικόν, καὶ αὐτεξούσιον, καὶ ἀναλλοίωτον παντοδύναμον, παντεπίσκοπον, διὰ πάντων χωροῦν πνευμάτων νοερῶν, καθαρῶν, λεπτοτάτων, ἀγγελικῶν, οἶμαι, δυνάμεων, ὥσπερ καὶ προφητικῶν καὶ ἀποστολικῶν, κατὰ ταὐτό, καὶ οὐκ ἐν τοῖς αὐτοῖς τόποις, 5 ἄλλων δὲ ἀλλαχοῦ νενεμημένων, ῷ δηλοῦται τὸ ἀπερίγραπτον.

2. παντοδύναμον ... λεπτοτάτων] Wisd. vii 23. The 'understanding, pure, and most subtle spirits' in Wisd. 'through' which the Spirit 'goes,' are, in Gr.'s opinion (no doubt correct), not only 'the angelic Powers,' but also the spirits of prophets and apostles. These the Holy Spirit penetrates κατὰ ταὐτό, 'simultaneously,' although they are distributed in many different places, which is a proof that He is infinite.

30. Such sayings involve His Godhead. All language of a different kind is explained by the principle of referring all to the Father as the First Cause.

8. οι ταῦτα λέγοντες] viz. the sacred writers who used such language about the Holy Spirit.

ib.  $\pi \rho \delta s$   $\gamma \epsilon$ ] adv. 'besides.' 9. οἶον ἄλλον θ.] The words have a dangerous sound; 'as it were another God.' But Gr. does not mean to call Him so. He only means that to call Him a Paraclete at all, in the same sense as Christ, is equivalent to calling Him God.

10. μόνην είδότες ἀσυγχ.] Matt.

xii 31 foll.

11. στηλιτεύσαντες] The Greek method of proclaiming something to the honour or infamy of a person was to 'post' it on a στήλη or post in some public place. Hence a person subjected to such infamy is described in class. Greek as στηλίτης; from whence comes the verb στηλιτεύειν.

12. ἐψεύσ....ώς θεόν] Acts v 3 foll.
14. ώς λίαν] 'since you really are a very stupid person.'

15. πόρρω τοῦ πν.] like ἀλλότριοι τοῦ πν. in § 29, 'unspiritual.'

ἔμψυχοι. τί γὰρ δεῖ σοι τὰς ἐπὶ τῶν ἡημάτων μαρτυρίας παρατίθεσθαι; ὅσα δὲ κἀνταῦθα λέγεται ταπεινότερον, τὸ δίδοσθαι, τὸ ἀποστέλλεσθαι, τὸ μερίζεσθαι, τὸ χάρισμα, τὸ δώρημα, τὸ ἐμφύσημα, ἡ ἐπαγγελία, ἡ ὑπερέντευξις, εἴτε 5 τι ἄλλο τοιοῦτον, ἵνα μὴ καθ' ἕκαστον λέγω, ἐπὶ τὴν πρώτην αἰτίαν ἀνενεκτέον, ἵνα τὸ ἐξ οῦ δειχθῆ, καὶ μὴ τρεῖς ἀρχαὶ μεμερισμέναι πολυθέως παραδεχθῶσιν. ἴσον γὰρ εἰς ἀσέβειαν, καὶ Σαβελλίως συνάψαι, καὶ ᾿Αρειανῶς διαστῆσαι, τὸ μὲν τῷ προσώπῳ, τὸ δὲ ταῖς φύσεσιν.

ib.  $\tau$  às  $\dot{\epsilon}\pi\dot{\iota}\tau\omega\nu$   $\dot{\rho}$ .  $\mu$ .] 'the texts in so many words.' In § 29 they are for the most part only given allusively. What Gr. means by  $\dot{\epsilon}\pi\dot{\iota}\tau\hat{\omega}\nu$   $\dot{\rho}$ . may be seen in iii 17.

2. ὅσα δὲ κἀνταῦθα] i.e. as well as in the case of the Son. See iii 18.

3. δίδοσθαι] e.g. Luke xi 13; ἀποστ., Luke xxiv 49, Gal. iv 6; μερίζ., Heb. ii 4; χάρισμα, 2 Tim. i 6; δώρημα (δωρεά), John iv 10, Acts viii 20; ἐμφύσ., John xx 22; ἐπαγγ. Luke xxiv 49, Acts i 4; ὑπερέντευξίς (cp. iv 14), Rom. viii 26.

6. ἀνενεκτέον] from ἀναφέρω, 'must be referred to the primal Cause, in order that it may be shewn from whom He proceeds.

 παραδεχθῶσω] the correlative to παραδίδοσθαι; 'that men might not receive the polytheistic doctrine of three separate Sources, or First Principles? 9.  $\tau \delta$   $\mu \epsilon \nu \tau \hat{\varphi}$   $\pi \rho \sigma \sigma \omega \pi \varphi$ ] lit. 'it counts for the same in impiety, whether you join like Sabellius, or disjoin like the Arians,—the former in the person, the latter in the natures.' Gr. seems instinctively to say  $\tau \hat{\varphi}$   $\pi \rho \sigma \sigma \omega \pi \varphi$ , not  $\tau \hat{\sigma} \hat{s}$   $\pi \rho \sigma \sigma \omega \pi \sigma \hat{s}$ , because Sabellianism reduces the persons to one,—if indeed any personality can be said to remain.

31. Illustrations of the doctrine of the Trinity are wholly inadequate; like mouth, spring, and stream.

10. ωs έγ. π.] 'How many things!'

14.  $\tau \delta \pi \hbar \hat{\epsilon} \hat{\epsilon} v$ ] 'the most important part escapes me, leaving me below with my illustration.'

15. δφθαλμδν] The context makes it unquestionable that Elias is right in interpreting the word to mean what is called oπή in James iii 11,the 'mouth' out of which the spring issues. No other example of this usage seems to be known; but Gr.'s own language in his poem about the Holy Ghost (iii 60) leaves no room for doubt. He there rejects the same comparison of  $\pi \delta \rho \sigma \sigma$ ,  $\pi \eta \gamma \dot{\eta}$ , ποταμός μέγας, έν τε ρέεθρον. It is just possible that Gr. was aware that an 'eye' is the ordinary word in Hebrew for a spring; but in any case the metaphor is so natural that it is prob. an accident that we do not find it oftener.

1. καὶ γὰρ καὶ ἄλλοι] Elias suggests the Clementine passage which is given by Cotelier p. 528 (ed. 1672).

Cp. Tert. adv. Prax. 8.

2. μὴ τῷ μέν] 'to see whether.' 3. ταῦτα γὰρ κτλ.] The mouth, the spring, and the stream are not divided by time, nor is their continuity with each other severed; and yet the three have each their special characteristics.

5. poow] 'an incessant waste, or dissipation, of Godhead.' Параδέξασθαι as in § 30.

8. ξν ἐστιν ἀριθμῷ] They are notreally three distinct things, Gr. thinks; they are only various forms or phases of the same thing, and therefore they are inadequate to express the Trinity, which is essentially three in number.

32. So with sun, ray, and light; or with the flickering sunshine reflected from water upon a wall.

10. ήλιον κτλ.] Cp. Tert. adv. Prax. 8.

11. κάνταθθα δέος] This illustration likewise had its dangers. It might have suggested that the Trinity is a Trinity by some kind of composition or combination, such as the science of Gr.'s time discerned between the sun itself and the ray and the light which were 'in' the sun. Cp. Or. xliv 4. And secondly there was the opposite danger of suggesting that the Father alone has true positive being, while the Son and Spirit are but faculties of His, without personal subsistence, such being in Gr.'s view the character of the ray and the light.

δεύτερον δὲ μὴ τὸν πατέρα μὲν οὐσιώσωμεν, τἄλλα δὲ μὴ ὑποστήσωμεν, ἀλλὰ δυνάμεις θεοῦ ποιήσωμεν ἐνυπαρχούσας, οὐχ ὑφεστώσας,—οὔτε γὰρ ἀκτίς, οὔτε φῶς, ἄλλος ἥλιος, ἀλλ᾽ ἡλιακαί τινες ἀπόρροιαι, καὶ ποιότητες οὐσιώ-5 δεις,—καὶ ἄμα τὸ εἶναι καὶ τὸ μὴ εἶναι τῷ θεῷ δῶμεν ἐν τούτοις, ὅσον ἐκ τοῦ ὑποδείγματος, ὁ καὶ τῶν εἰρημένων ἀτοπώτερον. ἤκουσα δέ τινος καὶ τοιοῦτον ὑπογράφοντος λόγον,—μαρμαρυγήν τινα ἡλιακὴν τοίχῳ προσαστράπτουσαν, καὶ περιτρέμουσαν ἐξ ὑδάτων κινήσεως, ἡν ἡ ἀκτὶς

2. ἐνυπαρχούσαs] Existing only in Him, as attributes of His. The word is freq. in this sense in Aristotle.

3. ἄλλος ἥλιος] This, acc. to Gr., would be necessary to make the illustration complete. Cp. § 14, and § 30 ἄλλον θεόν. The ray is not the equal of the luminous body which gives it off; whereas in the Trinity there is, as it were, a sun giving off ήλιακαί τ. ἀπόρρ.] 'solar effluences'; Gr. will not even say ήλίου ἀπόρρ., because it might suggest that, once flowing forth, the effluence has some kind of independent existence, whereas his point is that the ray and the light are but properties of the sun. This is further brought out by the addition καὶ ποιότ. οὐσ. 'and essential qualities.' By οὐσιώδεις Gr. seems from the context to mean 'belonging to the nature of the sun.' Elsewhere, however, the word is used in a way that would give an almost opposite meaning; e.g. Or. xli 11 οὐκέτι ἐνεργεία παρον ώς πρότερον, οὐσιωδώς δέ, ώς αν είποι τις, συγγινόμενον; Cyr. Hier. Cat. Myst. iii Ι πνεύματος άγίου οὐσιώδης ἐπιφοίτησις. Acc. to these examples, ποιότητες οὐσιώδεις would rather mean 'real, substantive qualities.' In order to suit the context, we should then have to understand οὐσιώδεις to have something of a concessive force, 'qualities after all, however real and substantive.'

5. καὶ ἄμα τὸ εἶναι κτλ.] The gloss μόνψ τῷ πατρί gives the right direction for understanding the passage: it means that if we are content with the illustration, we attribute τὸ εῖναι only to the Father, and withhold it from the Son and Spirit. Έν τούτοις=in the Persons so conceived of. Thus to 'God' (in the sense of δλος θε6s iv 6) we should 'attribute at the same time existence and non-existence.'

7. ἤκουσα δέ τινος] 'I once heard a man offering the following account.' It is unknown who the man was.

8.  $\mu\alpha\rho\mu\alpha\rho\nu\gamma\eta\nu\tau\nu\alpha$ ] The illustration, though attractive to the poetical imagination of Gr., is not immediately clear. It seems at first as if the trinity were the sunbeam, the water, and the wall, which combine to produce the  $\pi\alpha\lambda\mu\delta$ , the dancing and quivering reflexion. The point, however, appears to lie rather in the junction of unity with multiplicity (the number three being for the moment lost sight of) displayed in the vibrations of the sunbeam.

2. παλμὸς έγ. καὶ παράδ.] ' becomes (gnom. aor.) a quivering that quite surprises you.'

ib. ἄττει] = ἀίσσει, 'vibrates.'

33. It is a misleading comparison. We do best to content ourselves with the few words given us by revelation for our guidance, and so to press on through life, endeavouring to bring all to join in worshipping Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, in one Godhead.

 6. θέσθαι] 'to lay down as my own,' 'accept.'
 7. την μέν τὸ κ.] 'it is very clear what moves the sunbeam.' The contrasted phrase would strictly have run θεον δε οὐδεν κινεί (οὐδεν έστι τὸ κινοῦν).

10.  $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu \alpha \hat{\upsilon} \tau \hat{\omega} \nu \dot{\upsilon} \pi$ .] 'there is a suspicion (or perh. a notion) of the same things' as in the case of the former illustrations.

ib. χύσεως] might seem to be in favour of Elias' reading  $\chi \epsilon \theta \epsilon i \sigma a$  above. But the point of the illustration there does not lie in that word, whether  $\chi \epsilon \theta$ . be read, or  $\sigma \chi \epsilon \theta$ . Xú $\sigma$ is represents the 'shedding,' whether of light or of water, which implies dissipation.

11. ἀστάτου] repeats the στάσιν οὐκ ἔχουσαν of § 31. Cp. Poem. iii 64 οὔτε τις έξ ὑδάτων κινήμασιν ήλιακοίσι μαρμαρυγή, τοίχοισι περίτρομος, ἀστατέουσα, πρὶν πελάσαι φεύγουσα, πάρος φυγέειν πελάουσα. ούδε γαρ αστατός έστι θεοῦ φύσις, ήξ ρέουσα ήὲ πάλιν συνιοῦσα· τὸ δ' ξμπεδόν έστι θεοίο.

5.  $\epsilon \pi$  ολίγων  $\delta$ .  $\epsilon \sigma \tau$ .] 'satisfied with a few (not with few) words.'

The clause is contrasted with "στησιν ἐπὶ τῶν ὑποδειγμάτων θ. above. 'A few words' of Scripture are all that we have to go upon. 6.  $\epsilon \nu \tau \epsilon \hat{v} \theta \epsilon \nu = \alpha \pi \delta \tau \delta \hat{v} \pi \nu \epsilon \delta \mu \alpha \tau \delta s$ .

8. διαπ. διατέμνοντα] 'to journey through this world, cleaving my way as I go.' There is a ref. to the usual expression τέμνειν δδόν. Gr. alludes to the difficulties that beset a faith which will not acquiesce in poor substitutes for knowledge.
